First Civic League Hockey Game Last Night

Cabaret Wins the Opener

The lid is off the Civic League and the battle for the Wisden Cup, which now resides in the College halls, is on. Furthermore, the promise of good local hockey was fully born out by the clash last night which ended in a 5 to 4 or 3 cone goal being dispatched with the Cabaret de Luxe team. The Standard hasn't been handed a schedule of games yet, but this will appear doubtless next week Four teams comprise the league Soviets, Cabaret, Elks and Telegram all four teams will probably get into action next Wednesday. All we need now is about 500 school fans to put three games over with a bang

The game last night was good all the way, with both teams always in the running Ken Corsan, of Cabaret team, was poison to the opposing goals, gathering in four goals, and Jimmy White notched the odd one, while Gilbert Brimacombe got two good ones and one disputed one for the Soviets while Reanbeck (borrowed from the Elks) got one Line-ups:

Cabaret—Powell, Wiebe and Pitcher; K. Corsan, Munro, White, Bell.
Soviets—Gaines; Jack and Ab Mackenzie; Waldenberger, Gib Brimacombe, Bigfish and Reanbeck

Orange Meeting

Held At Vermilion-In Favor Of Distinctive Canadian Flag

Over one hundred and fifty members of the Orange order attended the annual county meeting held at Vermilion on Monday of this week and which convoked at a late hour that night. Delegates were present from Dewberry, Marwayne, Clandonald, Orbindale, Minburn, Mannville and Vermilion lodges. A portion of the afternoon was given over to a meeting of the Royal Scarlet Chapter at which forty some fifty members were in attendance. In the evening a concentrous banquet was tendered the visiting delegates by the members of the local L.O.B.A. in the Presbyterian church hall, which was nicely decorated for the occasion. The county master, H. R. Chrysler of Mannville, presided. The delegates were welcomed on behalf of the Town of Vermilion by His Worship Mayor Palmer and short addresses were made by T. Watts, A. F. Williams and other prominent members of the order The officers elected for the year were as follows: County Master, C. E. Hughes, Minburn; Deputy Master, G. H. Thompson, Mannville; Chaplain, F. H. Sharpe, Vermilion; Secretary, Jas McPadzean, Minburn; Treasurer, J. W. C. Mathie, Vermilion, Lecturers, W. Hall, Vermilion and G. Klatz, Minburn. Marshall, C. N. Robertson, Mannville.

The meeting took definite action with regard to the efforts made to have the Calgary Prophetic Bible Institute removed from the air. A protest to the proper authorities was unanimously passed and further action will be taken if necessary More aggressive organization will be undertaken and plans were made accordingly. A resolution was also passed declaring in favor of a distinctive flag for Canada. A design will probably be suggested by the Provincial Grand Lodge when the Union Jack will form a conspicuous part Several matters of interest to the order were discussed and proper action taken thereon

The meeting was the largest and most successful held in many years and the volume of business transacted exceeded that of any previous meeting. The finance of the association were reported to be in splendid condition with the local lodges continuing to grow rapidly in membership

Why Dutch Are Steady

Short Story With Breakfast Of Many

A Dutch breakfast is like no other meal in the world. There are, to start with, at least seven kinds of bread, white bread and grayish bread, pla n buns, buns with raisins brown bread toasted biscuits, sweet cakes and a kind of fruit cake. You will find at least three or four kinds of meat, could sliced veal, roast beef, ham and sausages.

Then, if you dont see it all at once, you smell the cheese, two or three of the Dutch specia ties, including Limburger and Edam. There are several dishes p ed with boiled eggs, and, of course, there are jams and honey and assonable fruits. The climax is a pot of steaming coffee, not the insipid beverage of the rest of Europe, but the real thing from the Dutch colonies.

General Smuts Says All Nations Will Eventually Join

In not more than ten years the whole human race including Russia will be represented at the council table of the League of Nations. This was the predict on of General Jan Christian Smuts, South African statesman, speaking at a dinner in New York arranged as a part of the celebrations in the U.S. for the tenth anniversary of the founding of the league.

"It would be a very serious and a very tragic thing" said General Smuts, "if when all the nations of the world gather there, the seat of the founder and inspirer should rema n vacant."

In this and other references he paid tribute to the late President Wilson as one of the main forces in bringing the league into existence. The United States, he pi nted out, was bound to enter into international conferences whether within or without the league. The part of Paris required. In this way the method of conference for d posing of international disputes would become universal and once th s came about peace would be guaranteed without fail.

Canadian Chamber Of Commerce Submits Some Important Questions To Federal Cabinet

The views of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce on a number of important national questions were submitted to Pr me Minister Mackenzie King and members of the Dominion Cabinet, at Ottawa, recently.

Headed by Col. J. H. Woods, of Chicago, president of the chamber, a deputation waited upon the prime minister and his colleagues and presented a memorandum based on resolutions passed and subjects discussed at the Calgary meeting of the chamber last summer.

Such important matters as the construction of the St. Lawrence waterway; the question of the income and sales taxes; seasonal unemployment; development of the Peace River country; construction of a national highway; inquiry into complaints of the fruit and vegetable industries; development of Emp re trade, etc., were touched upon in the memorandum submitted.

In connection with the suggestion for the appointment of a joint body for the direction of the income and sales taxes as when warranted by the Dominion's finances, and the creation of a select advisory taxation," Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Finance, made a few comments. He said he could not think federal income tax was a war measure, and that the Dominion still required money to pay war debts.

Suggestions had been made by some of the prov nces that the Dominion should cut down its expenditures, but Mr. Dunning, the Dominion could not do without this tax. Another suggestion had been made that certain provinces however. That was that the field be d vided between the Dominion and the provinces. The trouble was, for instance, might retain business income taxation and leave personal income taxation to the Dominion. Without making any promises, Mr. Dunning asked the deputation to think over the situation with those suggestions in mind.

Golden Text: "Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God."—Matthew 5:8.

Lesson: Matthew 5:1-48.
Devotional Reading: Psalm 24:1-6.

Explanations and Comments

The Scene, verses 1, 2.—Jewish rabbis usually sat while teach ng, and Jesus followed the custom. Surrounded by a disciples, the Twelve and also others. He "opened His mouth and taught them," in Matthew's Hebraic statement—a solemn way of introducing words of great importance.

Receipts For Blessedness, verses 3-10.—Blessed: with this word each of these verses begins. We call them the Beat tudes, from "Beati," Blessed, the word with which they begin in the Latin version. Blessedness is higher than happiness. Happiness may seem dependent on circumstances; blessedness always depends upon relationship with God. "Blessedness is an inner joy and better thing than mere happiness," says a note in Weymouth's New Testament. Four qualities are blessed many outwardly ill much disliked, but from the higher and truer standpoint they are to be admired, congratulated and imitated. Poor in spirit is to be humble-minded, who are conscious of their need of God. Those who, in Dr. George D. Boardman's words, "conscious, it may be, of great spiritual poverty, are at the same time conscious of great spiritual incompleteness and therefore lonsed of the Heaven's gate for Heaven's supplies." Luke's version gives only, "Blessed are ye poor," and is more in the Ex-pressive manner of Jesus. Other statements are one and the same, for "the poor" was a recognized name among the Jews for those who had dedicated themselves to the service of God. They were, for the most part, literally poor in this world's goods, but they possessed God, and knew it. Him they had attained blessedness. Righteousness describes the character one possesses, but upon what one is. Mercy is the attitude toward fellowmen. Notice that each Beat tude gives the reason. "There are many definitions of the Kingdom of Heaven, or Kingdom of God, as it is usually called. It may think of it as having for its members the followers of Christ, who obey His teachings and seek to further His ideals. The Church on earth is not identical with it, but has been called "The Constitutional of the Kingdom of God," contains a generous portion of the great teachings.

Records Ingenuity Of Roman Builders

Galley Could Have Made Atlantic Crossing Years Before Columbus

Whatever the old Roman built was he'll to endure for all time. Roads laid in Britain by those who conquered Gaul have long been famed for their construction, but many people do not know that sections of them are used today. Some of the bridges, built as long as 1,800 years ago, are still both in weather more than the storms of Time. For over a year the Italian Government has been engaged in pump ng out the Lake of Nemi, seventeen miles southwest of Rome, for the purpose of recovering the two galleys of the Emperor Cal gula, that have rested on the mud bottom for 1,800 years. Already the progress of these operations has appeared from time to time. After most of the mud was pumped out of the lake, the top of the larger galley appeared last spring. In the summer the water was moved further toward the shore.

The first galley revealed, despite the fact that it appears from a decayed mass of timber than a ship, the ingenuity of the Roman builders is clearly manifested. The palace of such size. Its exact length is 74 meters, about 230 feet, comparing creditably with the largest ocean of the earlier ocean liners of it in construct on. If these Romans commanded only such power as steam and gasoline petrol motors, they could have anticipated civilizations by 2,000 years and could have made the discoveries Christopher Columbus. As the vessel was built entirely of wood, the sh p's fabric was of enormous thickness, n'se feet, from the rounded bottom to the deck. No iron was used for the ship's fastenings, which are of oak. The ship could easily have sailed the ocean.

SYNOPSIS

Al Stone, singing waiter at Blackie Joe's New York night club, married Molly Winton, a ballad singer, not knowing he is loved by Grace Parrel, a loyal little c garette girl. After Al sells fans as a chaser of popular songs, Molly elopes with John Ferry, taking her baby, Junior, as she sails for France. Al, broken by the loss of his son, becomes a derelict, but is saved by C as Farrel, and recovers to appear in Broadway revue that night he receives a phone call from Molly and rushes to a hospital to find Jun or fatally ill. He s ngs to Junior, but his son dies. Then Al dashes back to the stage to the audience and sing the same song to his audience.

CHAPTER XXXI.

The bright lights were on, the stage was empty, the orchestra played the opening bars of Al's number, and he entered. But still he stood in the wings as if in a trance, fearful of attempting the song he had just sung to his dying child. The orchestra stopped, started again, and the stage manager ran toward Al.

"That's your number, big boy."

"I can't sing that song," protested Al. "Not tonight."

The stage manager saw something was wrong, but he didn't know what.

"It's too late to change now, Al. It's your hit song. Th nk of the show!"

The show! Al walked on the stage, driven by sheer force of w ll. There were the lights, there was the orchestra leader, beyond were the dim sea of faces of the audience. Without knowing it, he fell into his character, the happy-go-lucky Al Stone. The roar of applause came up and beat him like a great w nd. His went into a song, believing he could carry on.

The stage manager relaxed and turned to Grace. "What's the matter with him?"

Quickly Grace explained and they both watched Al with anxious eyes. Would he make it? He was singing bravely, but it was apparent to the r well trained ears that he was falter-

The Terror Of the Seas

Age Old Battle Of Mariners and the Elements

The storms which have been devastating the shipping around the northwestern fringes of Europe and the British Isles, are said to have been the worst experienced in those waters in many years. How many seamen have been drowned, how many ships have struggled and died under their malevolent fury, is not yet ascertained. It may never be known. "Th s" as Conrad once wrote "is the disintegrat ng power of a great wind. . . . An earthquake, a landslip, an avalanche overtakes a man incidentally as it were—without passion. A furious gale attacks him like a personal enemy, tries to grasp his i nbs, fastens upon his m nd, seeks to rout his very spirit out of him."

That is the character of the desperate warfare which has been going on behind the brief news dispatches of sh ps in difficult s and battles washed ashore. It is an old but intermittent but recurring, as real as maritime civil nations which for ages have grown accustomed to handle their tools upon those troubled seas. The very names in the news stories—Blaskey, the Scilly Isles, Goodwin Sands, Dungeness—are the names of ancient battlegrounds in the old war. They run like Al's second recovery progressed, so his pleas and 52 s's seemed closer to material nation. Then came the day when Al was to appear for his before history. Steel and steam are better defences than the Phoen cian galley, but the struggle is unabated

— NOT FORGOTTEN

Harry Palmer, pioneer farmer of the Campbell Lake district, who has been a patient at the Vermilion municipal hospital since the 21st of December suffering from a serious illness, recently received the following letter from the secretary of the school board of his district:

"Dear Harry:

At a ratepayers' meeting held in the school house on Saturday last Jan. 11th, at which a large and representative gathering of ratepayers turned out, the following resolution was passed. Proposed by Geo Wood seconded by J Baldwin, that the secretary be instructed to write to Mr Palmer on behalf of the ratepayers of Campbell Lake S D 1691, expressing their appreciation of his services covering a period of 20 years on the board of trustees and a hearty wish for his speedy recovery from his present illness."

So that goes to show that you were not forgotten. I have never had a chance to come in and see you but have heard about you several times from others who have done so.

Hoping that you will soon be better and be out once again on the old stamping ground. I am

NOMINATION DAY FEB. 3rd.

Nomination day which is set as the first Monday in February, which makes the date the 3rd, will soon be here and very little in board of business or probable candidates in the town council or school board. Whether this is because everyone is satisfied with the present administration or whether it just signifies lack of interest is not known, but candidates have a habit of appearing at the last minute, and no doubt we'll have enough to warrant an election by the closing hour on Monday night. Elections follow on the Monday after, or Feb. 10th. Councillors whose terms of office expire are Peter McKeno, Lloyd Cameron and W E Macbeath, while school trustees who have served their two-year period are J. Welsh, S R P Cooper and M G Brimacombe.

Mayor Hallow was re-elected last year for another two-year term of office.

WORLD BROADCAST

In common with the rest of the world, the people of this community tuned in at 11 o'clock Thursday morning to listen to the address of the King at the opening of the five-power naval conference in London, and also to the addresses of representatives of the powers participating. The broadcast lasted for some two hours, reception being good. Apart from the historical significance of the occasion, listeners-in were well repaid for the few hours lost sleep by having the privilege of hearing not only their beloved sovereign, but national leaders of the several powers. It was an epoch making event.

SCHOOL BOARD RESOLUTION

At the last meeting of the school board a resolution was passed which, if it should be accepted by the government and become law, would create a most drastic change in the administration of our schools in so far as towns are concerned. The resolution asked for an amendment to our town and county school acts whereby the functions of the duly discharged by the school board would be carried on by the town council. The resolution points out that by an amendment last year there will be only one levy for this year for all purposes; that is, the matter of assessing directly for school or hospital purposes has been done away with. This being the case the Government of the board is simply asking the government to go one step further and do away with the board of school trustees altogether and have the affairs appertaining to the schools administered through the town council. It argues that this can be done much the same way as it administers any of its public utilities. The council would appoint a committee on schools and it would function as between the school and the council.

A copy of the resolution has been sent to the department of education and it will also be considered at the trustees' convention at Calgary early in February. H. P. Lent was appointed as delegate to attend the convention and move the adoption of the resolution.

ANNUAL MEETING OF FIRST UNITED CHURCH

The annual congregational meeting of First United church was held on Monday, Jan. 20th. A splendid representation of the congregation was present. W. E. Mackenzie presided and W S Cash acted as secretary.

Most gratifying reports were heard from all branches of the church work. Special mention was made of the splendid work done (under the supervision of Mr G Law) in the memorization of Scripture by the Sunday School scholars. During the year almost one thousand dollars was raised for missions work and $ 1 653 00 for all church purposes.

The congregation feel that they owe a great debt of gratitude to their pastor Rev. H. A Boyd, for his untiring devotion to all branches of the church work, his deep spiritual interest in each, his kindly sympathy and ever ready help in time of trouble, and praying that God may prosper the church both spiritually and financially during the new year upon which they have entered. The meeting closed with prayer and all adjourned to the church parlors where the ladies served coffee and cookies and a pleasant social hour was spent

The death took place on Sunday afternoon, in the Islay hospital of Leslie, 13-year-old son of Mr. J. B. Davies who farms near Marwayne. The funeral was held from St. Leslie's Anglican church, west of Marwayne on Tuesday afternoon, the service being conducted by the Rev. Wheeler of Kitscoty United church. Quite a large gathering of friends from all around the district assembled at the church, all intent on showing their kindly good feeling and genuine sympathy with the bereaved family. A lovely array of flowers surrounded the beautiful casket and gave silent testimony of the respect and esteem of the people for the

Interment was made in the cemetery adjoining the Church. Mr J. Wasling of Vermilion having charge of the [illegible] and [illegible] of the [illegible] was carried out in that dignified, impressive manner so fitting to such a pathetic occasion. Immigration and Unemployment

At the present time much is being said and written on the twin subjects of immigration and unemployment. Hardly an issue of a daily paper appears that does not contain some reference to the problems involved, hundreds of letters to editors are penned expressing one view or another, conferences and conventions pass resolutions, and Governments, Federal, Provincial and Municipal are struggling with the difficulties confronting them. There is in all quarters a tendency manifested to shelve the responsibility on to the other fellow, to, in the descriptive language of the day, "pass the buck." and "let George do it."

With a recent weeks headlines in the press have informed a reading public that "3,000,000 are unemployed in the United States," that in Germany "2,000,000 are out of work," that the number of unemployed in Great Britain "remains between 1,900,00 and 2,000,000," while, coming nearer home, that "the unemployed situation is acute in all large Canadian centres of population."

What is the cause? What is the solution? The United States has been experiencing a period of unexamp'ed industrial growth and activity. In 1929 Canada enjoyed the most prosperous year in its history, with all records for manufacturing, building construction, and development of natural resources reach ng new high marks. Despite depression on in certain basic industries, Great Britain reports more people at work now than before the war, while Germany, we are told, is "coming back," and regaining much of her former strength in the export markets of the world.

In Canada the opinion prevails in many quarters that our unemployment problem is largely due to an influx of immigrants, but such a cause cannot be advanced in the case of Great Britain, Germany, or even in the United States, with its rigidly restricted immigrat on quotas. Yet unemployment seems to be almost universal, in fact there is less in proportion to popular on in Canada than in other countries. So the cause lies deeper than in immigration, although, of course, it undoubtedly has some effect.

In the United States it is estimated that by the fact that for some years past mass production has been ma ntained on a scale hitherto unknown, and the marketing of the enormous product on has only been possible through the sale of every conceivable kind of article on the instalment plan, until the average income of the buying public was t ed up in advance for long periods. Possibly the saturation point has been reached, and, people being unable to buy more, even on the instalment plan, will be forced to slow up.

Is it not also true that the enormous sums now invested in automobiles, radios, and other expensive but, in the case of the average citizen, unproductive devices, being thus withdrawn from productive enterprises is having its effect on other industries?

Again, through the inventive genius of th's age, labor-saving machinery and appliances of all kinds have had the result of enabling one man or woman to do the work of two, three or more, with a consequent lessen ng of the ratio of employment to volume of output. Wages in those employed are higher, but the number of workers actually required in many industries is less although their output is greater. Here in Western Canada we have an example of this in the big drop in the number of farm hands required through the introduction of the round-bed harvester-threaher and the increasing use of motor trucks over horse drawn vehicles. As one result, too, the tendency is again in the direction of larger farms, whereas a few years ago the bet of wee fairly general that the day of smaller farm holdings providing for more family on each was approaching.

What governments, economists, manufacturers, labor unions, and our whole citizenship must realize is that a present paradox of unemployment in an era of general expansion and growth is the result of changing world conditions All countries are affected. Everything 's in a state of flux. And because all countries are affected, and also because far away fields always look green, people everywhere are looking elsewhere to better their condition. The inevitable result is that all countries will more and more restrict immigration as a measure of the r own national salvation.

What will happen then? There is only one answer: People will have to adjust themselves to changed, and still rapidly changing conditions They will have to work out their salvation at home. The problem is a huge and difficult one. Nobody yet has the answer, but it must be found, and that is the sole reason for this article—to encourage real study of the problem, instead of the present prevailing tendency to lay the blame on somebody else.

Says Insanity Increasing

Eminent Psychologist Makes Some what Startling Assertion

After copious consideration and profound contemplation an eminent psychologist says he thinks it is only a matter of time when we will all be in the asylum He finds that insanity is increasing rapidly that a few centuries hence practically the whole world will be daffy in the room. In a number of years a material step is to be taken.

The fact that the world is go ng crazy is no surprise to some folks they think that it is that way already But on the other hand there are some of good repute who say this also to figure out that this is not such a rotten world after all and that there is enough still and intelligence available to keep the machinery runn ng for an indefinite period.—Los Angeles Times.

On an average day 256 men are save guad and only four women.

INFLUENZA'S VICTIMS

Left Weak, Miserable and a Prey To Disease In Many Cases

One of the most treacherous diseases afflict ng the people of Canada during the winter months is influenza. It almost invariably ends with a complication of troubles. The victims suffer with alternate fevers and chills, headaches and backaches. It leaves them an easy prey to bronchit's and pneumonia. The after effects of influenza are of influenza may leave the victim weak and miserable. The grip of influenza can only by keeping the system with heavy and rich blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills If you have not done this and the disease attacks you, you should always prepare them. Through the use of this great blood-building and health tonic.

Here is proof of the power of Dr Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. Wilfrid Mc-Millan, Belleville, Ont., says: "A year ago this spring, following a severe attack of influenza, I was left in such a weak condition that my friends thought I would not live longer. I was a weak person in digestion, and my blood got th n and watery. In this wretched condition I began the use of Dr. Wil iams' Pink Pills, and these did what other medicines had failed to do—thoroughly me back to health and strength. To Pay $28,000,000 in Cash

The growing population of Canada is indicated in the official announcement that the Canad an Government w'll redeem in cash a total of $28,000,000 payable on February 1, 1930. The revenue of Canada was greater in the last ten days of the current fiscal year than the total for the whole of the year 1868, the first year of Confederation. The surplus of revenue over expenditures last year would have more than paid off the national debt of Canada at the time in the early seventies of the last century.

To Discuss Education and Health

Premier Anderson, Of Saskatchewan, Will Hold Interesting Conference

Representatives of various organizations throughout Saskatchewan will be invited to meets to Regina and to an informal conference during week premier J. T. Anderson announced.

Following the announcement that such a conference would be held at a date to be fixed later, Premier Anderson said he hoped to be able to focus the thought of the people of Saskatchewan on the subject of educational development and to enable his government to find out at first hand the nature of the problems that are most pressing.

Touching on the new course of study being prepared for public and high schools, the premier, who is also minister of education, expressed the hope that wherever citizens are organized for civic or social welfare consideration should be given to the contemplated changes in curr cula.

"It would be unwise," he said, "for us to prescribe courses of study which are not understood and appreciated, or on the basis not the solid support of a large majority of the people who pay the taxes and whose children attend the schools."

Stating that a mass of criticism had been directed against rural schools in Saskatchewan, the premier said those schools were being vitalized and brought into harmony with the actual requirements of rural life in Saskatchewan.

"I am particularly anxious," he said, "that home makers' clubs, local lodges of the United Farmers of Canada, various social and civic clubs, church societies, trades and labor councils, boards of trade, civic and soc'al organizations of all kinds, shall join with us in the study of educational problems and offer suggest'ons for improving our system of education."

Farmers Of Western Canada View With Hopefulness The Coming Of The New Year

A Famous Pecos Tree

Farmer in Texas Has Fine Specimen On His Property

Spoken of as the father of pecan trees, the Jumbo Hollis tree, situated upon the farm of J. W. Morris, near San Saba, Texas, holds the record of all nut trees in the matter of incomes from its production. For many years the annual crop of pecans nuts has sold for from $500 to $1,800.

In a single season it produced a crop that sold for $1,000. It is believed to be the largest pecan tree in Texas. It's towering branches cover an enormous area, and there have been but few years when they were not loaded down with nuts of the thin-shell, large variety.

The nuts from this tree always bring fancy prices. In addition to the small forests which the tree has brought its owner from the sale of its annual crop of nuts, it has provided thousands of bids for building and other pecan trees throughout this section. Many of the budded trees are producing big yields of nuts of the same variety as the Jumbo Hollis pecan tree. The famous tree is situated on the banks of the Colorado river, and its age dates back for more than two thousand years, according to tree experts.

Dr. Hugh S. This opinion depicts a situation obtaining in Canada as well. As a result indigents suffering from physical ailments are cared for in hospitals and the financial burden is borne by the munic pality, while the person of ordinary means is required to foot his own bill and the indigent's also in an indirect way.

The ultimate burden really rests with the head of the family, and it would no doubt welcome any change that would alleviate his unfair obligations.

The Dual Purpose Cow

Many Farmers Find Three Cattle Are Very Profitable

Some have questioned the existence of such an animal as the dual purpose cow. However, the fact remains that many thousands of good beef conformation produce sufficient milk to return a profit to their owners aside from the value of their calves which make good feeders. Many quality cattle constitute dual purpose stock, and by means of such qualities many farmers prefer this strain of Shorthorn to any other class of cattle. No intelligent breeder of such stock pretends to compete with the dairy breeds in average production of milk per head, nor as a rule does he pretend to compete with the straight beef breeds in the show ring, but he is a strong contender for high cost position as measured by net returns at the end of the year, writes E. Van Nice, Dominion Experimental Station, Scott, Sask.

Irrigation In Western Canada

One Million Acres Of Land Under Irrigation In Southern Alberta

Each year irrigation is assuming greater importance in the agricultural development of Southern Alberta. At the present time approximately one million acres of land in this part of Canada are capable of irrigation by one or other of several companies. The proper use of irrigation water is not yet a definitely settled question.

During the past few years the subject has been given special study by the assistant superintendent of the Dominion Experimental Station, at Lethbridge, Alberta. The results of three studies have been published in bulletin No. 125, of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa. The investigations have covered the irrigation of wheat, alfalfa, potatoes, sugar beets and sunflowers. The conclusions reached with respect to wheat and alfalfa are particularly interesting. Irrigation in the fall, after harvest, for the succeeding year's wheat crop was found to be a profitable practice if the fall irrigation was not good, and if the precipitation of May and early June were not adequate. Irrigation also found essential to irrigate after the crop was up in the spring, but before the plants were checked in growth by lack of moisture.

With alfalfa, it was found in years of low rainfall, irrigation was highly beneficial to give at least two irrigations to produce two good crops. One of these was applied in the fall of the year. If the fall was not good, and if the precipitation of May and early June were not adequate, irrigation was found essential to irrigate after the crop was up in the spring, but before the plants were checked in growth by lack of moisture.

Revolutionary Changes In Canada's Mining Industry May Result From Scientific Discovery

Supplementary Feeds For Breeding Hens

Special Foods To Increase the Hatchability Of Eggs

It is being found out that the hatchability of eggs can be improved by feeding the laying hens with special foods in addition to their regular rations. At the Northern Ontario Experimental Station, of the Department of Agriculture, at Cochrane, such supplementary feeds as cod liver oil, raw liver, bone meal, and a mixture of the former two were fed. One hundred hens were divided into pens of ten birds each, making duplicate pens for each feed in test, as well as for the check pen which received the ordinary ration only.

The cod liver oil was fed at the rate of one-quarter teaspoonful per bird per day, the raw liver, one half-ounce per bird, per day, and the bone meal was mixed in the dry mash at the rate of 5 per cent by weight . For the pens receiving both the cod liver oil and the raw liver, the quantity of each was reduced one-half The experiment was divided into two periods with one week between them . The first period covered the regular matching season when most birds were kept in their respective pens, while the second period male birds were alternated daily The first period was of 42 days, and the second period 28 days. Separate records were kept with each of the two periods

This work was continued over three seasons. The average number of eggs required per clutch of three years of age over the three year period was as follows: raw liver, 2.2, ordinary ration, 2.3, cod liver oil and raw liver, 2.5, bone meal, 2.6, and cod liver oil, 3 1 It will be observed that the feeding of liver oil in 1930 gave the poorest results, and the raw liver the best.

Commercial Travellers Would Hold Empire Meeting In Toronto

Resolution favoring the holding of a convention of commercial travellers from all parts of the British Empire in the Toronto Empire trade was passed at the annual meeting of the Commercial Travellers' Association of Canada, held in Toronto.

The meeting would be held in Toronto at a date yet to be decided on.

C. A. E. Cridwell, president, in his address to the delegates, said conditions throughout Canada are sound and satisfactory, but it is necessary from the point of view of commercial travellers, the present situation is one which cannot be regarded with equal satisfaction.

Some of these very factors he said, which are contributing to the h ilthy and success of retail business in Canada are tending to retard growth of the association, judging by the lack of membership, because of the ever increasing number of chain stores and amalgamations of wholesale houses

Teeth and the Diet

Dental Infection Plays An Important Part In Development Of Disease

In days gone by, treatment of teeth was based on the assumption that they had no relation to the rest of the body. We have learned in recent years, however, that dental infections play an important part in many systemic diseases. The Mayo Clinic, which has won fame all over the world for the high standard it maintains, and the conscientious treatment it gives patients, now insists that every person who comes up for treatment should undergo a thorough examination of the mouth, no matter what disease is apparent.

It is, therefore, of the highest importance that we be most systematic in taking the very best care possible of our teeth, and it will help us to do so if we know some of the reasons. There is a world of truth in the old quotation, "Infected teeth are ill tenants."

Dr Charles Mayo once said that the great mass of the people of this generation, would die from one of the dental plagues, but that almost all of one hundred would probably die because of some simple infection, the original cause of which would give [illegible]

One by one the great agencies of the world are taking even more interest in what the teeth are doing to the rest of the system. The life insurance companies want to know what is inside the applicant's mouth before they decide whether he or she is a good risk for a policy. Large industries employ dentists to examine the teeth of their employees and see to it that they have the best chance of highest efficiency through healthy mouths

The best thing which the teeth do for us is to masticate our food. Mastication is the first step in digestion, and unless the food is prepared properly, our digestive organs get out of order, and as the saying is, "he who does not masticate his food is the enemy of his own life."

Tooth-ache while about as unpleasant as anything one can think of, has its advantages because it is a danger signal and sometimes we are apt to let a bit of disease undone when we have very emphatic warning. The fact that you have no tooth-ache, however, should not be taken to mean that your teeth need no attention. Sometimes people have teeth that are gradually undermining health which they are not suspecting danger. They reach middle age and find that not only are their teeth getting past the stage of usefulness, but their general health has suffered as well. One of the most intelligent habits one can form is a regular visit to the dentists every six months and the utmost co-operation with him when we get there.

Immigrants from Italy, Greece, and Balkan States, Poland and Germany, have fine teeth. Investigation of this factor in their lives showed that they eat a simple diet consisting of coarse foods, plenty of fruit and vegetables, and dark bread that is never eaten white it is too fresh. They do not have the same opportunities that we have of indulging in white flour and refined sugar, and they seldom eat candy. On the other hand, the Mayo Clinic examination of fifteen hundred patients shows that 87 per cent. had infected teeth, and 60 per cent. suffered from pyorrhea.

The British Dental Association reports that 95 per cent. of the English and Scotch school children have decayed teeth. We who have much more opportunity of taking care of ourselves than has the poor immigrant, find that we are second to them in the care of our teeth. There is only one reason the food we eat. Dental disease in the past has increased with the advance of civilization, and to destroy valuable constituents in our food with too much intensive cooking and refining. So it behooves us to take care of our teeth.

Teeth, properly and regularly brushed, will not decay unless sugary food is indulged in to excess. Children can be saved a lot of useless trouble with their teeth if they are properly trained in this respect. They will not crave candies unless they are allowed to have them more than is necessary

And a bad habit, once formed, is hard to break.

An adult who indulges in candies, should do so during meal times. Candies or sweets should not be taken between meals, and if this is done the mouth should be rinsed out immediately with water. To eat candies just before going to bed, is the best way to encourage tooth-decay and large dentists' bills.

If you are visiting the dentist regularly, he will soon recognize any symptoms of pyorrhea in your mouth, and the time to treat this disease is in its early stages. To avoid pyorrhea, one must avoid taking soft, starchy and gelatinous foods, like cake, between meals and before going to bed at night. Whenever they are taken they should be followed by cleansers such as fruit. Cleanliness of the mouth is one of the greatest means of avoiding this disease. Thorough masticating helps by increasing the circulation in the gums. If you have erred in the matter of diet in the past, the best thing you can do to correct your mistake is to maintain the habit of brushing the gums and teeth after each meal.

Good Places To Sleep

If Names Mean Anything Some Villages In England Would Appeal

A member of the Urban District Council of Kells, in the county of Meath, Ireland, boasts that "there is no town in Ireland which sleeps so soundly as Kells."

That may be a compliment to Kells, or it may be a slam at the inhabitants of the inhabitants. At any rate, it is gratifying to learn that there are people in Ireland who now sleep soundly in bed, instead of lying awake nights wondering when a knock may come to the door and they be hauled out and shot.

There is nothing about the name Kells which suggests a soporific influence upon the residents. But once in old England, a country of charming villages and delightful nomenclature, there are many places whose very names attract the sufferer from insomnia, soothing as they do, sedative surroundings.

There is a little community in England which is named Feather Bed. Then there is another called Snoring. If you have no tooth-ache, however, should not be taken to mean that your teeth need no attention. Sometimes people have teeth that are gradually undermining health which they are not suspecting danger. They reach middle age and find that not only are their teeth getting past the stage of usefulness, but their general health has suffered as well. One of the most intelligent habits one can form is a regular visit to the dentists every six months and the utmost co-operation with him when we get there.

Immigrants from Italy, Greece, and Balkan States, Poland and Germany, have fine teeth. Investigation of this factor in their lives showed that they eat a simple diet consisting of coarse foods, plenty of fruit and vegetables, and dark bread that is never eaten white it is too fresh. They do not have the same opportunities that we have of indulging in white flour and refined sugar, and they seldom eat candy. On the other hand, the Mayo Clinic examination of fifteen hundred patients shows that 87 per cent. had infected teeth, and 60 per cent. suffered from pyorrhea.

The British Dental Association reports that 95 per cent. of the English and Scotch school children have decayed teeth. We who have much more opportunity of taking care of ourselves than has the poor immigrant, find that we are second to them in the care of our teeth. There is only one reason the food we eat. Dental disease in the past has increased with the advance of civilization, and to destroy valuable constituents in our food with too much intensive cooking and refining. So it behooves us to take care of our teeth.

Teeth, properly and regularly brushed, will not decay unless sugary food is indulged in to excess. Children can be saved a lot of useless trouble with their teeth if they are properly trained in this respect. They will not crave candies unless they are allowed to have them more than is necessary

Canadian Poultry For the World's Congress

One Thousand Birds To Be Entered — Canada In the Big Event

A very fine live birds exhibit for the World's Poultry Congress, to be held in London, England, next July, is planned by the Ontario Poultry Committee, under the chairmanship of Mr. Geo. Robertson, Experimental Farm, Ottawa, has decided that the maximum of birds to go from Canada shall be one thousand.

At a meeting of the Committee recently held in Ottawa, it was decided that entries for the Congress must be made through the provincial secretaries, and must reach Mr Robertson, at Ottawa, not later than February 21. Entries received by this date will be in time to reach the Old Country office before the closing dates for entries. Provincial departments are going to provide inspection for the birds and to pay the transportation to and from Ottawa. The Federal Department will take charge of the birds on arrival at Ottawa, pay the entry fees as well as the transportation charges from Ottawa to the Congress and return.

Mr L. F Burrows, at Ottawa, is secretary of the Committee, and any information needed by prospective exhibitors can be secured from him.

Tree Owns Itself

The most distinguished tree in the United States is a tree that owns itself. It is a white oak tree in Athens, Ga. No one can buy or sell it. No one owns the land on which it stands rooted. The man who owned the tree left the provision in his will "In consideration of the great love I bear this tree and the great desire I have for its possession of itself, and all land on eight feet of the tree as aforesaid."

The Rock of Gibraltar was under the dominion of the Moors until the 8th century.

A Real Occupation

Average Working Time Of Paris Women Is Only Three Hours a Week

Politicians are disputing about appointments of remune-tainers, and there have been debates about the proper form of the questionnaires to be submitted to citizens. Now comes a lady representing the National Women's Party to protest against one classification in the census. It is that of housewives as women having "no occupation."

This certainly cannot mean having nothing to do. According to the Department of Agriculture the average working time of the farmer's wife is sixty-three hours a week. Many mothers must be busy a longer time than that. To prepare meals for a family or even to oversee their preparation, to look after bread-making and mending and darning, to get the children off to school, to make everything snug and cozy for the tired husband when he comes home in the evening—to say nothing of dress-making and clothes-mending, of washing dishes or the dog—are enough to keep even a highly efficient woman going for long hours.

Perhaps the census enthusiasts will reply that what they mean is not to include housewives among women having a "gainful occupation." But this may be regarded as adding insult to injury. Busy mothers might well protest that if they do not directly earn money by their labors, they at least save a lot and that this ought to be taken into the credit side of the family budget. In any case, women who know nothing of the eight-hour day in their homes are entitled to a respectful laugh at a bewildering census-taker who puts them down as "having no occupation." They may say that they have nothing [illegible]

Trade With U.S. Growing

Phillips Predicts Further Increase In Exports and Imports

A favorable account of trade relations between the United States and Canada was given President Hoover, by William Phillips, recently resigned minister to Canada, and former under-secretary of state. He paid his respects to Mr. Hoover prior to leaving Washington for an extended vacation in Egypt.

Phillips said he expected an increase in both exports and imports to and from United States and Canada's northern neighbor. This strengthened trade relations should increase international goodwill between the two countries, he said.

The Ladder Of Life

How Humanity Is Helped Through the Inland Welfare Work Of the Red Cross Society

Like the dream of the Patriarch of old, as he lay asleep pillowed on a stone, life appears as a ladder with many rungs by those who spend their lives in the social welfare work which occupies the peacetime program of the Red Cross Society. From the cradle to the grave the work of Red Cross touches life, say, even before life begins, the watchful eyes of the Good Mother is anxiously looking out for an opportunity to do good to the child-to-be. Then the saving of the life of life is perhaps the most important, for just here statistics show that there are certain dangers here we will never live to place their little feet higher on the stage that lead to youth and manhood. They die because of the deplorable ignorance of [illegible] should know better, and fall in the test, the parents.

Mother-like, the Red Cross has a wide program for the education of the expectant mother. Here we find that in ignorance today, when the finest mothercraft information is obtainable free to all. Pre-natal clinics and care are featured by every means available. The radio broadcasts the good news from the headquarters, that babies are born to a heritage of "life more abundant." Classes are conducted for young mothers, and for those with them lessons in life that will make living a joy when the family begins to reach out into the child and grandchildren, too, the Red Cross follows, teaching the beauty of health and the happiness that it brings. It is a work that captures the vivid imagination of childhood. On through the ladder of childhood in both the Junior and Red Cross, and when sickness comes, and sorrow because of inability to cope with the problem, the helping hand comes the valuable aid with offers of care for the crippled, and cure for the underprivileged.

Grown to man's estate and accepting the duties of the race, the travails of the children of many ladder rungs, out on Red Cross as a life-long friend, one who shares his sorrow and sufferings, administers his affliction, and at time of need can be depended on to show some silver lining, no matter how dark the clouds.

Having been served royally himself, the truly grateful citizen turns to Red Cross and offers his little part in the work himself. In many a small town one sees the busiest people finding time from their already overcrowded lives to arrange for some Red Cross event with the wheels of mercy may ever be kept turning. Sometimes it is not one turn of the wheel that is not doing a good and useful service to all those who travel up life's ladder.

Origin Of Word "Smoke."

Virginia Druggist Invented Beforehand 75 Or Got Around Law

The origin of the word "smoke" is told in the London Sunday Times: When the Blue Laws of Virginia were enforced it was unlawful to sell drug stores to sell sodawater on Sunday, although these places were allowed to sell other liquor. Shortly after the enactment, a man visiting Norfolk, entered a drug store and ordered sodawater. He was told that it was against the law to draw sodawater on Sunday, but there was no statute objecting to the sale of ice cream. As the man did not care for plain vanilla cream, the druggist suggested that he order a chocolate syrup on it. The visitor liked this so well that he came back every day in the week and ordered different flavors. After

The condition of Harry Palmer, who has been a patient at the Municipal hospital for the past month, is still such as to cause much anxiety. Following two strokes about Jan 11th, he has rallied sufficiently to recognize his friends and to read the papers. Mr. Palmer was 77 years of age last Oct., but was as active as a man of 50, his quickness and ability of movement often being commented upon. Mr. Palmer is a pioneer of what became known as the Cold Lake district, eleven miles north east of Vermilion, and it will be 25 years ago the beginning of May next that the files of this paper first met Mr Palmer while on a trip to the north. There is no one who has more warm friends than Harry Palmer highly thought of and esteemed by the people among whom he has lived from the old pioneering days on and the one wish prevails that he will yet be spared to again take his place in the community.

Forward, Canada!

Lying latent in the nature of almost every individual there is one human characteristic which comes to full bloom in times of excitement, emergency, or undue stress. It is the tendency to indulge in exaggeration. A crowd assembles for some part cular reason and the average person estimates the number at two or three times its actual size, or an accident occurs and the report is immediately circulated that the toll of the dead and injured is many times greater than the reality.

So, too, when times are good the impression becomes general that they are better than is really the case, and a "boom" is created, speculation is indulged in far beyond what the circumstances warrant, and the end is ultimate loss, and in some cases disaster. Here in the West and nations at any year may point to a fairly large and satisfactory crop yield, and the inevitable tendency is to make estimates of the yield far in excess of what the harvest reveals

Turn up to the other side of the picture, and the same thing will be found to be true. A stump occurs in business, the returns of the crop season are below the average, a degree of unemployment exists, and almost immediately the human tendency to exaggerate comes into play, and everything is painted in much more somber colors than there is any justification for so doing

This tendency to undue exaggeration is in evidence in Western Canada today to the detriment of the whole country, and to every person resident therein. Recognizing the fact that the crop of 1929 was disappointing and below the average of many years, coupled with the further fact that the burden of the loss has to be borne by certain sections of the country which has suffered little or no grain, the impression is created of a practically total crop failure, and that the country is no good. Such exaggeration ignores the splendid returns of former years, and takes no cognizance of the fact that conditions on the whole, and year after year, in Western Canada has been forging steadily ahead. One swallow does not make a summer, nor does one crop shortage, or even failure, condemn a country or provide substantial ground for discouragement and depression, any more than one bumper crop establishes the fertility of any section or justifies a "boom" and extravagant expenditure.

At this time the people of Western Canada, in city and country alike, may well give consideration to, and base their actions upon, the average of conditions. If the grain crop was smaller than usual in 1929, in 1928 it was so big that it shattered all records; if the 1929 grain crop fell below the average dairy production, in Saskatchewan, for example, increased by three and one half million pounds, a 20 per cent. increase over 1928. The degree of building construction in the West, last year, established new high records; employment was maintained at a high ratio throughout the first nine or ten months of the year, and the present slump is only seasonal and temporary, with prospects for 1930 just as bright as they were in 1928.

Let us remember that if the export of agricultural products by Canada fell off in the last half of 1929, the gre t is still in Canada to be transported by our railways and sold by our people, and the results will be reflected in the business activity of 1930. Let us be encouraged by the fact that the greatest of our great Western enterprises, the Wheat Pool, has successfully contended with a set of the most difficult circumstances. It has been put to the test, but with the united support of all Canada's banking and business and commercial interests generally, it is now quite evident that it is winning out in its great fight to protect the interests of Canada's great army of producers.

It is impossible in this world for any person, country, or corporation, to forever move forward, onward and upward. It is inevitable that periods of recession must interrupt such steady progress. The stock market cannot forever go on climbing higher and higher; it must take a drop some time. If the pendulum swings to the right so far one way, it must swing back again to balance an equil br um must be maintained. We cannot always live on the rarified heights; it becomes necessary at times to descend into the quiet and repose of the valleys.

The position of Canada, and of all Canadian industry, agricultural, manufacturing, commercial, is essentially sound and strong; stronger than that of almost any other country in the world. There is no justification for any depression, because no cause exists for it. To the extent that it is prevalent with some people it is largely a mental condi'on. Reverses have been suffered by some people in Canada as in other lands, and occasions are in the life of every one when they meet with a reverse. But a reverse is not a defeat. Courageously faced it can be turned to victory.

Vacuum-Cleaners Are Valuable In Mining

Big Aid In Removing Coal Dust and Dislodging Ill Fire Foul

Can you imagine a vacuum-cleaner being any use in a coal-mine? Nonsense you may scoff at the idea, but a mining experts don't. They have discovered that vacuum-cleaners are a big aid in removing the coal-dust which settles everywhere in a mine, and collecting it for use as fuel. Coal-dust is frequently the cause of very serious explosions in mines, and it has been proved that even in quantities so small as one-fifth of an ounce to each cubic foot of space, it may produce an explosion. And the effects of an explosion of this k nd are far-reaching —they are often at the r worst 500 to 800 feet from the place where the trouble started. Various methods have been tried to prevent coal-dust explosions, one of the most widely used being sprinkling since dust and sand on the floors of workings.

THIN-BLOODED PEOPLE ALWAYS FEEL COLD

To Withstand the Rigors Of Winter the Blood Must Be Rich and Pure

Thin-blooded people early become discouraged. They lose strength; grip, energy and vitality. Their cold, colds settle them and they find it exceedingly difficult to shake off any of these troubles. They feel chilly all the time; their nervous system becomes a wreck; they cannot sleep and life becomes a misery.

To overcome this deplorable state of affairs good blood is essential. The good blood gives warmth to the body; it carries to the nerves and does much to either prevent colds and grip or to help those already dreaded after-effects. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People build bulder—they never fail to make new, rich, red blood. They are the ideal ton'c for winter use. Concerning Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Mrs. Alex Martin, Ont., writes:—"I was very much run down and had no health and strength through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Colds failed to help me. Two years ago I felt tired all the time; had no appetite; was nervous and cold all the time. Nothing I took seemed to do me any good till I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After a short treatment with them the change in feeling left me; my appetite improved; my blood became warmer and my strength gradually increased. This encouraged me to continue the use of the Pills and now I am feel ng better than I have for years."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do one thing but they do it well: they build up and renew rich, red healthgiving blood, making weak, rundown men and women strong, active and happy. These Pills are sold by medic ne dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Fire Are Costing Canada Almost One Hundred Million Annually

Fires cost Canada approximately $100,000,000 yearly, according to a statement issued by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in an effort to introduce to chambers and boards throughout the country a campaign designed to lower this heavy charge on industry.

Business bodies have been classified into four sections determined by population, and a shield will be awarded by the chamber to each section for the organ zation showing the greatest reduction in fire loss, the most educational activity along fire prevention l nes, and the most permanent structural and protective improvements.

Origin Of Old Superstition

According to a writer in the London "Sunday Times," the superstition that it is unlucky to open an umbrella in the house has its origin 'n Catholic times, when the priest carried the viaticum to the dying person under a small canopy in the form of an umbrella, as is still done in Catholic countries today. Therefore the open umbrella in the house became associated with the idea of a death.

REMEMBER YOUR OWN CHILDHOOD Give Your Child the Finest Way SCOTT'S EMULSION

Air Must Be Cleared

Pilots Should Know Exact Location Of High Mountain Peaks

Tragic was the fate of the two Rcish airmen who crashed into the side of a mountain in Northern Africa, and were killed, while attempting to make a non-stop flight from England to Capetown.

It is a reminder that mountains are a greater danger to airmen than rocks are to seamen.

The seas have been so travelled that almost every rock in existence is known, charted, and in some way marked by a fog or night. Except for what earthquakes may do by changing the configuration of the bed of the ocean, there is probably no voyage that any ship can make without being fully prepared to avoid such rocks.

The air routes will have to be marked out in the same way. This is not the first time that aviators have come to grief through hitting mountains.

The route to South Africa is across varied terrain. These airmen may have been flying thousands of feet high and they were quite safe, forgetful of the peaks which raise their heads far into the clouds.

It is a duty passenger planes are to increase rapidly, and the pilots will have to be provided with charts which will show them how high they must fly along the routes in order to avoid hitting a mounta'n.

Record Of Flying Clubs

Canada's Airmen Had 15,466 Flying Hours Last Year

Members of Canada's 23 light aeroplane clubs flew 15,466 hours during 1929, figures released by the civil aviation branch of the Department of National Defence show. This flying time is equivalent to 1 2,893 miles, that is nearly twice that flown in 1922. Total membership of the clubs is 5.- 262. At the end of the year there were 396 solo fliers, while 183 private pilots and 56 commerc al pilots had graduated from the student ranks of the clubs.

American Farmers Protest

Enter Claim Against British Columbia Smelting Company For Alleged Damage To Crops

A meeting of the international joint commission is to be held at Washington, D.C., when the case of the claims entered by the farmers of the state of Washington against the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co., of Trail, B.C., will be heard.

Those farmers claim that the sulphur dioxide fumes from the smelter have done great damage to their crops, have destroyed the fertility of their soil and, in consequence, have caused financial loss to them. The case was heard in the state of Washington last year, when the evidence of investigation was completed on the part of the international joint commission. The smelters company have since been instructed to install a plant to prevent the fumes from escaping, which, by the Cottrel process, will extract the injurious elements from the fumes, and which will turn them into fertiliser. The success of this effort, which will cost several million dollars, depends upon the market offering for such fertiliser in the prairie prov nce.

Evidence taken before the commission last year showed that while some damage had been done by the fumes, it's was scarcely so considerable as claimed. Smelters had been cognizant of the matter for several years and had their own immediate neighborhood in British Columbia, had settled it by purchasing the surrounding land to a wide radius. This method of adjustment is impossible in the United States, however, since the state of Washington has a strict law which prohibits fumes from owning property in that state.

DELEGATES ARE WELCOMED BY CITY OF LONDON

London, Eng.—London city welcomed the delegates to the five-power naval conference, and as never before, perhaps, the old Guildhall resounded to pleas for international co-operation and goodwill. They thronged their way through the welcoming speeches of Sir William Waterlow, Lord Mayor and the replies alike of the premiers of Great Britain and France.

And in the historic hall was much that told of the city's far-flung commerce and the part it has played and played upon the sea. The calls of the trumpeters, resplendent in gold-laced uniforms, rang back to the early days of the London guildhalls. About the walls hung tattered colors of city regiments. The menu itself bore on its cover the picture of an old square-rigged ship, all sails set, driving its way out to sea.

It was the leader's need for peace that the lord mayor emphasized in his welcoming words. "The people of all nations," he declared, "are yearning for that international co-operation which will enable us to return with diligence and devotion to their peaceful vocations. The ultimate guarantee of security, individual or national, is always good."

"To play my part among the peoples of this great world," Premier Tardieu echoes, "to make them understand each other and bring them together, commerce demands that there should be no war," he proceeded.

"I address you in the name of all — Americans, British, French, Italians, and Japanese — that we are determined to succeed. We have faith, that faith which it is said moves mountains, and which, therefore—at least we hope so—will move naval armaments from the pet tions' realm to competition to the safe harbor of loyal understanding.

"We shall ensure that triumph Premier Tardieu added, "because with heart and soul we are determined to win international peace through international law; because, following on the oft-repeated advice of my eminent friend and colleague M. Briand, we seek that peace with the same creative energy which we, in the past, devoted to the cause of national independence and national security."

Prime Minister MacDonald spoke briefly. London city, he said, stood in the forefront of British commerce and industry. There was no municipality more entitled than the capital of London to proclaim such doctrines as those proclaimed by the lord mayor—that commerce and peace went hand in hand.

"There is no municipality that knows better by experience," Premier MacDonald added, "that international peace and confidence are the great foundation stones of international prosperity."

Opening Date Set Back Owing To Delay In Installation Of Lights

Ottawa.—The date for opening of the western Canada air mail has been deferred owing to delays in completing the installation of lights along the route. The severe weather of recent weeks has prevented the work from being completed, and it is improbable that the service will be opened before the end of February.

There is little chance of its taking place before the middle of February.

Habeas Corpus Writ

Application Of Harry Bronfman Granted By Supreme Court

Premier Has Consultation Suggested. By Premier King

Regina, Sask.—Saskatchewan will not agree to the commission suggested by Premier K ng in his proposals for the division of the natural resources. The Provincial Government suggests a commission of three; one chosen by the Federal Government one by the Provincial Government, and a third commissioner chosen by either the Imperial Government or both the Provincial and Federal Governments. This comm ssion would hear the claims of Saskatchewan for all alienations' subsequent to 1906.

The Provincial Government is prepared to refer its claims to the Supreme Court of Canada, subject to an appeal to the Privy Council, should the contentions of the Provincial Government be upheld by the courts. The question of the accounting between 1905 and 1905 would then be referred to the chosen commission. On agreement be ng arrived at, the question of compensation and the amendment to the constitution would then be submitted to the Provincial Legislature at an early date that it might give effect to by the Imperial Government.

FEDERAL AID IN DEALING WITH UNEMPLOYMENT

Ottawa.—If the provinces of Canada join together in admitting that they cannot cope with the unemployment problem the Federal Government is prepared to discuss remedial measures with them. Premier MacKenzie King told a large delegation from the Trades and Labor Congress.

The Prime Minister added that the financial position and some of the provinces did not indicate that they were unable to cope with the situation, especially as it appeared to be largely seasonal. Unemployment, in the first instance, said Mr. King, appeared to be a municipal responsibility.

If it became too serious for the municipalities to handle, their appeal lay to the provincial government. If the province found that it could not cope w th it, the problem became a national one, he said. The Dominion Government would expect to be asked to see it so solving it. But, in the absence of a demand by all the provinces that they were faced with a problem which they could not meet, the Dominion Government did not feel called upon to take action.

Both the Prime Minister and Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor, dealt with the unemployment q uestion. Mr. King informed the delegation the government has been pursuing a policy of keeping men employed on government contracts at work.

Both Mr. Heenan and Mr. King referred to the demand for a national unemployment conference.

Mr. Heenan insisted that he had not given the impression in his statements that he was unaware of unemployment, but that there was unemployment, but he felt the calling of s national conference would exaggerate the impression in the public mind and perhaps accentuate the situation

This was the view expressed by the Prime Minister. Mr. King made it clear that Mr. Heenan had voiced not merely his personal view of the matter, but the opinion of the government on the unemployment question.

Will Sell Power Plant

Moose Jaw Burgesses Decide To Sell Franchise To American Concern

Moose Jaw.—After a quarter of a century of municipal ownership, the city of Moose Jaw consented to the sale of its electric light and power plant to the Iowa Southern Utilities Company, Davenport, Ia., by a sweeping vote of over three to one. The number of burgesses voting for the was 2,250, and the number against, 744, a two-thirds majority being required for the by-law to carry.

By the passing of this by-law, subject to ratification by the Saskatchewan legislature, the largest power transaction in the history of the province will have been completed. Inv rohed in the offer which has been accepted by the city is a sum in the neighborhood of $3,500,000, the buying of which sum of money to be offered for any public utility in the province. The voting brings to a close one of the hottest fought battles in the city's history, the power situat on having been a bone of contention and source of bitterness for over 12 months. The Board of Trade supported the sale; the local press opposed it.

Vancouver.—The new Vancouver deep sea steamer "Tahsiyo Maru" was rammed by the United States consignard vessel "Bonham" on January 17, and has been beached on one of the Gundalouse Islands, off the Mexican coast, according to advices received by the vessels owners here. A protest has been sent to Ottawa concerning the incident.

Sealed Letter Destroyed

Lawyers Burn Envelope Containing Name Of General Booth's Nominee

London, England.—The Daily News says that the sealed envelope containing the name of the late General Bramwell Booth's nominee to succeed him as head of the Salvation Army, was burned unopened by the solicitor of the Army, in the presence of several commissioners.

The envelope had figured prom'nently in the discussions of Army affairs leading up to the removal of General Booth a year ago. Many guesses had been made as to the identity of the man whom the general believed best fitted to succeed himself.

Liverpool, England.—The estate of the late "Tay Pay" O'Connor, dean of the House of Commons, eminent journalist, statesman, prover of an Irish Parliament, has been valued at only $1,500. This was forecast by the Canadian Press at the time of his death. The gold snuff box, presented by members of the House of Commons, is left to the House of Commons. His portrait by Beacon is left to the Walker Art Gallery, here. No provision is made for his wife, but she is otherwise well provided for.

Civil Service Commissioners Promise Address To Government

Ottawa.—Serious consideration was promised by the civil service commissioners to delegates for higher salary schedules for all letter carriers presented by a delegation.

The delegation presented data showing salaries paid in comparable employment, and discussed various items in the question with the commissioners. The matter of increases in mail carriers' salaries occasioned a considerable amount of discussion in the last session of parliament. Hon. F. J. Venlot, postmaster-general at that time expressed himself in sympathy with the carriers' position, but pointed out the matter was purely one for decision by the civil service commission.

Eleven Killed In Crash

Ohio Has Fourth Bus Tragedy In Three Weeks

Cleveland, Ohio.—Ten children and a bus driver were killed at Berea, Ohio, near here, when the bus was h t by a New York Central mail train bound for Chicago, at the Sheldon Road crossing, near Berea. Three other children, seriously hurt, were taken to the Boca hospital.

Cause of the tragedy was not explained. Weather conditions were clear, and officials were unable to account for the driver's failure to see the train.

Most of the victims were small children who attended from the first to the sixth grades.

The bus was said to have been carrying between 15 and 20 children.

The crash was the fourth bus tragedy in Ohio in the last three months.

Kept Link Unbroken

Radio Engineer Used His Body As Current Splice

New York.—His arms twitching with shocks from electric current, Harold Vivian, a young rad o engineer, literally spliced with his body a broken link in the vast hook up and made it possible for listeners-in of 95 North American radio stations to hear the King's speech at the naval conference.

Just before the King began somebody in the control room of the broadcasting company tripped over the wires of the generator. Vivian grasped the wires together in his hands to restore the circuit. Leakage of current through his body in the floor shook his arms without a break, for 20 m nutes until new wires could be connected.

TO WIDEN SCOPE OF ALBERTA HEALTH CLINICS

Calgary.—State medicine is certain to be established in Alberta "and everywhere else," according to Hon. George Hoadley, provincial minister of health, speaking to the annual convention of the United Farmers of Alberta. He added he had no apology to make for the accusation that his approval of public health clinics in Alberta is the thin edge of the wedge of state med cine.

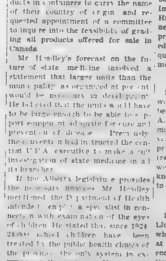
Comment from the Alberta cabinet minister followed approval by the convention of a resolution widening the scope of the travelling health clinic in order to give free annual medical examination to every rural school ch ld. Among a score of resolutions carried, was one favoring hurried completion of a Peace River rail outlet to the Pacific Coast.

The Peace River resolution urged the importance of fulfilment in the near future of Premier W. L. Mackenzie King's prom se in 1924 that the line would be completed "as far as is humanly possible." Inclusion of the farm body will be communicated to the Dominion Government, the Canadian Pacific, the Canadian National and the Northern Alberta railways. It was stated that the route was now not financially difficult, that production of Peace River area has increased since 1924, and that 10 000 new homestead entries have been made in the district in the last two years.

A trio of resolutions directed to the Dominion Government favored dominion participation in the holding of their country of origin and requested appointment of a committee to inquire into the feasibility of grading all products offered for sale in Canada.

Mr. Hoadley's forecast on the future of state medicine involved a statement that larger units than the municipality are required to provide would be necessary in developing it. He believed that the unit would have to be large enough to be able to support competent adequate for rural districts of Alberta. Previously Premier Brownlee had limited the Provincial Government's activities to giving special in ections in such matters of the eyes and children. He stated that, since 1924, 24,000 school children have been treated by the public health clinics of the province, the only system in existence on the continent. Not a single death, he said, had resulted in that time though 4,04 1 mself and adenoid operations had been effected.

Named After Premier's Daughter



Towering 9,440 feet into the sky, the newly named Mount Labbé, one of the peaks in the Canadian Rockies, has been named after Miss Isabel MacDonald, daughter of the Labor Premier of Great Britain, is located about twelve miles west of Banff in the Canadian Pa ks and overlooking beautiful Mystic Lake. The Canadian Government have paid Miss MacDonald this graceful compliment in commemoration of her own and her father's visit to Canada last Fall. The peak is visible from Massive, on the Canadian Pacific Railway, and also from the roadway between Banff and Lake Louise. Inset Miss Isabel MacDonald.

Eleven Killed In Crash

Ohio Has Fourth Bus Tragedy In Three Weeks

Cleveland, Ohio.—Ten children and a bus driver were killed at Berea, Ohio, near here, when the bus was h t by a New York Central mail train bound for Chicago, at the Sheldon Road crossing, near Berea. Three other children, seriously hurt, were taken to the Boca hospital.

Cause of the tragedy was not explained. Weather conditions were clear, and officials were unable to account for the driver's failure to see the train.

Most of the victims were small children who attended from the first to the sixth grades.

The bus was said to have been carrying between 15 and 20 children.

The crash was the fourth bus tragedy in Ohio in the last three months.

Kept Link Unbroken

Radio Engineer Used His Body As Current Splice

New York.—His arms twitching with shocks from electric current, Harold Vivian, a young rad o engineer, literally spliced with his body a broken link in the vast hook up and made it possible for listeners-in of 95 North American radio stations to hear the King's speech at the naval conference.

Just before the King began somebody in the control room of the broadcasting company tripped over the wires of the generator. Vivian grasped the wires together in his hands to restore the circuit. Leakage of current through his body in the floor shook his arms without a break, for 20 m nutes until new wires could be connected.

TO WIDEN SCOPE OF ALBERTA HEALTH CLINICS

Calgary.—State medicine is certain to be established in Alberta "and everywhere else," according to Hon. George Hoadley, provincial minister of health, speaking to the annual convention of the United Farmers of Alberta. He added he had no apology to make for the accusation that his approval of public health clinics in Alberta is the thin edge of the wedge of state med cine.

Comment from the Alberta cabinet minister followed approval by the convention of a resolution widening the scope of the travelling health clinic in order to give free annual medical examination to every rural school ch ld. Among a score of resolutions carried, was one favoring hurried completion of a Peace River rail outlet to the Pacific Coast.

The Peace River resolution urged the importance of fulfilment in the near future of Premier W. L. Mackenzie King's prom se in 1924 that the line would be completed "as far as is humanly possible." Inclusion of the farm body will be communicated to the Dominion Government, the Canadian Pacific, the Canadian National and the Northern Alberta railways. It was stated that the route was now not financially difficult, that production of Peace River area has increased since 1924, and that 10 000 new homestead entries have been made in the district in the last two years.

A trio of resolutions directed to the Dominion Government favored dominion participation in the holding of their country of origin and requested appointment of a committee to inquire into the feasibility of grading all products offered for sale in Canada.

Mr. Hoadley's forecast on the future of state med cine involved a statement that larger units than the municipality are required to provide would be necessary in developing it. WHEAT SUPPLY SHOWN TO BE ABOUT NORMAL

Winnipeg.—All through the present crop season there has been emphasis on the large stocks of wheat in Canada. The "visible supply" has been held up to the world as representing a formidable total, but seldom has any mention been made of the "invisible supply," which at mid-January was estimated to be 60,000,000 bushels less than a year ago, and considerably smaller than the "invisible" on the same date in any of the past five seasons. By the "invisible supply" is meant the amount of wheat that farmers will haul to market after taking care of seed and feed requirements on the farm.

On January 15, th's year, it was estimated that only 21,000,000 bushels of wheat remained to be delivered by the farmers in Western Canada to the end of the crop year on July 31, 1930, as compared with 82,000,000 bushels delivered in the same period in 1929, 102 000,000 bushels in 1928, 52 000,000 bushels in 1927, and 45,- 000,000 bushels in 1926. A short crop and unprecedented movement from the farm last fall under ideal weather and road conditions are accountable for the small farm reserves at this time.

Turning to the "visible supply," which includes wheat stored in country elevators, interior and lake terminals, loaded on boats for winter storage and in all other positions except on the farms, it is seen that the stocks at mid-January this year were larger by some 3,000,000 bushels than those of a year ago, but with 60,000,000 bushels less to come off the farms there is a difference of 57,000,- 000 bushels in favor of the current season.

Allowing for exports at the same rate as last year between January and July 31, it would mean that the large carry-over of last year would be reduced by that figure and that Canada would start the next crop season with less than 80,000,000 bushels carried with 120 000 000 last year, and 78,- 000,000 bushels the year before

Want Patrol Augmented

Not Strong Enough To Enforce Law Says U.S. Immigration Official

Washington, D.C. — Immigration officials want more men on horseback to patrol the Canadian and Mex can borders, and more ship sleuths to search out stowaways.

Testifying before the House appropriations sub-committee for the Labor Department annual supply bill, Immigration Commiss oner Harry E. Hull and his assistant, W. H. Wagner, pa nted the border patrol of the present in glowing colors, but declared that immigration law cannot adequately be enforced unless it is augmented.

Leavenworth Kas.—The Leavenworth Times says that a parole has been recommended for Dr. Frederick A. Cook, Arctic explorer and oil promoter, who is serving a sentence of 14 years and nine months in the federal prison here for using the mails to defraud members of the parole board would n t confirm the report, but it is known that no opposition was offered to Dr. Cook's release.

The Late Ruby Utah Cain
(AN APPRECIATION)

On New Year's morning, after a brief illness, there passed away at the Manville Municipal hospital, Ruby Utah Cain eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Cain of Manville.

When news of her very grave illness became known, sorrow and anxiety were general, for Utah had grown up hereabouts and all felt a just pride and interest in this brilliant girl whom we claimed as our own.

Coming with her parents and four sisters from Boston in 1906 when but a little child, she began her education in the log schools of the pioneer days, and completed the high school where she gave promise of the brilliant intellect, coupled with sunny ways and disposition which was so abundantly fulfilled in her mature life course through public high and normal schools and eventually winning the degree of Bachelor of Arts in the University of Alberta in Edmonton. With the securing of this degree she accepted the position of high school principal at Lloydminster where she remained six successive years when her resignation was finally accepted after every inducement to continue on the staff had been offered and refused. Her next appointment was with the Weyburn Collegiate as mathematics teacher, here her ability was recognized and, her services retained for three and a half years until the time of her death.

A memorial service was held for her the Monday following her demise in the large auditorium of Weyburn Collegiate, and the very significant feature of this occasion is to find, in compliment to her broad, excellent and intelligent outlook of the subject on world, the service presided over by the Rev. W. Cole of All Saints' Anglican church assisted by Rev. A. Cameron of the Knox Presbyterian church, Ensign H. Major of the Salvation Army and Rev Father Galvin of St. Vincent de Paul Roman Catholic church, who availed themselves of this opportunity to do homage and proclaim her great goodness which, they claimed "was like unto the Great Master."

In summing up her rare personality, we are thrilled to find her brilliant attainments ever coupled with a disposition ceaselessly revising and measuring and utterly devoid of condemnation. In the humility lay her great charm.

"The Day Thou Gavest" as she so many times held her pupils in singing or school, has indeed a brief span for these gifts so generously bestowed, have been well accounted for in world and honorable service. It is bitterly and to one no doubt, so willing and capable of immeasurable good and we mourn with her bereft family in their poignant grief—but we know sweet memories of her kind thoughtfulness, her love and helpfulness will steal into the lonely hours and bring solace and comfort.

The funeral service was held on January 3rd in the United church which was crowded to [illegible] by the many old friends and former [illegible] who came to pay their respects; the floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. The service was conducted by the Rev. H. Hart whose theme was an incentive each hour to take up our sorrows and trials bravely and triumph thus, gain victory.

Interment took place in the Manville cemetery.

Mr. Joseph Cash of Myrnam, Alberta, passed away in an Edmonton hospital on Sunday, January 26, aged 48 years. The remains were forwarded on Monday morning to Myrnam where interment will take place. (Telfordite).

RICH COAL DEPOSITS FOUND IN CENTRAL BRITISH COLUMBIA

WINNIPEG, Jan. 22.—Coal deposits in central British Columbia at Telkwa and Copper River, within a couple of hundred miles of Prince Rupert on the Pacific Coast, amount to at least 650,000,000 tons, says Frank S. Tagg of London, England representative of British capitalists, who has passed through Winnipeg on his way to England after a visit to mining properties in the west.

English interests, according to Mr. Taggart, are interested in the development of this region in British Columbia and have already instituted preliminary surveys for a railroad between Telkwa and Vanarsdol. This road would go from one point on the Canadian National Railways to another, cutting through the centre of the rich coal country.

Pending the building of the railroad, collieries at Telkwa are being pushed and an electrical plant is being installed to generate power for the Dakine-Duthie mines. It will also supply power to the towns of Telkwa and Smithers. Mr. Taggart adds that undertakings are being considered to secure bunkers and terminal facilities at Vancouver and Prince Rupert.

Country Roads Badly Drifted

Motor Traffic Is Stopped

As a result of the continuous winds of the past fortnight with frequent snow flurries, the roads in the country, including the east and west highway are badly drifted and had work were hard going even for teams. Motor traffic is almost completely stopped although an odd car is seen around town. Now that they can be put to a real test, very little is being heard of the Government's fleet of snow ploughs, but doubtless they are doing good work in other parts of the province.

Dewberry Opens First School In Orange Hall

$10,000 Brick Building to be Constructed in the Spring

The first village school was officially opened in the new Orange hall in Dewberry last week. The new Orange community hall, kindly lent by the members of the local lodge, will be used for class room until the completion of the proposed $10,000 brick school, which will be built on a seven-acre campus as soon as weather permits.

The chairman, W. . Anderson in declaring the school opened, thanked the committee of the Dewberry L.O.L. for their kindness in lending their hall for the education of the future citizens of the community. Harry Wood and Mr. Scott, trustees, also spoke at this function and Jas Cuthbertson, secretary, delivered a very practical address.

The trustees have spared no expense in the way of equipment; limit desks of the latest model, newest maps, ample blackboard space, everything of the best. The new building is well lighted, well ventilated, well heated and well located.

PEOPLE OF VERMILION AND DISTRICT

Home hockey has at last got under way, the second series of games being played Wednesday night and very good ones they were too. Wed. Oliver will again be four teams on the ice; one from the V.A.C. and three teams from the town and country. This allows practically everyone who is ambitious to play the game a chance without interfering with the quality of the game as the teams are very well matched.

We have one of the finest rinks in Western Canada and as many hockey players as the average town of this size, in fact, of anything a few more. All we lack is that utility of which every one of us should be proud is the patronage of the people of this town and district. It is of vital importance that this wonderful rink of ours receive more pat.ronage and interest from every individual in this town looking for recreation. The results are numerous — The first being that it is one of the most healthful of exercises and sport for our boys and girls. The second that even the two are not financially connected with it, its being a public Utility and you as a taxpayer or renter must have a financial interest in it.

So now, we, as the Rink Management, ask you to give us all the support that you can in patronizing a business that you might say belongs to YOU.

Remember that the 50 cents you spend to see two clean games of hockey played by boys you all know and we hope that you are interested in is not wasted, for the more money the rink makes, eventually the less you will be paying in taxes.

Let's all get together and make it a point to attend the Vermilion Municipal Skating rink every Wednesday night at least, for the rest of this hockey season and make hockey and the rink a huge success.

George Chesmas, farmer of Pearl, Alta district, is awaiting preliminary hearing at Elk Point on a charge of occasioning actual bodily harm to Clarence E. Olmstead of Elk Point while in St. Paul on January 15, according to reports received at A.P.P. headquarters. Olmstead was given medical aid for a severe cut which nearly severed his left ear, pronnced to be made by a knife or sharp instrument.

The doctor who attended the complainant, told the police that if the blow struck had been a little lower it would have struck the jugular vein and might have been fatal.

The editor of this paper has been urged to re-offer and has consented to run.

COMMISSIONER QUOTES CANADA'S TRADE RECORD

MONTREAL, Jan. 22.—Canada now holds all nations in favorable trade balance per head of population, according to a report issued by C. Pitcairn Green, Commissioner of Natural Resources for the Canadian National Railways.

The report says that Canada's export amount to $75 per capita, which is a far greater than the exports of Great Britain, and nearly four times the per capita exports of the United States and that a table covering compiled by the United States Bureau of Statistics shows that taking a number of vital factors such as industrial production, employment, bank contracts etc. Canada as a basis the average per cent increase in economic conditions in Canada is more than as great as that in the United States

Mr. Pitcairn-Green's report adds that, before 1900 no country was the leading industry of Canada with most returning two-fold as important. To-day agriculture maintains a premier position but the difference is rapidly decreasing because manufactures has increased 100 per cent since 1901, while agriculture has increased only 400 per cent.

THE ANNUAL CHECK-UP

The first month of the new year and still a few of the many resolutions made are still unbroken, how many people resolved to have that yearly physical check up, and how many have had it done?

This is the quiet month for all work, indoors as well as outdoors. The head of the house is busy with those repairs or replacements to said house and machinery that is a preparation for the busy spring and summer months ahead so why not have the human machine checked over at the same time and have any necessary repair done there? Your body can be repaired; it can never be replaced. There are no spare parts for the human body, but it does and will respond to fair play. Give it half the care that is expended on the cheapest automobile, and it will give you excellent service over a long time.

Tuberculosis and cancer, to name two diseases, can be arrested if detected in the early stages. They work such havoc of suffering and sorrow if not discovered until too late. Will you make that appointment with your Physician and take the members of your household with you. This is really important for you.

Toxoid Treatment For Diphtheria

This Health Article Prepared By the Canadian Social Hygiene Council

Our discussion of diphtheria has been divided into two parts, of which this is the second. The first emphasized the preventability of diphtheria; this will deal more fully with the nature of the disease. It is our hope that your judgment will agree with that of the best medical minds in the country—that toxoid immunization for diphtheria is one of the finest discoveries in the history of mankind, of which none should fa l to take advantage

We can classify diphtheria into three varieties

Diphtheria in the first variety begins with a slight fever, and an increase in the pulse rate. On occasions the patient feels chilled, and feels pain in the back, arms and legs. Although the throat may be sore, this is only slight at first generally signified by difficulty in swallowing. Unless checked each of these symptoms gets worse

Second variety is like the first, except that the throat is decidedly sore and the diphtheria membrane appears on the tonsils and back of the throat

Third variety begins somewhat as the first one does, but developments are apt to differ a little. The throat may be sore, but in some cases it isn't. The pulse rate may increase by leaps and bounds. There is a cough and decidedly difficulty in breathing As the diphtheria membrane forms on the windpipe, the patient has increasing trouble getting air into his lungs With each breath there will be seen a deep hollow at the upper and lower ends of the wishbone. The lower part of the chest will sink in, instead of swelling with each intake of breath as it should, and the lower part of the ribs will swell each time This is by far the most insidious form of the disease because sometimes it starts out like a very mild case. Its whole tendency is to call off the breath, and if not given immediate attention, it will

These are the stages through which diphtheria passes, and neglect is the greatest ally it has. Unless proper and prompt attention is given to the first stage, it will promptly develop into the second and th rd stages, and finally, unless proper and timely medical care is rendered, it will pass into the fourth stage, which I have not mentioned, because you all know what it is: Death.

Diphtheria alone is bad enough, but diphtheria has its successors, in the form sometimes of heart trouble, kidney trouble, bronchitis, or perhaps an attack of pneumonia.

When a child is stricken with diphtheria, it means that an organism of microscopic proportions is growing in its throat. This organism produces a poison. It is the poison or toxin which takes the life of the victim, by spreading through the system.

Two things may happen, in fact are very likely to happen, unless immediate action is taken. The first thing that may happen is that the toxin may act on the heart muscle, paralyzing those muscles, killing the victim. The second thing that may happen is that the diphtheria membrane may form in the victim's throat, shutting off the breathing.

Now as to the cause Usually you hear people saying that dirt or filth, smell or something of that kind are the origin of a case of diphtheria. But it is none of those things. In all cases the germ spreads from person to person. The germ was discovered in 1883, by two French savants named Loeffler and Klebs, and it is sometimes called by their names —The Klebs-Loeffler bacillus." The germ itself is so small that it can only be seen through a microscope, and it has all the characteristics of the k nd of germ that attacks wheat or corn in the fields As well as that, it has something in common with these plants, because it can be grown in the lab itself, like themselves. But it grows better in a child's throat

If it weren't for this germ, there would be no diphtheria. Of all the causes of death from the ages of two to fourteen years, diphtheria stands second, with accidents first. It should be the aim of everybody to put diphtheria at the bottom of the list, or wipe it off the slate altogether. The widest possible use of toxoid immunization is the way, to realize this ambition.

But I may point out at this time, toxoid must have its chance, in order that the children may have their chance. If the poison from the diphtheria germ gets far enough into the system, reaches the heart, for instance, anti-toxin is indicated under the supervision of the family physician.

Diphtheria toxoid and anti-toxin of course, have been the target of the usual abuse to which a new discovery is treated. Yet, let us consider what a man does when he has trouble with his motor car. He goes to a garage every now and then, and asks for a complete overhauling. The mechanics tell him what the car needs, and how much it will cost to keep the machine in good running order. The car-owner gladly accepts what he is told, has the adjustments made, and goes away happy.

Is that what he does with the greatest machine ever created, the human system? As a rule, no. Yet the physicians within his reach know just as much about his system and its faults as the mechanic knows about the car. They know exactly what may happen to him, and in the case of diphtheria, they know exactly what will prevent trouble from the source. Yet the man who owns the body he not, in many cases, as willing to believe the doctor who knows about his body, as he is readily to rely upon the mechanic who looks after his car.

Home Work Injures Health Of Children

Longer Hours Needed For Recreation, Says Dr. Jay B. Nash

There should be no home work given to school children until they are of "pretty well through high school" according to Dr. Jay B. Nash, director of health and physical education of the School of Education, of New York University, who addressed the Health Institute of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs and the Congress of Parents and Teachers, at the Federation's Home Making Centre, at Grand Central Palace.

He said that he would rather have children take another year to go through school if that were necessary, than the absence of home work. He also predicted a general adult revolt against too long school hours for children, referred to the desirability of time for creative activity and stressed the need for long hours of play, or "big muscle activity," as the basic foundation of a child's health.

"Power, the ability to resist fatigue and sustain effort, is built in by big muscle activity for long hours over long years, coming to a climax at the age of ten years, when a child ought to have about seven hours of play a day," he said.

Our Faithful Friends

Many Human Lives Have Been Saved By Dogs

Parkhill, Ontario, reports another example of a dog saving a family from death or serious injury. "Mr. and Mrs. English and daughter," the despatch says "were awakened by the barking of their dog. They had great difficulty in getting out and were unable to save any of their goods or belongings."

It would be interesting to know how many human lives have been saved by the means of small and hearing that our canine friends possess in such marked degree. There is no way of telling, of course, but the list would run into thousands of names. Dogs have the happy faculty of sleeping with one ear open, and it is a mighty fortunate thing for mankind that this is the case.

Plane World Flight

Harry A. Hurlel, wealthy Cleveland manufacturer, announced at Cleveland, that he would sign a contract for $160,000 Fokker plane to be used to make a record 10-day flight around the world. The Clevelander expects delivery of the plane to be made in May, and expects to hop off from San Francisco for Hong Kong, China, on June 15. Hunted, in outlining his plans for the flight, said he would carry a crew of eight.

Study Of Bird Life

Dr. Lewis Delivers Lecture At Ottawa On Cormorants

The mystery is solved as to the ridiculous birds to be told about by Dr. H. F. Lewis, of the National Parks of Canada, at the first lecture of the new year at the National Museum, Ottawa. They prove to be cormorants. Dr. Lewis lived on a forty foot boat all summer to protect birds covered by the International treaty, and got a permit to take young cormorants from their nest and rear them as pets so as to be able to study them.

One young cormorant he called Alice. She grew up on the boat tethered with a string to the rail, and so always necessarily was within forty feet of him. She never learned to find food for herself since he fed her. One day the string became untied and she got away. Was gone all day and night, but the next morning Dr. Lewis saw a cormorant coming in the sky with a string hanging from one foot. It was Alice back for breakfast. Dr. Lewis is publishing a book on these interesting birds, which tells of their history, range, abundance, migrations, feeding habits and relations to men and other animals. The motion picture, "Birds Rare and Fantastic," supplied by the National Parks of Canada, showed the cormorants in many activities.

People Reading More

Ottawa Librarian Reports Increase In Number Of Books Loaned

When the movie came into being people said it would hurt reading. When the radio followed the movie, they said it would kill reading. They are like that, the pessimists.

Well, the movies didn't hurt reading; and the radio hasn't killed it. People, in fact, are reading more than before. Thus, in his report to the Carnegie Library Board, Librarian Sykes, of Ottawa, says:

"The total issue of books for November, was 32,709, a gain over the previous month of 4,018, and over November, 1928, of 2,643. The increase was spread over every department and branch."

It is an extraordinary thing. Extraordinary that with movies and talkies, and radios, and sports, people read more and more. Books come from the publishers like flakes of snow; reviews shout everything and nothing increase and multiply; and they are all read by somebody. It is doubtful, indeed, if there ever was an age in the world's history when people read so much as they do now.

Statistical Handbook

Useful Book Issued By the Dominion Bureau of Statistics

"Canada, 1930," is the title of a new handbook just published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, outlining conditions in this country from 1900 to the present time and giving the more important economic barometers from month to month during the past year.

There are 19 chapters, dealing with: History and institutions of the Dominion, its natural resources, the national wealth and income, population, agriculture, forestry, mining conditions, education and so forth.

The handbook is illustrated with halftones and diagrams. It is designed to furnish, outside Canada, a balanced account of Canadian conditions. In Canada it is designated to serve as a sort of stock-taking of the past year, which, it is hoped, will help lay foundations for further national progress during this year.

Western Homesteads

More Than Half the Total Of Land Is Taken Up In Province Of Alberta

Canadian homesteads filed upon in the four western provinces during the calendar year ended with 1929 numbered 16,450, as compared with 14,006 for the similar period of 1928. More than half of the total, or 8,164 were taken up in Alberta, compared with 7,559 for the eleven months of 1928; Saskatchewan showed 5,788 as against 4,981; British Columbia, 836 as against 602, and Manitoba, 602, against 564.

Preserving the Totem Pole

Quick Action Must Be Taken In Order To Preserve These Interesting Relics For Posterity

Is it not time something was done about saving the fast rotting totem poles of Canada?

Totem poles are too valuable from the scientific and artistic standpoint to become private property, or to be used for personal gain.

The average person does not realize that the totem poles will not last forever, and that if they are not either put under cover, as in museums, or treated with preservatives they will soon be things of the past.

If the people of British Columbia, or Canada, will not, or cannot save from decay the totem poles of the province they should be glad if reputable museums, even of foreign countries, such as the United States, Sweden, Japan or Argentina, save them in their museums for posterity.

In 1923, the National Museum of Canada loaned its archaeologist to the Totem Pole Preservation Committee of the Dominion Government to take charge of totem pole preservation in British Columbia for the sake of science, art, and the preservation of valuable tourist attractions for the Canadian National Railways — the only railroad in the world from the car windows of which totem poles can be seen. With the co-operation of Mr Henry Thornton and other C.N.R. officials, he worked three seasons at it, saving about thirty totem poles, most of them at Kitwanga where the trains stop for tourists to walk through the Indian village. Meanwhile the C.N.R. no doubt got more valuable advertising and publicity from the work than its small cost, and the museum got more than a thousand photographs, motion pictures and much valuable scientific data. Little or no such work has been carried on since. The poles need inspection every two to five years, and perhaps two weeks of oil preservation.

But there are still more than ten poles neglected and rotting in sight of the car windows and seventy within 15 miles of stations on the C.N.R., all of which can be reached by automobile from those stations. Some of these are rotting fast. Some have already fallen.

Last year the C.N.R. put on a tourist boat to Queen Charlotte Islands, where the best totem poles of all are found. These are neglected. There are twenty-three at Yan passed by the steamer. Some of these had fallen in 1919, when the archaeologist saw them. One beautiful tomb he since has tried to buy for the National Museum through an Indian, Alfred Adams, of Masset. He thought the tomb too deteriorated to stand packing. It might be hardened as was done with the totem poles at Kitwanga and Hitchiss Gyen. There are many more Haida Indian villages on the Queen Charlotte Islands, most of them abandoned, from which any one can steal the totem poles. We should treat those on the tourist route, as they will last.

The most unique and best examples should be saved first in the Provincial Museum of British Columbia, secondly in the National Museum of Canada, and then if these cannot care for all, British Columbia and Canada should not be "dogs in a manger," but let, as implore, other Museums to help us. The C.N.R. steamships which touch and in the Skeena Valley the eighty odd neglected poles might be saved in situ as tourist attractions by the C.N.R.

Switzerland makes millions out of tourist traffic mainly on account of no great number of archaeological monuments, great ruins, castles, or cathedrals to attract tourists. What she has will come in time to be highly prized, and future generations will blame us, if we let such treasures go to decay. They will blame the first archaeologist, little dreaming how little he could do with only one pair of hands.

Interested In Canada

British Manufacturers Are Looking To This Dominion For Expansion Purposes

"The interest of Great Britain in Canada as a manufacturing country is fully aroused," said C. W. Rowley, member of the Toronto Industrial Commission, upon his return from Europe. Mr. Rowley, while in Great Britain, had interviewed a number of industrial leaders and gathered an impression that a number of branch plants will be erected in Canada by British firms in 1930.

Great Industrial Expansion

Survey Shows Growth Of Canada's Wage Earning Army

During 1926 and 1927, Canada's wage earning army was increased by 15,507 and industrial plants increased by 296. The greatest growth economically and industrially was in Ontario, with Quebec and British Columbia close behind in the march of progress.

These figures are disclosed by an industrial survey report compiled by the policy holders' service bureau of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, which co-operated in the work with the National Electric Light Association.

The report shows that a large percentage of branch plants established in Canada were backed by United States investors.

Ontario made the greatest total industrial gain of any of the provinces, acquiring 99 new plants, employing a total of 8,047 workers. The province showed a gross loss of 28 plants employing 1,975 persons.

Quebec had a gross gain of 71 plants employing 6,149 workers and a gross loss of 9 plants employing 385 workers.

British Columbia had a gross gain of 60 plants, employing 1,423 workers and a gross loss of two plants employing 120 persons. Fourteen branch plants were established in the province, all of which were branches of Canadian firms.

Of the 42 new local plants which were established in the 33 cities covered by the survey in the prairie provinces, 12 were in Alberta, two in Saskatchewan, and 18 in Manitoba.

The Grading Of Beef

Canadians Approve Of Effort Put Forth To Improve Qualities

The devotees of the custom of eating what is sometimes designated as "good old English roast beef" and who rejoice in "juicy joints," and "succulent steaks," will be delighted to note that the Dominion Live Stock Branch has inaugurated a policy of grading beef throughout the Dominion.

Those who are fond of good roast beef will certainly approve of every effort that is put forth to improve the quality. Of course there are meat shops that make a specialty of catering to high class trade in beef, but the complaint is very general that good beef is too difficult to obtain, and the supply too inconstant. The people of Canada will certainly support the authorities in their determination to grade food products and to enable the consumers to make sure that they are obtaining supplies of good quality

Contrary To General Opinion

Sleep Does Not Seem To Be Panacea For Every Ill

Jay E. House, writing in the Philadelphia Public Ledger, says: "My own panacea for most ills is sleep, and plenty of it. Having been annoyed all night by a severe and body-racking cold, I decided to sleep it off. In pursuance of that program, I slept 14 hours on Friday night, 12 hours Saturday night, and 13 hours Sunday night. When I arose toward noon on Monday my cold was as bad as ever."

"Thereupon I decided to vary the treatment. I devoted almost all of Monday night to high-stepping society. In doing so I disregarded nearly all of the rules made and provided for those suffering from colds and, in the end, slept only three or four hours. When I arose Tuesday morning I felt greatly refreshed and my cold had virtually disappeared."

AUTOMOBILES GAIN THROUGHOUT WORLD

Indicative of the progress automotive transportation is making all over the world is the fact that, exclusive of the United States, registration of motor vehicles has increased 16.5 per cent in the last year. While there are only four countries in the world that have as many as a million automobiles, the total number of passenger cars, motor trucks and buses in operation in all nations is reported at 22,000,000.

The Solomon Islands, in the south Pacific, has the smallest registration with but two motor cars in the group. Next to the United States, New Zealand has the greatest number of automobiles per capita, the figure being one for each 8.8 inhabitants.

Canada is third with one car to each nine persons.

Last year European automobile makers produced nearly 600,000 cars and trucks.

Reduce the Acid

Sick headache, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid promptly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless tablespoonful neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disappointments.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggist.

Sunlight and Health

Ultra-Violet Rays Are Necessary To Life and Health

Have you ever noticed your hens where a board or flower-pot has lain for a few days. The grass will be pale, low and will eventually turn white or die. It is the lack of sunlight and the ultra-violet rays which are necessary to the health and life of plants as well as human beings, animals and birds.

Poultrymen have discovered that the ultra-violet rays of the sun prevent leg weakness and other diseases, and promote growth in a marvelous way. Unfortunately ordinary glass does not allow these vital rays to pass through it with the red and other rays which we know as sunlight. However there is a glass substitute called "Windolite" which is flexible and yet unbreakable and that allows full penetrat on of these important sunlight rays. Within the past few years egg. turkeys were difficult to raise in confinement, but with the use of "Windolite" which is especially made for the purpose, they thrive as well as in natural sunlight and get a splend d start in life before being allowed outside, especially when the weather is cold and wet.

"Windolite" is now being used extensively all over Canada for poultry houses and dairy barns as well as sun rooms, and in hospitals, and sanitariums where sun baths are a regular part of the treatment of certain diseases.

What Year is This?

May Be Even Later Than We Are Dating It

Although the past year is recorded as 1929, it may really be, says an article in Tit-Bits, 1923, or even later. The fact is indicated by a reference to an eclipse of the moon. Bible history says that Christ was born dur'ng the reign of Herod the Great. But Herod died in the spring of 4 B.C., the next date being fixed by a lunar eclipse which took place in September 5B. before death. Obviously, therefore, Jesus must have been born not later than 4 B.C., and possibly earlier, as Herod had no definite knowledge of the date of Christ's birth. It fixed the year, month, and day of the month prefer'ably. Astronomers are able to calculate the dates of past eclipses as accurately as those of the future, and we have determined the very day and hour of the eclipse that ushered Herod the Great out of this life.

Farm Production in B.C.

High Record In 1929

Value of farm production in the province of British Columbia totalled $61,000,000 in 1929, a new high record. The increase over 1928 was $3,000,000. Prosperity was distributed over every branch of agriculture and horticulture. The fruit industry, the centre of which is in the Okanagan Valley, and the output valued at $8,-250,000. Dairying showed an advance and the total value of products was $12,500,000. Returns from poultry were more than $6,000,000, an increase of nearly $300,000 over the previous year.

PUTTING GOD'S KINGDOM FIRST

Golden Text: "Seek ye first His kingdom, and His righteousness; and all these th'ngs shall be added unto you."—Matthew 6.33.

Lesson: Matthew 6.1-34.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 146.1, 2, 7-13.

Commentary and Comment

Genuine Charity, verses 1-4. — "To therefore most be perfect, even as your heavenly Father is perfect" are the closing words of Chapter V. of Matthew our lesson of last week. The citizens of the new kingdom must exceed the Scribes and Pharisees in righteousness. Matthew next records Jesus' words about almsgiv'ng, prayer, and fasting—three forms of good works of which the Pharisees boasted. Jesus emphasized the fact that righteousness is a transaction between man and his Heavenly Father, and into it no thought of what others may say or think should enter. Almsgiving, charity, that is genuine will not be given in order to receive the praise of men.

Genuine Prayer, verses 5-8.—The Jews had stated times for prayer, and wherever a man was when the pray-er hour arrived, there he stood and prayed. Some there were, hypocrites, Jesus called them, who deliberately planned to be found at prayer at the is conspicuous places in synag-ogues, and at street corners. It was the appearance of righteousness that they coveted. Not the righteousness itself; they sought to gain a reputation for piety just as Ananias and Sapphira tried to gain a reputation for generosity and "got more" for their land were "no" from possessing either quality.

Verily I say unto you, They have received their reward in full," and is the man used in drawing up receipts. They have received the full reward which they sought, they have been seen of men, they have no claim whatsoever to any further reward.

You can best talk to your Father in heaven when you are by yourself. When you pray, counsels Jesus, shut out the world and shut yourself in with God—go into your inner chamber, your secret place where you can be alone with God, and having shut the door, pray to your Father who is in secret. For Nathaniel the prayer under the fig tree; for Peter it was on the housetop. Jesus, Himself, made the mountainside and the garden H's closet, the place where He would have privacy to commune with God. Jesus is not disparaging public prayer, which He elsewhere commends; He is but emphasizing the need of sincerity wh ch private prayer affords.

And the Father who seeth in secret shall recompense thee.

Royal Bank Annual Meeting; Assets Exceed Billion Dollars

The annual meeting of shareholders of The Royal Bank of Canada not only marked the close of the most successful year on record, but was rendered especially interesting by constructive addresses delivered by Sir Edward Wills, president; C. E. Neill, vice-president and managing director, and Morris W. Wilson, general manager.

Sir Herbert, in addressing the shareholders, pointed out that in spite of the losses incurred by thousands of investors throughout Canada and the United States, the strength of the business structure is such that there is no reason to look forward to more than a moderate recession in business during 1930.

Dealing with conditions in Canada, Sir Herbert stressed the fact that neither the prospects in foreign trade nor the situation in Canad'an industry, trade and agriculture, warrant pessimism concerning the outlook for the coming year.

Industrial Advisory Council

After dwelling on the success obtained by President Hoover in securing the active co-operation of industrial leadership throughout the country in the recent crisi's, Sir Herbert urged that it would be to the advantage of Canada to establish a non-partisan Advisory Council, composed of men of outstanding ability, representative of industry, agriculture and labor. This council would be free from any fear that its recommendations were influenced by political considerations.

Influence Is Growing

English-Speaking People Are Found With Great Opportunities

Less than 175 years ago there were only 12,000,000 English-speak ng people on the planet, or bet ter than 1-50th the population of France. In 1790, there were still but 16,000,000, while there were 30,000,000 in the United States, and much of the African and Asian. Their prospects for growth were unparalleled. Never before was the world so closely approached by any other language group, for Canada, Australia, and South Africa were rapidly destined to become populous powers. Taken collectively, the different nations and commonwealths have practical command of nearly half the world's surface and more than half its resources are available. Their sense of unity should equal their pride of power, and if they rise to their responsibilities their influence will indeed be potent.—New York Herald.

This merely con'nues the practice of annually adjusting the obligations of the farmers who have enjoyed the advantages of seed-grain distribution, a return relative to which is automatically tabled in the House of Commons near the beginning of each session.

L. P. O. Noel, agent of Dominion Lands, at Winnipeg, is authorized to act in Mr. Matheson's place in any particular instance.

Restless Children

Children will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always one sure way to comfort a restless, fretful child. Castoria! Harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than some powerful medicine that is meant for the stronger systems of adults.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is any need. In cases of colic, diarrhoea or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. But it has everyday uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; one does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any fever upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed to set everything to rights. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

The Singing Fool

By Maurice Dunn

Copyright, 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Al Stone, singing waiter at Blackie Joe's New York night club, marries Molly Winton, a ballad s nger, not knowing he is ready to leave Broadway, a little cigarette girl. After Al wins fame as a composer of popular songs, Molly elopes with John Perry, taking her baby, Junior. Al, broken by his loss, becomes a derelict, but is saved by Grace Carol. Molly obtains a divorce. One s gh, while Al is appearing in a Broadway show, he is called to a hospital by Molly because Junior is dying. After his boy's death Al breaks down on the stage while trying to sing. Months later he recovers from this blow. Then he and Grace are married at the Little Church Around the Corner.

CHAPTER XXXII.

Grace came out of the church door proudly, leaning on Al's arm, to face the news photographers who had, somehow, learned of the event. The cameramen did not have to tell Grace and Al to smile. Their faces were radiant. When the ceremony was over they stepped into a limousine and went whirling up the Avenue among the fantastic skyscrapers that seemed to Grace all rosy and pink against the deep blue afternoon sky.

. . . And later?

Spring days came and the mellow approach of summer. Up and down Broadway and in all the cities, towns and hamlets stretching across the continent they were singing the songs Al had written—new songs that reflected the happiness of his new life with Grace.

Grace and Al lived in a tower apartment in one of the new Fifth Avenue buildings, forty floors above the roar of the city streets, with a little balcony that was like a hanging garden of Babylon. In the long early summer twilight Al and Grace could stand on that balcony and look down on the most fabulous c ty of any age. The rivers twined their silvery way on both sides of the island of Manhattan, the great liners came in from the sea, and Broadway at night cut, like a yellow streak, diagonally across the island.

"How strange to find me here," whispered Grace softly one evening, as she snuggled against Al's encircling and protecting arm. "I who worked at Blackie Joe's so long, and lived in the canyons, and saw the sky only in small patches. Now I'm on top of the world."

"On top of the world," Al repeated, tightening his arm about her waist. "Yes, that's where we both are, and that's where we're going to stay. But not in the canyons."

"Why not, darling?" Grace turned to him qu'ckly.

Al's smiling eyes grew serious. "Because—well, I've been thinking Gracie, I don't want us to stay around Broadway too long. Broadway's all right, and we've acquired it — thanks to you — but there are other parts of the world."

"That's true, Al. Do you want to go some other place to live?"

"Yes, why not. Yesterday, when the show closed, I told Marcus I was through with the stage. No, more burnt cork make-up, no more singing — that is, not professionally. I want to devote all my t'me to song writing, and I can do that anywhere. So—how about California?"

"To live?"

"Yes, to live. Do you think you'd like it?"

"I'd love it!"

"Then that's agreed." And Al leaned over and kissed Grace. "We'll live in California and when, ever we want to come back to Broadway we can. It will be new to us and we'll have a swell time seeing the sights. And if we want to go visiting to the Alps, or to India, or China, or the South Seas—we can. In fact, we'll go anywhere your little heart desires."

Spring days, summer days and two figures, small in the distance, standing on that high balcony, talking in whispers of their love and their life in the future, which seemed to stretch before them like a silver highway melting into the mist. And then . . .

Night on Broadway once more, with the expensively garbed affluent theatre crowds drifting into the Club Rumbo. The name was the same, but there were new owners, and a new master of ceremonies.

The jazz band played, the dancers swayed, and the master of ceremonies exhorted everybody to be friendly and have a good time. When the music ended and the couples sa" the floor the master of ceremonies looked about for a celebrity to introduce. Finally he found one and caught the attention of the crowd.

Ladies and gentlemen, he called through his tiny megaphone, "we are especially honored tonight by the presence of that famous star and songster . . . Broadway's 'Singing Fool.'"

Al and Grace occupied a table against the far wall. As the spotlight shot across the room and found them, Al rose slowly in response to Grace's urging. There was the old roar of applause that had greeted him so many t mes in this place, and calls for a speech and a song. He raised his hand and the room became silent.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he began, "as most of you know, this is where I laid my first taste of success as master of ceremonies. So it's only right I should come here to say goodby. As I bowed to you, so shall I now out. To my pals and the place that treated me so kindly I have only the best in my heart.

"Somebody once said, 'Go west, young man,' and I'm taking that advice. Broadway's been both my menace and my playmate. Tonight we are parting—friends. I'm going west accompanied by the little girl who has stood by me so loyally, Grace Carol Stone—my wife!"

Once more the thunderous applause and once more Al's raised hand, requesting silence.

"I don't want you to think I'm giving up song-writing. I shall continue to write songs and someone else will sing them. And folks—if any of you come to California I want you to visit Grace and me. You'll find us not in a little gray cottage, but in a forty-two room chateau by the blue Pacific, with a Jap valet and a polo pony or two. If we're not in, the butler, or the second man will tell you where to find us. . . . . May you sleep well and laugh in your dreams. Goodby."

The crowd liked Al's humorous speech, for in the applause rose, demanding a song. "Sing to us, Al," they called. "Just once, for old time's sake."

Al turned to Grace: "What shall I give them?"

Grace blushed a' ghtly. She had been thinking of a song she wanted to sing, but she didn't know whether she should muster up courage to ask him. Bit finally she said:

"Al, do you remember the first ballad you ever sang—here at Blackie Joe's?"

"Of course I do. But I shall sing it to you as well as to them."

He walked across the room and stood beside the piano, just as he'd stood that night four years ago at Blackie Joe's. Grace saw him confer with the pianist, then turn to face the audience. Then the famil ar music came toward her, with Al singing the words—the poignantly appealing song of a child.

They seemed to come winging straight to Grace in the stillness of the big room, and when Al ceased, a hush, words that had once meant pa n to her. She knew she would never forget how he had sung them to another woman—Molly—while she, Grace, had stood against the wall at Blackie's club, her tray of cigarettes before her and her eyes fixed on the handsome young singer, in complete adoration. Now she had suffered that night, knowing the man she loved was pouring out the song of his heart to another.

Again the song ended in a moment of breathless suspense, to be followed by rapt applause. Al, slowly wending his way among the gay drinkers and diners, who reached out to shake his hand and pat him on the shoulder, finally reached Grace.

"How was it?" he asked, his eyes aglow with love for Grace.

"Marvellous!"

"Grace," he said softly, "it's your song. All yours!"

When the audience had turned its attention to the floor show Grace and Al slipped out of the club. They strolled arm-in-arm down Broadway. Above their heads was the the rarnie-dation of many-colored l ghts and still higher the soft and friendly twinkle of the stars.

World-Wide Survey Of Film Industry

Statistics Compiled At Geneva Show $4,000,000,000 Invested In Moving Pictures

A total of $4,000,000,000 is now invested throughout the world in the moving p cture industry according to statistics just completed by the International Labor Bureau, at Geneva.

So great is the number of employees engaged in the industry that the International Labor Organization has made a world-wide survey of the industry as a basis for proposing future international labor conventions regulating the work of movie employees.

According to the statistics just compiled, the movie exhibition was given December 28, 1895.

Of the $4,000,000,000 that have since been invested in the industry about half the sum belongs to the U.S. concerns where the industry ranks third after foodstuffs and automobiles.

As regards employees, the United States actually leads in the industry with 225,000 workers; 30 000 supers, and several thousand artists.

The British industry also employs 4,000 workers; the French studios give employment to 1,000 workers, I-taly and Germany to 4,000 supers, while in England about 70,000 people earn their liv ng from the industry.

Fashions and Freedom

Men More Concerned Than Women About Correct Clothes

That all women are, as a matter of record, terribly exacting in matters of style in dress and "the latest thing," and all men are sublimely indifferent to them, is a theory that a part of the esteemed human race that has a more mortal terror of being seen in habiliments that are not what "they" are wearing it is certainly the masculine half. Because the style of men's clothes is based on the idea of lack of change is no valid argument that there is a fundamental psychic difference. The code is different, that's all. That men have achieved the t me-saving idea of an unchanging mode is, anyway, largely a matter of luck, more than careful planning

Little Help: For This Week

"All things work together for good to them that love God."—Romans viii 28.

O what a load of struggle and distress

Falls off before the Cross! The fever ish care,

The wish that we were other than we are

The sick regrets; the yearnings unbefits—

The thought, "this might have been," so apt to press

On the reluctant soul; even past dea pair

Past sin itself—all, all is turned to the fair

And sweet and meet by the Aye! to a scheme of ordered happ ness.

So soon as we love God

—Chauncy Hare Townshend.

Those who love God will find all things working together for their good Every-thing helps them, as sunshine and storm, summer or winter, helps the tree Whe the sun shines warmly, the tree opens all its buds and leaves and drinks in the warmth and grows When the cold storms of winter beat upon it, it withdraws into itself, and shuts its pores, and tightens its hold by the rocks, and hardens. So when all things are pleasant in life we enjoy them gratefully, and expand in God's sunshine with thankful heart- When disappointment and trial come we learn to be patient, trusting, submissive hopeful firm, and true, and that is good for us also.—James Freeman Clarke

Meeting Well Attended

The annual meeting of the ratepayers of the town, school district and hospital board held in the municipal hall last Friday night was attended by some sixty people, being a decided improvement over previous years. H. W. Harper occupied the chair and while the closest attention appeared to be given to the proceedings of the evening, discussion was not general. The financial statement for 1929 submitted showed that in face of the poor year and general financial stringency accompanying it, the town had pulled through creditably. The public utilities carried themselves but are confidently expected in the near future to become a source of considerable revenue. The receipts for the year totalled $142,247.11 and expenditures $140,762.70. Unpaid taxes carried forward to the new roll for 1930 showed $6,780.76 on municipal account and $6,5.77 on school account. Liquid assets over liabilities at 31st December were about $9000.00.

Mayor Fallow in reviewing the year's business, dealt with the general financial depression and poor crop season which had reflected itself on Vermilion finances as well as other centres; this accounted for things not going as smoothly as was anticipated a year ago. In face of this the town showed liquid assets of about $9000.00. It was the first time in seven years that the town had to resort to a bank loan, the reasons assigned being an cold town and grid system heat and electric light accounts. If collections were not made it was just possible that there would be a reversion to the condition of several years ago and it was the intention to take action at the next session of council to collect these accounts. No further loan would be obtained from the bank until the present one was paid back. In regard to poor light, the mayor stated that unless the distribution system was balanced they cannot get results and this would continue until the whole distribution system was remodelled and made uniform. He was still optimistic as to the future and was unbeatable to realize what advantages he ahead of us. He had received enquiries in January from two large manufacturing concerns looking for suitable sites in the West, and what they demanded this point possessed: representatives had already looked over the situation and their location here would mean a big boost for the town. The mayor hinted that they might receive another offer shortly for the power plant and a project offered for a natural gas supply: he was still of the opinion that it would be a great mistake if the offer was considered favorably. A gas well could be put down here in the near future, as there was no question of the supply and from facts obtained from a geologist, the cost is about $50,000 or three per cent for bill of costs less of our heaviest consumers — the C

N. B. and Agricultural school. In connection, reference was made to the milk question, the local plant being highly recommended and prices comparing more than favorably with those prevailing at outside points.

The mayor and council were given a hearty vote of thanks for their administration of the affairs of the town during the year.

The financial statement submitted on behalf of the school showed total receipts including delinquency being a monthly to $64 665 and the disbursements to $67,580. The chairman of the board J. W. G. Morrison, in his statement announced the introduction of a commercial course in connection with the high school beginning with the fall term. He also stated that negotiations were proceeding looking to the establishment of courses in agriculture and domestic science. What the board was aiming at was to give to the students as practical a course in secondary education as was possible. During the year a room had been appointed to the public school staff in effort to give pupils more individual attention. It was running quite a success. The library was also looked after by the school board, were tendered a vote of thanks

A New Hope For The World

The five-power naval conference is to assemble in London, England, as this article is written. It is a momentous gathering, fraught with great possibilities for the good of all mankind. Assembled around the conference table are leading statesmen of Great Britain, United States, France, Italy and Japan, the five greatest naval powers in the world. The British delegation also includes representatives of the self-governing Dominions and India.

The problem confronting these eminent statesmen is to find some basis of agreement whereby a stop can be put to further competitive building of ships for warlike purposes, and, if possible, to provide for a substantial reduction in the number of on sting ships by scrapping some now in commission and providing that there shall not be replacement of others when they become old and obsolete.

Be worded, the average man would be inclined to say that it should not be a very difficult matter to reach an agreement, but the problem is by no means so simple as it seems to the layman. One country places greater reliance on huge battleships than does another country, others desire many fast cruisers of moderate tonnage, others feel their necessities call for larger cruisers, some want a great number of submar nes, while others are prepared to outlaw them altogether Great Britain is ready to abolish both submarines and the huge battleships, and carry on with cruisers of moderate tonnage. The United States is agreeable to the outlawing of the submarine, but still feels the necessity of the big ship. France is opposed to abolishing submarines. And so it goes.

And there is something to be said for each contention. Great Britain has colonies and coaling stations, oil and supply depots all over the world. The modern battleship must contain within itself all the requirements for defence of her great shipping and commerce. But other countries, lacking such re-fuel ng and supply depots, feel the need of larger ships, carrying greater quantities of fuel and supplies, if they are to be forced back to home ports too frequently. France is convinced that the submarine is her great arm of naval defence inasmuch as she cannot hope to compete with Britain and the United States in the building and maintenance of large battleships and cruisers.

However, the conference is a hopeful sign of the desire of the nations to lessen the burden of armaments and consequently to decrease the possibility of war. One thing is certain, and that is that the people in all countries are extremely anxious that the r leaders should succeed in reaching some substantial agreement that will result in a decided reduction in the tax burden of taxation imposed for these huge armaments; it is their sons who are withdrawn from productive employment to man the navies, and undergo intensive train ng for possible future slaughter.

The most hopeful feature of the present conference is that it has been preceded by conferences between the nations at which efforts have been made to find common ground, to iron out differences, to allay old suspicions. The conference may not achieve all that might be hoped for and desired, but if it marks a further advance on the work of the Washing ton Conference of some years ago, much will be gained, and the way be paved for further reductions and understandings in another few years. Then step by step will progress be made.

An indication of this better understanding has already been evidenced by the visit of Hon. Ramsay MacDonald to President Hoover, and the co-operation now existing between the two great English-speaking nations in the cause of world peace. Further evidence is supplied by the general tenor of editorial comment in the press of the two countries, by expressions of their public men, and articles in magazines and the more influential publications.

An example of this willingness to consider and appreciate the other fellow's viewpoint and position, instead of ignoring or m srepresenting them, is found in a recent issue of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin. It states some home truths for its United States readers. To quote in part:

"The salt water, I believe, is free of all, in peace, within that jurisdiction—the British—where it was formerly the custom to enforce Britain's records the peaceful world, so far as her writs ran, complete mari ne freedom and equality, even within her own ports and coastal waters. Her pr ctice was the same as others as to British Foreign ships may take part in her coastwise trade.

"Her broad theory in that connection, under whatever flag it may move, holds out some hope of profit to the greatest contemporaneous searing peoples. No other nation is of like m nd—not the Italian, not the French, not the Japanese, not the American. Our coastwise trade, for example, is reserved rigidly for vessels of American reg stry, and none other may ply between our home ports and those of our overseas territories."

Recognition of th s broad liberty accorded to the shipping of all nations by Britain, as contrasted w th the narrower policy adhered to by all other great naval powers, thus openly presented to the readers of a great United States paper, is an indication of that better and more cordial feeling towards Britain now so ev dent in the neighboring republ c. It is because such better feelings do exist, and are growing stronger, that hopes for the success of the present naval conference are so high.

Discover Cancer Serum

Two San Francisco Surgeons May Make Important Contribution To Medical Science

Discovery by two San Francisco surgeons of what they call a "cancer killing serum" is announced today. It became known that medical agencies of the University of California have started to co-operate in further experiments with the substance.

The co ginators, Dr. Walter Bernard Cosby, chief surgeon of the Southern Pacific Hospital, and Dr. John D. Hamber, his colleague, specified that the serum was not to be regarded as a cancer cure, but asserted that it was able to kill cancerous tissue.

The serum is derived from the cutaclyn of the adrenal glands of sheep.

Race For Supremacy In Flying Atlantic

English, American, and Canadian Concerns Are Planning Routes

A race for supremacy along two air lines over the Atlant c Ocean, one via the Arctic and sub-Arct c, the other over a seashore dotted ocean route, has started within the next year or two, aviation officials in Canada believe.

Authorities at Ottawa see possibilities in the northern route wh ch would make Canada eventually the skyway over the commercial traffic of the eastern and western world.

Three different concerns, one in Canada, one in England, and one in the United States, are at present investigating the possib lities of regular transatlantic air service which would carry passengers, mail and express.

The American concern is now engaged in the construction of a full sized seadrome, a giant movable raft on which aircraft will be tested off the southeast coast of the United States, in 1930 In Canada, Warren Schloat, an industrial engineer making his headquarters in Winnipeg, is conducting a route from Winn peg to Baker Lake, across Baffin Island to Greenland.

In England the Royal Geographic Society has announced its intention of organising an expedit on to study conditions along a proposed route which would carry aircraft across to northern Canada, down to Edmonton and then through to Vancouver.

In all three plans exposure, it is thought, will prove the main consideration. The cost of placing seadromes across the Atlantic would be enormous, while that of equipping and maintaining adequate airports in the barren reaches of northern Canada on the Greenland ice cap and through the sub-Arct c Islands would be equally or nearly as great.

Trapper In British Columbia Discovers Bones of Ancient Miniature Dirigible

John Sandberg, a trapper in Cold Creek district, about 50 miles southwest of Fernie, B.C., is reported to have made an unusual find while patrolling his trap line. The discovery is claimed to be an eight foot miniature dirigible or airsh p in almost every detail like a large airliner. Inside the tiny cabin was a small glass receptacle with a note giving a name and a Toronto address which is the point of embarkation of the airship, and requesting that the party finding the tiny craft should report fully, describing the territory where it was found.

A reward of either two dollars and 50 cents, or $250, is reported to be payable to the d scoverer and Sandberg is said divulging the Toronto address until he has communicated with it.

The direct air line distance between Toronto and the point where the balloon was found is at least 1,000 miles.

Rumor monstrosity, wh ch in former days was the most important and richest in Russ a, was blown up with dynamite to make room for a gigantic new World workers' club and "cultural centre."

Five thousand red workers carried away the debris; each pledging himself to remove one stone and throw it into Moscow River. This act on followed the recent conversion by Communists of the famous St. Isaac's Cathedral, in Leningrad, into a huge anti-religious museum. The handsome bells of the cathedral were so wealthy that the authorities had to convey them lakeward in the bellries.

More than a score of other churches in Leningrad and Moscow are now in process of demolition and are being replaced by commercial buildings, schools, and workers' clubs. In one case, a provincial church was turned into a circus, and in T flis, the profits from musical chimes bells were used to establish a menagerie.

Right Hon. And I am not sure that the political mass f nomenon is not more terrifying than the military formation." No doubt many other public speakers would endorse this. The Hon. Commissioner Speaks On Favorable Trade Bound

Canada can look with optimism to favorable trade balance per head of population, accord ng to a report issued by Dr. Price-Green, Commissioner of Natural Resources, for the Canadian National Railways.

The report states that Canada's exports amount to $125 per capita, which is a third greater than the per capita exports of Great Britain, and four times these the per cap ta exports of the United States, and that a table recently compiled by the United States Bureau of Statistics shows that, taking a number of vital factors such as industrial production, employment, construction activities, our loadings as a basis, the average per cent. increase in economic production for Canada is five times as great as that in the United States.

Mr. Price-Green's report adds that, before 1900, agriculture was the leading industry of Canada, with manufacturing two thirds as important. Today agriculture maintains a premier position, but the difference is rapidly decreasing because manufacturing has increased 900 per cent. s nce 1901, while agriculture has increased only 400 per cent.

REQUEST OTTAWA TO ASSIST WITH RELIEF MEASURES

Winnipeg. — The government of Canada will be approached by a delegation from western Canada, seeking cessation of agricultural depression, it was decided at the closing session of a two-day parley representing civic, provincial and municipal politics in the west. Among the deputation's requests will be formation of a scheme of unemployment insurance and decision by the Dominion Government to bear a share of unemployment relief expend tures.

An inter-provincial and Dominion conference should be called at the earliest possible moment for consideration of some Dominion-wide scheme of unemployment insurance, the conference decided. It was pointed out that 1 Dominion conference had approved the scheme, but that few officers of the Crown had opined that under the British North America Act the Dominion Government cannot inaugurate such a plan.

In the opinion of the meeting, the Domin'on should bear one-third of unemployment relief costs, on the basis of governmental control into in 1921 and 1922, and confirmed in 1924; provinces and municipalities, or cities would divide equally the other two-thirds. The Dominion administration has contended that their stand was based on the agreement of the Imperial authorities, by which unemployment was labelled a provincial matter, but the conference held that the relief situation was not parallel to that now existing.

Every city from Lake Superior to the Pacific coast was represented and pronouncements from the parley attended from British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Unable to agree on a question as to the open ng of the Alberta legislature, Premier J. E. Brownlee telegraphed that he would attend. Hon. Hugh Hannan, Minister of Labor, stated that he would bring the conference's requests before the provincial cabinet.

Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King has stated that the Dominion Government is not prepared to reconsider the unemployment question, with a view to remedial measures, if the provinces of Canada join together in admitting they are unable to cope with the problem.

Delegates will return to their respective areas and ask the bod es they represent to agree that unemployment be met by all. The delegation will then notify Mayor Ralph H. Webb, Winnipeg, of their intention, as he will call a meeting of the delegates to the cap tal. Governments of the four pra rie provinces, as well as of Ontario, will be approached to despatch representatives as members of the delegation.

Copy Was Clever Forgery

Expert Investigated So-Called Draft Of U.S. Declaration Of Independence

Toronto.—Faint pencil marks discovered by a hand-w ting expert left no doubt that the so-called draft copy of the United States Declaration of Independence, now in Toronto, was a fraud, says the Mail and Empire in a news story.

"One of the cleverest forgeries ever committed," said the expert whom he had completed his investigation. A powerful magnify ng glass brought into evidence hand pencil markings about the strokes of the writing, says the paper. These markings indicated, the expert says, that the signatures and been carefully drawn then inked in.

MAY EFFECT BIG REDUCTION IN NAVAL STRENGTH

London, Eng.—Rt. Hon. A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, told the House of Commons that Great Britain would have strength in naval estimates for the coming ten years would depend on the results of the Five Power Naval conference.

Asked what was the increase required for the next two five-year periods of the naval estimates would result from fixing the strength of cruisers at fifty, he replied: "There are at present 54 British cruisers built, and four others in the various stages of construction.

"The effect on the British estimates of fix ng the total at fifty cruisers depends on the size of the cruisers laid down and the type of ship to be built to replace those that become obsolete.

"The decision on these questions depends on the conclusions of the naval conference."

According to figures that Mr. Alexander gave to another questioner, the saving in the British naval estimates for the next six years would amount to more than £53,000,000. If replacements of battleships as provided in article 20 of the Washington Treaty were deferred until 1936.

Mr. Alexander also told a question that decision as to proceeding with the three submar nes remaining on the British 1926 naval program would be taken after the London conference had been concluded. The program originally provided for six submarines but three of these were later cut out.

The recent cancellation of two British cruisers was of no great significance, Mr. Alexander told a questioner who asked the reason for the abandonment and the effect of the decision on the unemployment situation.

The suspension of work on these ships," he said, "was decided upon by the Government on July 1st, for reasons of high pol t cy fully set out in a statement the prime minister made in the House of Commons, June 14. As very little work had been done on these ships on that date the recent decision to regard them as cancelled is of no material importance and was taken in connection with the framing of the navy estimates.

The first lord of the admiralty said it had not been necessary to reduce dockyard employment in consequence of stopping work on these and other ships.

Canadian Scouts Contingent

Governor-General Willingdon Thanks All Those Who Helped To Make Jamboree a Success

Ottawa, Ont.— Success of the Canadian Scouts' contingent who took part in last year's Jamboree, in England, was due in large measure to the generous aid of Canadians, said the chief scout for Canada, His Excellency the Governor-General.

"To the generous subscribers in all parts of Canada to the special fund I personally raised for this purpose," said Viscount Willingdon, "I wish to express very grateful thanks, and also to the various individuals who subscribed sums for individual boys, which largely increased the numbers of our contingent. I wish to thank, too, all members of the executive of the association here at headquarters for their loyal, devoted work, very particularly the members of the Jamboree committee of Sir Robert Falconer Wallace, Lieut.-Col. Sherwood Lett, and Soloway, Mabie and Company, Ltd.

Voluntary action was taken, it was pointed out, because of the unsuitability which at present exists in the stock brokerage trade, and, because at present there was no means of ascertaining the exact status of affairs.

Attorney-General W. J. Major, K.C., refused to name the firms whose bank accounts had been tied up at the order of the municipal and public utilities commission, and would not state into what new offices auditors had been ordered. As yet, no act on has been brought against any Winnipeg firm or branch by provincial authorities.

Vancouver, following a special meeting of members of the Stock Exchange, an order was issued to liquidate from several quarters, Consolidated Stobie, Pershing-Matthews Ltd. to cease from trad ng on the local market.

Traders for Bellway-Mills were withdrawn by the company from the Winnipeg Stock Exchange yesterday. It was denied that any suspension had been ordered, and affirmed that the move had been voluntary.

Attorney-generals of the western provinces are unanimous in their opposition to the co-operative forced joint action by such-as provinces of the Dominion looking to uniformity in legislation. Only British Columbia, Alberta and Manitoba, have agreed to attend a national conference when and if it is called. Saskatchewan, though in accord with the idea, will not be able to attend a parley, owing to the coming session of the legislature.

At Calgary, Isaac W. Sullivan and Harvey Mills, heads of the Bellway-Mills' organ zation, in police court appear at preliminary hearings on five charges of fraud and conspiracy.

UNEMPLOYMENT ASSOCIATED WITH POOL POLICY

Winnipeg, Man. — The Canad an wheat pool's policy of holding wheat for higher prices has helped to create the serious unemployment such as exists in Canada, Mayor Ralph W. Webb, of Winnipeg, stated recently. His comment made at the western conference on unemployment from the pres ding chair, drew pronounced opposition from several quarters.

"I have not attacked the wheat pool in any shape or form," commented Mr. Webb in answer to criticism of his stand. "I am commenting only on the pool's present policy which the pool has the legal right to practice. I hope it proves to be right.

"Hundreds of thousands of men have been laid off by the railways as a result of the pool's holding policy," he continued. The unemployment in his first resume of the unemployment situation. He mentioned that the facts that the 1928 crop was not yet paid for, and payments on the 1929 crop were yet to come, had additional items tending to cause unemployment.

Canada should turn an eye to the United States, where "building programs" have been directed in valleys nat Great Britain, Mr. Webb he stated. He mentioned figures of the United States to hold up Britain on beef, oil, cotton, rubber and tobacco, and rebuked Britain for moves to develop other resources.

Australia and the Argentine have quadrupled their wheat yields within one and seven years respectively, the mayor held. Manchuria was producing 21,000,000 bushels more per wheat was grown six years ago. India has doubled her wheat yield in the last 8 years. Italy and France, the former nearly a wheat producing country, were now nearing almost all domestic requirements he said, and Germany ever an importer, was now exporting wheat to Britain."

Subsidized grain-growing methods 4,000,000 or 5,000 000 acres, put into new production in Britain, would be the result of backing the British, Mr. Webb forecast.

We must feel that the governments backed a bill to do it with the present policy, stated Mr. Webb referring to the wheat pool's stand and that they will bear very close investigation."

Mayor John W Hair, of Saskatoon, named the three principles he heard from the attack on the wheat pool made by Mayor Webb. He mentioned that Saskatoon is proud of being the centre of Canada's greatest pool province and even stated that he considered the wheat pool had done far more to create employment than to cause unemployment.

Strong protest against Mayor Webb's statement came from Ben Lewis of Brandon, Man., a director of the Prairie Farmers of Manitoba. "These operative organizations have come into existence through necessity," stated Mr Lewis. "The farmers are not to produce grain at a loss and insisted on a living wage. It is because agriculture is in such a low state that the whole country is suffering. Pull cities come out into the west, talking of prosperity, while the very cause of the prosperity — the farmers — are almost awfully stricken.

Almost unanimously, at the opening of a western "jobless parley" called in Winnipeg, they stressed the gravity of present conditions, forecast early aggravation of the situation, and opined that the Dominion Government should aid in unemployment relief.

MOVE MADE TO CHECK UP ON STOCK BROKERS

Winnipeg.—Across the prairie has sounded repercussions of the arrest of 10 Toronto brokers on charges of conspiracy to defraud. In Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia, developments occurred in the move to check up on brokerage house activities throughout the Dom n on.

Manitoba took the most drastic action of the day in the West, attacking bank accounts of unnamed brokers and adding to the list of companies under survey by province-appointed auditors Early in January, the Manitoba Government instituted an audit on the Winnipeg office of Stobie Forbes-Matthews, Limited, and Solloway, Mabie and Company, Ltd.

Voluntary action was taken, it was pointed out, because of the unsuitability which at present exists in the stock brokerage trade, and, because at present there was no means of ascertaining the exact status of affairs.

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER COMPANY'S TRACTOR SCHOOL

The International Harvester Company held a three-day tractor school last week in the W. E. Mackenzie & Sons showroom. This school is put on by the Company every year under the direction of Mr. J. B. Fairweather who has been connected with them for the last twenty years.

Owing to the bad roads and poor crop conditions of last year, the attendance was not so good as expected, nevertheless there were about twenty-five farmers who took advantage of the lectures given by Mr. Fairweather and the stockman of this territory, Mr. Geo. Wright. Both of these men are thoroughly familiar with the Company's products and gave very interesting talks on Tractors, Drills, Threshers, etc. One of the features of this year's program was movies pictures; in all 10 reels were shown. These were very interesting. "The Making of Steel" shown on Wednesday afternoon was of particular interest as it showed the smelting of the ore, the making of steel from the ore, and then the making of a tractor. With the co-operation of W. E. Mackenzie & Son and Jos. McKay, local representatives of the Company, a very successful school was held.

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM CREELMAN and HEINSBURG

Mr. Wheeler, who recently underwent an operation in the Elk Point hospital, has returned home.

A small addition and kitchen lean-to are under construction at Heinsburg.

Mr. Kerson, who has been confined from an attack of appendicitis, is slowly recuperating.

The bridge gang are tightening up the ferry cables along the river. Sounds a "wee bit" like winter.

The telegram slide at Heinsburg is being patronized by young and old.

Miss (Nurse) Ehlich, who has been visiting her parents, has returned to Edmonton.

We are still growing in numbers; we now have 36 on the roll. We tried our pitching tents. All Brownies will please remember to bring balls next Friday. Miss Lipsey is kindly coming to play for us, so we will have a musical afternoon. Remember to bring your dish washing tent mates.

The Brown and Tawny Owl discussed limiting our numbers, but have decided, as there are so many who will be moving up to Guides in September, it will be better to have an assistant Tawny Owl when necessary.

"Talkies" Getting Flattering Reception

Drawing Patronage From Large Territories

The Columbia Theatre talkies are getting a fine reception from movie fans and are proving right up to expectations. Manager Pilkie has received numerous compliments from out-of-town patrons who have been to various other theatres and it appears as if the "talkies" here are on a par with the city theatres, and much superior to those in other towns. Further it is, that the theatre here is drawing crowds from a very large radius, which no doubt will increase when the roads open up in the spring. The "talkies" will do much to keep Vermilion a shopping centre as well as an amusement centre for a very large district, and deserves the solid support of all townspeople.

Quebec Boys Juveniles — Crime Rises 60 Per Cent

CHESTERVILLE, Ont., Jan. 28. — So-called reformers who blame motion pictures for increases in juvenile crime have a real task cut out for them in trying to explain the fact that in the province of Quebec, which has only previous in the Dominion that prohibits children of 16 years or under from attending film theatres without parents or guardian, there has been an increase of 60 per cent in crimes by children in the past year. Figures to bear out almost astounding shows has been in force for exactly that period of time!

Here and There

The largest passenger liner into the port of Saint John in 1929 was the Parisian, of 5,549 tons; second to the 20,000-ton Duchess of York to but one of her "Tourbus" ships during the port, said Hugh A. Allan, founder of the Allan Line of Steamships, on landing at Saint John recently, and commenting on the growth of the port. He was certain it would continue to grow in the future as it had done in the past.

There is a boom market in Snapper for breeding silver foxes which will absorb all that Canada has to offer for many years, is the view of J. E. Wedlock, of St. John, now engaged on the Duchess of York, who has been spending some time in Sweden where he established a fox farm stocked from his farm on Prince Edward Island.

Sponsored by Hon. R. Randolph Bruce, Lieutenant Governor of British Columbia, and under direction of Harold Eustace Key, musical director for the Canadian Pacific Railway, the second annual community festival has just been held at the Empress Hotel Victoria, with great success. Artists of international repute took part in the revival of the arts, the theme that more song was written and enshrined by true crown on land the Seven Seas.

During the five years that the Canada Colonization Association has been under the control of the Canadian Pacific Railway, it has settled 4,270 families on 864,000 acres of land, at a purchase price and cost of equipment of more than $23,000,000, it was announced by W. R. Neal, general manager of the railway's western lines, speaking at the first annual meeting of the Saskatchewan branch of the Association held at Regina recently.

A vast amount of serious work is being done among coast natives from the Arctic to the Atlantic, according to Dr. C. Donnelsmey, director of the Canadian Pacific Railway's department of development, stated in a recent interview at Winnipeg. A number of barrels of oil had been taken from points Canada last year and new supports were good for greater production in 1930, he added.

Seven Canadian Pacific special trains will be required to carry 2,000 enthusiastic members of rotary to Quebec Province and Ontario points this week when they are coming to the conventions of rotarians which is to be held at Ottawa February 1-5. Two special trains will be required to carry the delegates from these centres and two more for Hull from Montreal.

Another new Canadian Pacific steamer took to the water recently at Glasgow when the new Empress of Britain, 42,000-ton vessel for the British Columbia to Orient ferries, was launched from the yards of the Fairfield Shipbuilding Company at the Govan on the Clyde. R. B. Bridges, Canadian C. P. R. Marine superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The ship can reach a speed of 24½ knots, will have sleeping accommodation for 600 passengers and day accommodation for 1,240.

Rich deposits in the mineral belt of the Province of Saskatchewan have an annual value of over $600,000, it was announced recently. Among the principal kinds of fur caught are gold-rose, beaver, pickerel, pike, sturgeon, muskrat, trout, lullibee and white fish.

Churchill Now Experiencing Its Last Lone Winter Before Advent of New Era Next Spring

Churchill is in the chill midst of its last lone winter. Except for some 30 men—and a single woman — every resident at the Government owned Bay port has moved out to the south. The last scheduled Nanking Limited puffed down to The Pas in early December and now the mail is "mushed in" twice a month by dog team from Gillam, at Mile 227.

A skeleton force at Churchill is retained by the Hudson Bay Railway which completed the first laying of steel to the harbor 511 miles northeast of The Pas last March, and by the Department of Railways and Canals. But all railway construction and dock labor is at an end for several months. Three men remain at the government radio post, and one at the telegraph office; the Hudson's Bay Company trading post continues its work; and Rev. H. A. Gillmore and his wife reside at the Anglican Mission.

Otherwise the settlement at the mouth of the Churchill River, where 2,000 men toiled last summer, is abandoned to the chill winds lashing down from the sea.

In all probability, however, the Bay port of the West will never know another season of lifeless desolation between autumn and spring. It is certain that the opening of the settlement to the public, planned for next spring, will mark the beginning of a record of at least partially permanent residence at Churchill. Undoubtedly, ingress to the end of the Hudson Bay Railway steel will be closely scanned by the Dominion Government but a new town will begin to take form when the way is opened to prospective settlers.

The fact that harbor construction work is not expected to reach completion until sometime in 1931 will not prevent a hurried surge of new citizens to Churchill. As yet, under government ruling, these hardy pioneers establishments alone have marked the arrival of commerce; numerous applications, however, for permission to set up establishments which might flourish on the trade of homeward residents busy at the harbor, have been received.

Divers considerations, no doubt, have influenced the government in the decision to supervise closely the settlement's early civic development. Housing accommodation at present is sufficient only for those busied at railway and harbor work; and, under existing conditions, water supply and sewage problems yield to but temporary solution. When Churchill assumes the status of a town, it is expected that these difficulties will have been solved.

As a harbor, nevertheless, Churchill has not been neglected by nature. Before it empties into the Bay, Churchill River swells in the shape of an oval bottle with its neck to the sea—a ready-made port. Besides projecting landhead and an island shelter the opening so that storms from little south on the inner harbor, enclosed as it is by rocky shores which rise in some cases to a height of 70 feet.

Along one side of the Churchill River runs the Hudson Bay Railway, remaining almost to the tip of a narrow point projecting out into the bay. It is behind base of this point, formed of rugged rush ridged by the moraine, that the terminus, no doubt, will be located; and it is on this side of the river that the government is constructing the harbor works.

According to the report of Frederick Stupart, British engineer retained by the Dominion Government in 1927, in advice regarding the suitability of Nelson and Churchill as harbors, the harbor capacity can be easily increased by a little dredging to accommodate as many and as large vessels as ever will be likely to plan entrance to the port.

In the West, Churchill is looked on as a new port, but in reality its history goes back into the distant past of early Canadiana. Munk, the Danish explorer, is believed to have wintered at Churchill in 1619, more than three centuries ago. Trading vessels of the Hudson's Bay Company sailed into the Bay more than 250 years ago, and without Churchill as a haven soon after their early voyages.

When Fort Prince of Wales, a mass of ruins across the river from the modern tangle of incipient dock construction, is not "old" as the history of Churchill goes. It was almost two centuries ago, during the years from 1733 to 1744, that the Hudson Bay Company built the huge stoned fort at the mouth of the Churchill River. But 25 years before the completion of Fort Prince of Wales, the company had constructed Fort Churchill. Erection of the original stronghold came after the Treaty of Utrecht, in 1713, established Britain's claim to the Bay territory, for the French raids had persisted long after the incursions of d'Iberville, late in the 17th century, temporarily robbed the Hudson Bay Company of almost all its posts.

Even if Churchill rises to prominence as a Canadian port for Western trade, it cannot lose its place of historic significance in Canadian annals. Even when imports rush in through the Bay to the mouth of the Churchill River, even when prairie wheat surges along the Hudson Bay line and outward to Britain and Europe during the harbor's ice-free period, the gaunt ruins of Fort Prince of Wales, and of the old harbor battery at the river point across the river will remain among the Dominion's history marking sites.

This Cow a Dairy Herself

Five Year Old Holstein-Friesian Cow in a Week Record

"Canary Korndyke Alcarita," a five-year-old Holstein-Friesian cow, which in a year ago claimed the world's championship as a butter-fat producer with 26,306 pounds of milk containing 1,- 000 pounds of butter-fat in 305 days, has beaten her own record. Following her 1929 record this famous cow was the guest of honour at a banquet in Moose Jaw. The latest record for "Canary Korndyke Alcarita," is 30,- 000 pounds of milk with 1,324.25 pounds of butter-fat. Freshening in October, 1928, she got away to a good start early in her lactation period, and maintained a steady flow averaging well around 100 pounds a day for several months. Her best monthly production in butter-fat was 114.60 pounds, produced in May, with April, 113.48 pounds, running a close second.

This cow was bred by Fred V. Heeney, Ingersoll, Ontario, and sold when yearling form to S. G. Sims, Winnipeg, who in turn transferred her to R. S. Sims, Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, under whose supervision she made several records. Last year after finishing her world's record she was purchased by the Saskatchewan Government for $10,000

"Canary Korndyke Alcarita" was sired by King Korndyke Dairlemont Keyes, is rated as a gold medal cow, and has produced two sons and one daughter.

British Columbia Minerals

Record Production For 1928 Promises a New High Record

The gross value of the mineral production of British Columbia for 1928 creates a new high record, being estimated at $70,000,976, an increase over 1928 of $4,000,203. Output of metallic and structural materials increased, while that of coal decreased. Higher prices for copper and lead as compared with those of 1928, account for much of the rise in values. For the first time in the history of the province the copper production exceeds 100,000,000 pounds.

Reproduce Hotel in Sugar

A large model in sugar of the great Canadian Pacific Hotel at Toronto, the Royal York, forty-two inches in height, has been made by Harry Astley, chief confectioner of the Hotel "Empress of Scotland." The model was exhibited at the Confectioners Exhibition, London, England, this month.

Forest Area Of Canada

Back Five In New Used Exclusively For Railway Ties

The forest area of Canada is estimated at 1,351,454 square miles. Of this area 665,580 square miles are productive and accessible; a little more than one-third of this area bears timber of merchantable size and the remainder carries young growth not yet fit for use. It is also noted that jack pine is now used more than any other wood for railway ties on account of its natural strength and its adaptability to creosoting treatment.

Great Britain has doubled its use of electricity within the past six years.

Encouraging Sheep Industries

Manitoba Department Of Agriculture Distributing Breeding Stock To Beginners

Reports from the livestock branch, Manitoba Department of Agriculture, show approximately 140 head of rams distributed to breeders, mostly beginners, who received even from the Dominion Government Pacific Coast, from recent importations. Of this number about 70 are Shropshires, 53 Oxfords, 12 Suffolks, and six Hampshires.

Ancient Egypt looked to Arabia for the chief supplies of perfume material.

Closely Related To Marquis

In Two Years Reward Wheat Captured World's Championship

Emerged wheat, a hard red spring variety with which Joseph H. H. Smith, of Wolf Creek, Alberta, won the world's championship at the 1929 International Grain and Hay Show, Chicago, is closely related to the famous Marquis wheat. It was developed from a cross between Marquis and Prelude, in 1912, at the Canadian Government Central Experimental Farm in Ottawa, with the hope of developing a variety that would combine the early ripening habits of Prelude with the greater productiveness and better straw of Marquis. The cross resulted in several exceedingly interesting and promising combinations, one of which received the name of Reward. This new variety, as it now exists, matures in less than one hundred days from the time of seeding, or about fourteen days earlier than Marquis takes to mature. Reward produces an excellent quality of flour and gives an appealing kernel. The straw is of medium length and excellent strength. It was first released to farmers in western Canada and elsewhere in commercial qualities in 1926, and within two years had captured the world's championship.

Champion Duck At Work

The Prize Won Of Saskatchewan University Keeps Up Record

Lady Victorine, the world's champion hen, is back at work. After completing her year's record of 356 eggs she laid 16 more eggs before commencing to moult on September 27 last. Saskatchewan Experimenters are recording such temperatures as 42 below zero, but this Barred Rock lady, who lives on a farm at the outskirts of the University of Saskatchewan, started in last week and is again laying her daily egg.

Professor Baker commented on the size of the eggs this hen is producing. After one small preliminary egg as a try-out, the seven eggs produced during the past eight days have averaged five grains each over the standard for her weight.

A request was received from the committee of the Madison Square Garden Poultry Show, at New York, for the loan of the hen as a special exhibit. It was refused however, that it was undesirable to send the hen to the show as the university wish to obtain as many chicks as possible from such desirable breeding stock.

Much Ado About Nothing

"For 10 years, 10 long and lean years," cried the writer, "I have been composing this insane drama." A word here, a line there, working on it until my fingers were cramped and aching, my brain and body weary from the toil.

"The end, too fast," the reviewer sneered unsympathetically. "All work and no play."

Hydro Development In West

With four large undertakings at present under construction, which will ultimately provide 445,000 h.p. hydro-electric development in the Prairie Provinces, there are indications of expansion in industrial activity for 1930 and 1931.

"The plot thickens," said the old lady as she moved the grass seed for the lawn.

Soon Be Over

Northward into the Canadian West there is a steadily increasing migration of men and women from the United States. Continued long enough this may make up for the loss of population during the past century of Canadian citizens to the great republic.

It may not be so misled in United States school books, but the soil of Canada has played a part directly or indirectly in furnishing the United States with some of its greatest citizens.

In a little churchyard in Norwich, Oxford County, Ontario, rest some of the maternal ancestors of President Herbert Hoover. In the early days they fled from the rocky fields of a Pennsylvania farm to take up land in Canada. Near Norwich, on soil that was not the best, they struggled on for many a year. Then the news of free land in Iowa caused Hoover's grandparents to yoke up the oxen and head west. Their journey over the lot of these fine Quaker people. Is it any wonder that President Hoover now receives with sympathy the pleadings for assistance of the farmers of the United States?

President Hoover's people left Oxford County for Iowa about the time that Thomas A. Edison got a job as telegraph operator for 20 miles north of Norwich at Stratford, in the County of Perth. It is 50 years since Edison invented the incandescent lamp and it is said that he neglected his routine work in the railway station at Stratford to carry on his experiments in electricity.

In the seventies a boy ran away from Victoria, British Columbia, with a circus. His name was Jew, who had met disaster in the Cariboo goldfields, mourned for David Belasco for many a day. Then David, who was supposed to be dead, turned up very much alive. He lived to become perhaps the most famous name in the history of the American stage.

These are but three examples of famous citizens of the United States who have often referred to the influence upon their lives or the lives of their parents of the early navigating air of the Dominion of Canada. A complete list would include probably scores of names, among them such notable figures as the late James J. Hill, builder of the Great Northern Railway, native of Guelph, Ontario; the late Franklin K. Lane, minister in Woodrow Wilson's cabinet, from the Maritimes; and Captain Robert Dollar, shipping magnate, of Scottish origin, but for many years a logger in the Ottawa Valley Vancouver Province.

Horses Were Poisoned

Water From Abandoned Wells Was Responsible For Loss Of Animals

In Eastern Saskatchewan

That a poison of which seven drops killed a 1,400-pound horse in three days is produced by bacteria in old wells in Saskatchewan, has been discovered by Dr. J. S. Fulton, professor of animal diseases at the University of Saskatchewan. In one district 36 miles square, from 75 to 100 horses have been lost this winter. On one farm 8 out 14 horses died. Losses have been commonest in the south and west of the province. Attention was paid to the water supply where outbreaks occurred and it was found that in each case old wells had been used owing to the particularly dry season. Although the wells contained water which appeared fresh, bacteriological examination showed the presence of virulent strains of botulinum in three out of four wells.

The bacteria isolated from these waters when grown in the laboratory, reports Dr. Fulton, produced a poison that will kill seven drops killed a 1,400-pound horse in three days

Small quantities of the water itself caused death in a few days

Important Factor In Airplane Of Future

Manufacturers Turning Their Attention To Providing Safer Means

Much is expected of what has now popularly described as a "tool proof" aeroplane that has come into existence with an award of a prize of $100,000 following an exhaustive series of tests at Mchel Field, outside New York City. The conclusion of these tests and the awarding of the prize is held to mark another forward step of great importance in aviation. Quantity production of a high speed machine was the natural consequence of the main digit of Charles L ndbergh. From New York to Paris and it is only w thin a comparatively recent period that aeroplane manufacturers have turned their attention to the element of safety as an outstanding important factor in the aeroplane of the future.

There has been no divulgence of the details of the perfo mance of the winning plane beyond the fact that it has a maximum g ieting speed of 20 miles an hour. That a machine can land along at what is a medium rate for a motor car and calm when amazing advances have been made in the safety of aeroplane operation. And it may be assumed that once the aeroplane is so made that its operation is approximately as safe as the motor car, people will take to the sky in much larger numbers than at present.—Regina Daily Post.

A Valuable Discovery

Carbon Monoxide Stoves Can Be Changed Unless Professor Of Chemistry

The announcement from Johns Hopkins University that a means has been discovered to eliminate carbon monoxide from motor exhausts comes at a moment when the health department of nearly every large city is concentrating on this problem. Health officials of New York City recently began analyses of the a r in the city's streets, seeking the carbon monoxide content, as a preliminary to some kind of a protective or remedial campaign.

Here and in other cities was the mounting record of hundreds of deaths annually, and numerous medical testimony that these accumulating poisons were fouling the air and endangering public health.

Dr. J. C. W. Frazer, Johns Hopkins professor of chemistry, discoverer of the method which makes a closed garage safe for democracy, has for many years been known as one of America's foremost authorities in the field of catalysis, and it was by the use of a catalyzer that he learned how to eliminate carbon monoxide. Catalyzer, the chemists explain, is a manager and introducer which brings together other substances.

Carbon monoxide, issuing from a motor exhaust and occasionally killing somebody, must be fed oxygen or oxygen to become as harmless as a church warden. This oxygen was available in the air, but wasn't even on speaking terms with carbon monoxide.

Dr. Frazer's catalyzer lured an atom of oxygen from the air, teamed it up with the carbon monoxide and the resulting carbon dioxide was safe for breath ng. One may close the garage doors, turn on the engine, go to sleep and wake in the end to tell the tale.

The catalyzer—and Dr. Frazer does not tell what it is—like the old time bartender who never took a drink. It sets up new chemical relationships, but never takes any part in them.

Explanations and Comments

The Golden Rule, verses 12.—All things therefore whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, even so do ye unto them also. The Golden Rule shows the meaning of the "therefore". Since God is so good to us, we must be good to others. "If in these words Jesus sums up the teaching of Israel's chapters," said Martin Luther, "and ties them all up in a little bundle." For this is the law and the prophets—the Mosaic directions into which the Jewish writ'ers were divided. "Verses to a certain extent this was a current phrase, equalled all that was necessary; but, no doubt, seriously meant; therefore it may help us to understand the statement in verse 17, that Jesus came not to destroy (abol sh). The Golden Rule was Law and Prophets only in its literal sense, and in the same sense only was Christ a Law and Prophet.

Distinguishing False From True Leaders, verses 13-20.—Beware of false prophets, warned the Master. They come to you in sheep's clothing, inwardly they are ravening wolves. Especially are they ravening wolves, rapacious workers of evil. The lamb or sheep was the symbol of innocence and harmlessness. The wolf of all evil of evil. "It was a time of religious excitement, the Jews of certain Jewish, the deep fountains of the soul burning forth; these the crowds who followed John and Jesus, and the disciples after Pentecost. Through days of Heaven suffering violence (Matt. 11:12). Such times call forth true prophets and false, glorious and religious sympathy with prevalent errors. Jesus, here, bel ed on Himself for their own advantage to gain or influence, men of the Judas type."—Rev. R. Bruce.

How shall the impostors be recognised? By their fruits, said Jesus. Character is revealed by conduct.

Thousands Pay Radio License

Prairie Provinces Are Well Up In Number Of Owners

For the first time since radio broadcasting commenced, more than 300,000 owners of receiving sets in Canada have paid the annual license fee of $1 this year. Of these, 1,000 are located in Ontario and over 60,000 are in Toronto. Not all the people who own radio sets pay the dollar, in fact, it is known thousands dodge the tax. By provinces the number of licensed receiving sets is now as follows: Ontario, 146,663; Quebec, 49,780; Prince Edward Island, 900; Nova Scotia, 2,883; New Brunswick, 4,141; Manitoba, 18,728; Saskatchewan, 23,000; Alberta, 14,323; British Columbia, 23,961.

The Minnet's for Norwalgia.

The letters of the English alphabet have been given to the Alberta civil staff, Ottawa. The creation of such an out-door museum would serve as a monument to the prehistoric animals roamed parts of Canada mill ons of years ago, the official thinks and would, he argues be an attraction to tourists travelling the railways.

Sir John Aird Reports Views On World Markets

Sir John Aird, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and wife to the Pacific relations conference, has returned after a four months' trip to Egypt, the Orient, France and Great Britain. He remarked mentions must be made by all the component parts of the British empire if the goal of inter-empire trade is to be realized. Trade between the Orient and Canada should be greatly stimulated and would be equally beneficial as a result of the Pacific relations conference. China and Japan were near an unlimited understanding of their immediate needs, Canada could meet certain of a great commercial field, those were none of the convictions expressed by Sir John on his return to Canada.

"Trade between Canada and Japan and China has been grow ng steadily for the past few years," he said. "the result has been mutually beneficial. Japan is regarded highly as a wheat producing country and our produce is regarded highly in both Japan and China. Japan is also a good market for machinery and clothing."

Tablet in Memory Of Arthur Hunt Chute Unveiled

"That Canada may remember Arthur Hunt Chute, author, soldier, gentleman, who gave the Canada of his day a realization of its heritage and a vision of its future, a sample of the north. On September 22, 1929, he was killed flying northward."

The above is the tribute appearing on a bronze tablet presented to Acadia University, Nova Scotia, by Toronto author and editor Arthur Hunt Chute, who was killed when the plane in which he was making a trip through the north crashed at Lake Manitoba. The tablet was unveiled by R. Napier Moore, Toronto magazine editor.

When Food Sours
About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomach, gas, heartburn, indigestion. It is because the stomach nerves have been overstimulated. There is a reason acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.
The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a tablespoonful in a glass of water. It is pleasant, efficient, and harmless. It has remained the standard and wide approbation in the 50 years since its invention.
It is the quick method. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use uncertain, slow means.
Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggists.

Tablet In Memory Of Arthur Hunt Chute Unveiled

"That Canada may remember Arthur Hunt Chute, author, soldier, gentleman, who gave the Canada of his day a realization of its heritage and a vision of its future, a sample of the north. On September 22, 1929, he was killed flying northward."

The above is the tribute appearing on a bronze tablet presented to Acadia University, Nova Scotia, by Toronto author and editor Arthur Hunt Chute, who was killed when the plane in which he was making a trip through the north crashed at Lake Manitoba. The tablet was unveiled by R. Napier Moore, Toronto magazine editor.

CHAPTER I.

Dudley Howe, Wickfield's retired and venerable physician, stopped his car before the old Davis house, as he a girl who was vigorously pedaling the sidewalk by the wide front door turned from the porch with a low stepfather and swerved a great leg. The doctor glanced at his watch, and deciding that there was time for a moment's relaxation, got slowly out, threw a cig ar into the gutter, and was at the window and out down on the porch below the girl.

"It's a big house makes you a sight of work, Charmian," he said.

"I suppose it does; but somehow I don't mind—it's such a beautiful house. I like to remember how my father and grandfather were born here, where I was born myself. It's the old house sense—and—perhaps you'll laugh at me, Doctor, but the house seems just as much a part of me as do my ancestors."

But the doctor didn't laugh. He looked up at the shin'ng brass knocker on the door, then down through generations before by Luther Davis—in the beautiful daylight above it, and at the smoothly windowed house ahead. Then his glance strayed from the century-old elm at one corner of the house to the wistful young face of the girl beside him, and his eyes grew misty.

Charmian was right. It was a beautiful old house. It stood a fair rod from the street, though it was built in the days when most Wickfield dwellings were set flush with the sidewalk. Charmian's great great-grandfather had explained (when our own neighbors commented on this fact), that he was surrounding by palisades of fence, also that most of his countrymen suspected that the underlying reason for this unusual proceeding was because great-grandma Davis "hated dust."

This, at least, was the story that had come down to Charmian, who declared that if her great-great-grandmother could have foretold the dust of her descendants' motorcars she would have set forty miles an hour, she would have set her mansion in what was then the cow pasture!

"But if she had," commented Grandma Davis wisely, "it wouldn't have been near so handy for the shop."

Charmian smiled. The shop, which was the honored parent of the old Davis house, was an innovation against which Grandma had bitterly railed when it was first suggested by Charmian's widowed mother. At that time Charmian was but a little maid of four, yet she remembered vividly the battle that took place before Grandma Davis capitulated to her daughter-in-law's irrefutable argument that it was more honorable for a Davis to run a shop in the best room than to go into debt.

She remembered also the day when the fine imported carpet was removed, and the counters of the highboy taken "up attic" in order to make room for the rolls of calico—the spools of silk and satin—the pins and needles—the bright worsteds and other fascinating odds and ends which were to be paid for "by the thousand," whatever that was.

Wickfield was in some need of a dry goods store, for Henry Oldham, who had run the general store for forty years, nearly replunished his stock, and one had to drive clear to Eastboro in order to match a skein of yarn!

Hence the neighbors, after a moment's shocked surprise, welcomed the thought of buying their fancy goods of Charmian's mother; and as Grandma grew older, the little shop, against which she had creaked and railed, became her greatest source of entertainment.

Charmian was fifteen when her mother died, but she managed to finish high school, to go to the State Normal at Eastboro, and keep house for Grandma, while the old lady sat contentedly in the front window and waited on occasional customers. Unbeknown to Grandma, Charmian was the unwitting cause of the shop's existence in the first place. Mrs. Davis had been a delicate woman, and Grandma Davis would hardly have seemed natural without Grandma's face lowering from behind that counter-pinned window. Once, stepping in upon an errand, Ezra Bascomb had suggested that the house be remodeled to make room for a tiny shop in the lower floor, so she could see the passing better.

"Or could do it easy enough some holiday," he urged; but the old lady shook her head.

"It's a real kind of you, Ezra," she said gratefully, "but my husband's grandfather, Luther Dav's, built this house, and I've never felt called to change it. Besides some of the panes of glass wouldn't exactly suit it, though I've no doubt Charmian would be glad to have them. Perhaps you'll remember about windows. She says a soiled window can just spoil a room for her. Well, I'll be getting along, I guess. Good-by, Ezra."

So the panes remained, and Charmian's dream—just a tasteless dose in the matter. It is pleasant, efficient, and

Needless Pain!
Don't be a martyr to unnecessary pain.
Lots of suffering is, indeed, most needless.
Headache, neuralgia, rheumatism come without warning, but one can always be prepared. Aspirin tablets bring prompt relief. Carry them with you. Keep them in the house. Have them in your pocket. Then you need never be bent a dragoon, or wait the pain get home.
And do not think that Aspirin is only good for headache, sore throats, and colds! Read the proven directions for relieving neuralgic, neuritic, rheumatic, and other aches and pains. Remembering, of course, that the quick results that follow Aspirin are due entirely to the fact that it is genuine. Ask for and be sure to get only genuine Aspirin.

DON'T SUFFER WITH DANGEROUS INDIGESTION
Do you suffer after meals with a belching, from sour and acid stomach? Many believe they have heart trouble and tremble with fear, expecting any minute to drop dead. This condition can be prevented, likewise relieved.
Take Carter's Little Liver Pills after meals and neutralize the gases. Moisten the sour and acid stomach, relieve the gas and encourage digestion.
The stomach, liver and bowels will be cleansed of poisons, painful and dangerous indigestion disappears and the system enjoys a rare feeling. Don't delay. Ask your druggist for a 25c pkg. of Carter's Little Liver Pills.

well as easier, to let his horses rest when they should have been dragging the plow, while he feasted h s beastly-loving eyes on the hills that surrounded Wickfield on every side, and composed "poetry."

Grandma was very proud of Grandpa's poems. Once one of them was printed in the Eastboro "Telegraph," and the min ster read it from the pulpit. That was a great day for Grandma Davis. She still kept a clipping of the poem between the pages of her Bible, and read it every night after she said her prayers. To her loyal heart it was a legacy more beautiful than gold or precious stones.

And now, though she and Charmian were left alone in the big house, it never occurred to either of them to call it "home." To the girl it was always "the house," but something that gave her a sense of security. For was it not something to be proud of, to live in a house built by men great-great- grandfather? That girl's Chip Ann Os, Jun., writes: "I always keep Baby's Own Tablets in the house as I know of nothing to equal them for little ones."

The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Airplane Being Used As Hearse By Norwegian Fleet

A Norwegian whaling fleet now at work off the ice banks of the Antarctic is accompan ed by two aeroplanes which are being used to scout for schools of whales. It has been found that in certain years the whales are much more difficult to find than in others; in fact, they seem practically to disappear, and it is hoped that the aeroplanes with its greater mob lity and wide ranges of vision will be able to help in solving the problem. If the machines can be equipped with three sets of land ng gear: wheels for landing on the deck of the "mother" vessel, pontoons for the water, and skis for the ice. A w reless "there she blows" will summon the fleet when the aeroplanes sight their quarry.

When in the cries of your duty the way of peace and right summonds you with its sweet compulsion, it is the call of the Eternal R ght making H'self hear'd in your waking soul. It is the summons of God through the voice of duty. Not far away lie the sources of rel gious trust; not in the evidences of the stars, or seas, or ancient man, but here amid the inevitable pressure of our daily w n takes, and of our sincere repentances. Distinguished Visitors Royally Entertained

Members of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce were visitors to Vermilion on Friday of last week, guests of the local board of trade, arriving by a special car placed at their disposal by the Canadian National Railways and attached to the 1:30 p.m. train. They were met by the reception committee and an official welcome extended to them by Mayor W. A. Fallow at the armouries, which had been placed at the disposal of the local board for the occasion.

Accompanying the delegates were the following officials of the Canadian National Railways: R. Creelman, general passenger traffic manager at Winnipeg; J. L. Cameron, district superintendent and J. Meikle, district passenger manager at Edmonton. The following completed the visitors: J. F. McMullen, Mayor Douglas, John Blue, James East, Frank Turley, Dan Ramsay, James Walker, T. Pavey, C. A. Graham, W. J. Cheyvright, J. W. Redd, J. V. Cook, G. A. Morris, W. J. Thompson and O. E. Hayward.

After a pleasant hour of sociability enjoyed at the armories, the entire party proceeded to the curling rink where the balance of the afternoon was spent in the rooms' game. Four rinks representative of the board of trade competed against a like number of the visitors—and, strange but true, the contest ended in a tie, the total scores being 64 points all. Two Edmonton rinks won and two Vermilion rinks had a similar honor. The scores stood: Edmonton, 18, 13, 19 9; total 64. Vermilion, 9, 7, 16, 16; total 64.

After the guests had been introduced short addresses were made by Mr. McMullen, Mayor Douglas, Jack Ramsay of the Junior chamber, James East and James Walker, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Edmonton and formerly a resident of Vermilion. The latter congratulated Vermilion on the splendid progress he had made in the past six years while the other speakers appreciated the kindness and courtesy with which they had been treated on their first visit as a body representing the Edmonton chamber of commerce. The addresses were followed with community singing. A solo by J W F Markle was a feature of the program.

Great Leaders Needed

D. H. Galbraith, a director of the seed growers' association and principal speaker for the evening, said "What is needed in Canada today are great leaders who will take Canada with her wonderful resources and her wonderful possibilities and place her where she rightly belongs as a nation supreme in industrial commercial and agricultural activities, a nation with out unemployment, without strife and without supporting problems, a nation where happy homes prevail and people live in happiness and comfort "Can we imagine Canada with all her resources, a teeming market on the other side and the third largest importer of butter of any single country in the world today," he asked, "if mixed farming paid"

"It may not, but the farmer has all his needs supplied from his own land He does not have to buy those commodities He is in a far different category from the man in the city who has to buy or go hungry If the grass then with the farmer is making money, my advice to him was to grow up farming

"Those who exploit farming seldom get much out of it, but farming as a home-making proposition pays, and that was a feature many on the land

Motor Truck Licenses

Saskatchewan Government Is Increasing Number Of Machines Due To Booze To Hamper the Farmer

The Saskatchewan Government has decided to place the motor licenses branch under the jurisdiction of the Minister of Highways in lieu of the opinion that the administration there of logically belongs to the Highway Department. It has been hitherto under the Provincial Secretary. This transaction will be implemented at the next session of the Legislature.

The Minister of Highways announces that the Government has record ded the number of motor trucks for truck licenses. He points out that by the reduction of the tax from twenty the revenue of the province will be reduced this year to the extent of approximately $600 000 00. The chance in the truck license fees was recommended with the purpose of assisting in reversing as well as to insure that trucks used for commercial purposes would pay their shares for upkeep of the roads of the province. There now remain about one hundred on the Ontario roads, being a slightly lower number than the fees charged in Ontario. They are to be restored to the reverse of the province will be reduced this year to the extent of approximately $600 000 00. The chance in the truck license fees was recommended with the purpose of assisting in reversing as well as to insure that trucks used for commercial purposes would pay their shares for upkeep of the roads of the province. There now remain about one hundred on the Ontario roads, being a slightly lower number than the fees charged in Ontario. They are to be restored to the former basis.

It is estimated that 50 per cent. of the trucks now operating in the province are owned outside of the province and licensed.

It was not the desire of the Saskatchewan Government to in any way hamper the bona fide use of the motor truck by increasing license fees materially, in view of reasonable revenue derived from some of the municipalities; however the Government has carefully considered and ascertained that approximately 85 per cent. of the trucks are owned outside of the province. The province, namely, 15 000 out of a total registration of 9,600. A large proportion of these are farm trucks used in the handling of grain in the fall, and it was thought that by moving the one-half months' license fee from the latter let, as formerly, to September 30 that the farmer would benefit, and this would furnish a one-half yearly license fee from the Saskatchewan farmers. Upon further investigation, however, the Government have arrived at the conclusion that this would not meet the situation, and it is noticed that nothing would be gained in this way and tend to hamper the producer.

It would further appear that the number of trucks used in the cities constitute the principal revenue from gasoline tax as well as the city tax, and do not proceed beyond the boundaries of the city or make any use of the provincial roads. It is felt that some measure of relief should be granted in that regard and although no such relief apparently is granted in any of the provinces in the United States of the Union as far as the information at hand goes.

While they are anxious to assure as much revenue as possible when building purposes, the Saskatchewan Government decides to put the matter in order-in-council, the effect of which will be to place a flat license fee of $25 license fee for all truck owners purchasing their licenses after September 1st. And further, that upon any resident of a town or city making a statement of the value at the end of the year to the effect that his or her truck has not been outside of the boundaries of the town or city during the course of the year, a refund would be entitled to a refund of the difference between the amount charged under the new regulations in excess of the regulations in force at that time, and that upon any bona fide farmer taking a declaration to the effect that his or her truck has only been used during the year on the farm or in hauling purposes, that such farmer will be entitled to a refund of any excess charged under the new regulations over the previous regulation. The minister points out that the farmer or a farmer use the truck for other than farm purposes, such as travelling work, he will in most cases, under the new regulations, pay very little if any, more and should be treated regardless as commercial automobiles.

It is the intention of the minister to have a clause inserted in the act providing for the refund upon the purpose for which the trucks in the province are used, and that the application on the application for the license and to seriously consider trying a different motor license fee for trucks coming under the above clause for the purpose of giving effect to the act in preventing any branches of the Government.

He has also ascertained that many of the trucks coming into the province from the United States have been engaged in hauling liquor, and in this as gravelling without paying any license fee to the province, and with the case in considering licensing all truck coming into the province to do work in competition with the truck owners of the province The Government will also amend the act with regard to keeping to the front of the road, speed, etc., particularly with regard to gravel loads, will be reported on this year.

Winter Fair In March

Attractive Prize List Arranged For Annual Event in Regina

Very little change will appear in the prize list for the Regina Winter Fair, according to announcement made by the Winter Fair officials.

The Saskatchewan Winter Fair will be held on March 25 to 28, in the Regina Stadium and adjoining stables on the Exhibition grounds. As attractive prize list is being offered for exhibitors with over $12,000 in cash prizes, several silver medals and trophies. In the horse department there are classes for Clydesdales, Percherons and Belgians, with $1,435, of which $1,210 is for open breds, and $305 for commercial horses, in each class. A class which is attracting attention is that for the best team of horses, and $445 is offered in each of the three classes. The Dominion Government offering for best cattle is for car lots of 15 animals and groups of five $1,200 in prizes.

In the boys' and girls' classes the calves of 1928 and 1929, the prizes amount to $400.

Last year the poultry show was held by itself in January, but in most the wishes of the majority of the poultry exhibitors, the show will be combined with the spring show this year. Classes include the principal varieties of utility poultry, turkeys, geese, ducks, pigeons and pet stock. Prizes in the poultry department amount to $1,700. Entries close on March 15 for both livestock and poultry entries.

Resurrections and Canada

A Paralyt'c Cured. 9.1-8.—From the eastern side of the Sea of Galilee, where He had cured the demoniac of Jesus, with His disciples, sailed across to Capernaum, "His own city." That same hour a man bearing a palsied man on his bed, which was probably a mattress, or merely a blanket. As Luke gives the account, they found the way to Jesus blocked. For they mounted the outer stairway to the roof, and tore a hole in the roof large enough to allow them to let their burden down before the Master.

"Trust is nothing but in Providence and your own efforts; never separate the two.—Dickens.

Had they not believed that Jesus could cure their friend, they would not have taken all this trouble to put him into Jesus' presence. Jesus saw their faith and said to the sick man, "Son, be of good cheer; thy sins are forgiven."

"This man blasphemeth," said some of the scribes to themselves. They accused Jesus of the sin against God's name, of blaspheming; by claiming power to forgive sins. Jesus read their thoughts and said to them, "Wherefore think ye evil in your hearts? whether is it easier to say, Thy sins be forgiven; or to say, Arise and walk?" Both were equally easy to say; but the result of the latter saying would be seen by all. Then Jesus said, That He had the power to forgive sins He could not prove on the spot, but that He had the power to cure disease He could at once demonstrate. That that ye may know that the Son of man hath authority on earth to forgive sins" (continued Jesus as He turned to the sick and said to him, "Arise and take up thy bed, and go into thy house." Thus His made, the Righteous long ago said, the visible power a testimony to the invisible. And the man arose, and departed to his house.

In the mind of both paralytic and critic, sin and physical ailment were cause and effect. The power to remove the disease and by the critics regarded as God-given (John 3.3); but the power to forgive sin, a Divine prerogative alone. In reality the ailment of Christ was that sin, as the accepted connection between ill and disease was that of cause and effect, and probably was so in the case of the paralytic. Jesus could heal a n'n-caused disease, could heal the sin itself.—Carl D. Case.

"A healthy body is good; but a soul in right health—is the thing before all else."—Phillips Brooks.

Blessed'ess the meek for they shall inherit the earth received from Heaven."—Carlyle.

To see the palsied man walking and carrying his bed, the scribes were afraid, and they glorified God in giving such authority unto men.

Small-est War Hero

Record Of Workman In London Shows Who Served In War

It is still a moot point as to where is the smallest war memorial, writes "Looker On" in the London Daily Chronicle. The smallest I have come across is a glass case on the front of a block of workmen's flats on Albert Embankment, near Vauxhall. It is a simple, home-made affair enshrining only about a score of names of men living in the block who served in the war, with a cross marked against those who fell. All these years—it was apparently started during the war—it has been carefully tended by the tenants; there are always one or two fresh flowers in the middle of it. A humble but faithful tribute of remembrance.

When BABIES are upset

Baby fits and sickness are often as serious at night. A sudden cry may mean colic. Or a sudden attack of diarrhoea—condition it is always important to check quickly. How would you like to have Castoria ready for you? Have you a bottle of Castoria ready? There is nothing that can take the place of this harmless but effective remedy for children; nothing that acts quite the same, or has quite the same comforting effect on them.

For the protection of your own use—for your own peace of mind—keep this old, reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an everyday aid. Its gentle influence will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. Its mild regulation will help an older child whose tongue is coated because of sluggish bowels. All druggists have Castoria; the genuine bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

The presence of the little shop in the front room did not cheapen the old house in Charmian's loving eyes. As a child she remembered it as part of the house, and now that she was grown up and dependent on his house.

China's Real Menace

Famine Takes Toll Of Millions Of Lives Every Year

We hear often of China's civil wars, but only occasionally do dispatches come through which tell of the real horror wh'ch continuously hangs over that troubled country. This is the menace of famine, and of course, was getting old. The idea brought a strange, sick feeling to Charmian. What would life be like in Wickfield without its doctor?

The girl sank down on the side of her bed and, with her elbows on her d'stant hills—hills so softly blue that they seemed to her imaginative vision to be the colour of the sky itself. She was thinking: "Of course I'll board him, even if it's a bother. It'll pay the doctor, and I'll have a man to talk to. I wouldn't do for Doctor Hove—just nothing."

Her eyes strayed to the orchard where a small russ't table was built beneath a tree. The doctor had built it himself, and had wondered why he had he joined her there at her dolies parties? she mused. What hadn't he done for her, and for all other Wickfield youngsters?

How he loved them—the children! It seemed to Charmian then she grew old enough to learn that this dear friend had lost his best beloved in a cruel accident on what was to have been their wedding eve, that she and the other children of the neighborhood had been to him, in a sense, the babies that might have been his own. In these days his baggy was always full of children. "The old merrier," he would say, stopping to take in the boys and g'rls on their way to school. Pushing his old white mane, seemed of her own accord to "draw up" at sight of any small figure lit'ng along the road. Her father was in pasture now, an honored boarder, and, except when the snow-wreaths were too deep, the doctor travelled in a "flivver." His was the first automobile to be seen in Wickfield. Indeed, when he drove for the first time and waved a hand, Grandma Davis had almost fallen from the box in her excitement.

"It doesn't seem quite right," she said to Charmian "What's the world coming to, I'd like to know? I declare, I wouldn't have thought it if Edward Hove?"

A certain man announced that he was going to marry.

"I could never be a widow a second husband," his fr end said blantly.

The newly engaged man smiled.

Fortune-teller: Do you want to know about your future husband?

Visitor: No. I want to know something about the rest of my present husband for future use.

"The first box did me good and after the sixth box I was able to go back to my work."

"The boy? You mean a new doctor?"

"Why not? You've room enough and to spare. If you can't manage his meals he could get them at the Central House, I suppose; but I don't think he'd enjoy living there. Would you?"

Charmian shuddered at the idea, but asked: "What will Grandma say?"

"She'll agree to anything you th'nk best," smiled the doctor. "I know Grandma! Well, dear child, you think it over. I don't want to put any more burdens on your shoulders; but he'll pay well, and—Look here! He's coming up on Saturday. I'll drop him in casually and let you look him over."

"I should be glad to," said the girl, "if you recommend him," she said as they arose. "But of course, he'll want to find out if he could get his meals down town I th nk I could manage the rest. As for Grandma—"

"Grandma," called the old lady from her window, "what on earth are you two talking about all th's time? You tell the doctor to step in a minute before he goes. I want to ask him about my rheumatism."

CHAPTER II.

As the doctor went within at Grandma's call, Charmian lifted her l'tle stepladder and carried it back to the woodshed. What a morning it had been! She was an orderly soul, but this morning it was only habit that made her put away the step ladder and go in to help get the dinner.

Charmian laughed again.

"You surprise me, Doctor Howe — a clean-minded man like you listening to gossip! But I'll admit that my statement was rather sweeping. Of course George M's boys are splendid: but they're away from home, and two of them are marr'ed anyway. As for Jim, I can't just see him in the light of a young Lochinvar. He'd never get further than th ng one, without first asking permission of his mother."

"And is filial devotion a quality to be encouraged?"

Although there was m'rth in the doctor's eyes, Charmian's face sobered.

"Sometimes," she answered quietly, "sometimes, Doctor Howe, I think it is the only virtue I have. I'm sure it does. I can't imagine his asking a girl to marry h m without first discussing with his mother. Do you think any self-respecting woman would stand for that?"

The indignation of these last words brought the doctor's eyes suddenly and disconcertingly to hers.

"Do you've been—discreet?"

Charmian blushed.

"You know entirely too much," she said severely. "And anyway, I don't see how we reached this subject. We began with boarders, and—"

"W'th ch what I came for," interrupted the doctor. "Now you see, Charman. my dear, I'm getting old."

"Not you!" laughed Charmian, and coming down from the ladder she seated herself beside him on the steps.

"Nothing truer," he went on soberly. "I find it more difficult to be routed out at night than I did once. I feel that I need after a long day's work—but—I'm not ready to give up—yet."

"I should say not!" Charmian responded, slipp ng a comforting hand into the old man's. "What should we do without you?"

He smiled.

"You'd do very well—probably better than you do now. Old folks are set in their ways, and ways are changing all the time you know. But I need help. I need an assistant — a young, up-to-date assistant.

"He'd starve—in Wickfield. We wouldn't have him starve."

"Not even to help me out?"

The girl looked up, suddenly serious.

"You really mean it, Doctor?"

"Yes, I mean it. I'm getting tired, Charmian, though I haven't been willing to face the truth. What I stopped here for, my dear, was to ask if you'd take the boy to board."

"The boy? You mean a new doctor?"

"Why not? You've room enough and to spare. If you can't manage his meals he could get them at the Central House, I suppose; but I don't think he'd enjoy living there. Would you?"

Charmian shuddered at the idea, but asked: "What will Grandma say?"

"She'll agree to anything you th'nk best," smiled the doctor. "I know Grandma! Well, dear child, you think it over. I don't want to put any more burdens on your shoulders; but he'll pay well, and—Look here! He's coming up on Saturday. I'll drop him in casually and let you look him over."

"I should be glad to," said the girl, "if you recommend him," she said as they arose. "But of course, he'll want to find out if he could get his meals down town I th nk I could manage the rest. As for Grandma—"

"Grandma," called the old lady from her window, "what on earth are you two talking about all th's time? You tell the doctor to step in a minute before he goes. I want to ask him about my rheumatism."

CHAPTER II.

As the doctor went within at Grandma's call, Charmian lifted her l'tle stepladder and carried it back to the woodshed. What a morning it had been! She was an orderly soul, but this morning it was only habit that made her put away the step ladder and go in to help get the dinner.

Astronomer Says Moon Moves Earth's Crust

Gravitational Pull Shifts Surface 30 Feet in Estimate

That the earth's crust actually shifts as a result of the gravitational pull of the moon on the earth was a theory advanced in a paper written by Dr. Harlan T. Stetson, and read before the American Astronomical Society at Harvard College. He is the d rector of Perkins Observatory at Ohio Wesleyan University.

Dr. Stetson's subject was the study of the variation in latitude with the moon's position. While movement of the earth's crust has long been known to scientists, it was believed to be too sl ght for measurements. Observations analyzed by Dr. Stetson showed, however, that the change of position may amount to five or six feet or more.

Changes in the position of the moon, Dr. Stetson's paper pointed out, produce a change in the direction of gravity, causing the sh ft in the earth's crust and thus the variation of latitude.

Medical Science Has Prevented Population Of French Equatorial Africa From Be'ng Wiped Out

Medical science has prevented the population of French equatorial Africa from being wiped out by sleeping sickness, it was declared in an interview by Raphael Antonetti, Governor-General of the colony, who is now in Paris.

Although the birth rate was satisfactory, he explained, the population continued to d m'nish through disease, which caused many deaths and there were births. This went on until 1921, when the French officials recognized the peril and took energetic action against sleeping sickness and all tropical infections.

Canada's Contribution

Regions Are Invaluable

Canada is making a notable contribution to Arctic research, in the establishment of permanent posts in the Polar regions, said C. P. MacKen zie, of the Canadian Department of the Interior, who led the expedition which sa led on the "Beothic" last year, exploring Arctic regions. He is speaking before the Women's Canadian Club in Toronto.

"Unquestionably Canada is making a greater contr bution than are the explorers who merely go in and out of the Arctic leaving no permanent establishment behind them," he said.

Life passes, riches fly away, popularity is feble, the scenes disap, the world changes, friends die. One alone is constant. One alone is true to us; One alone can be true. One alone can be all things to us; One alone can supply our needs: One alone can train us up to our full perfection. One alone can give a meaning to our complex and intricate nature. One alone heals. Pe'nful sickness and sorrow. One alone can form and possess us. Are we allowed to put ourselves under His guidance? This surely is the only question.—John Henry Newman.

Business Is Business

Diplomacy Used By Jewish Scholar To Win Prize

There was a Scotsman who was appointed inspector of schools, and who in the course of his work had to examine a Jewish school. He asked a class of boys who in their opinion was the greatest man the world had ever produced. After a pause a little Jewish scholar put up his hand, and declared that the greatest man was Robert Burns. This reply gratified him the prize that was offered. After the examination the inspector asked the lad if he really thought Robert Burns was the greatest man in which the reply came: "Moses was the greatest man, but business is bust ness."

Larger tires, shock absorbers, and increased horse power make this year's offering "the greatest Chevrolet in Chevrolet history." Two sedans, one rich sedan, a coach and a coupe comprised the shipment.

MAY BE BETTER STOCK FOR VERMILION

Howard Clarke from the local office of Burns Co. Limited, was in Vermilion on Monday, Feb. 3rd in connection with the Bull Rings offered for this district by the Creamery Company.

Burns Co. Limited, are willing to place five high quality dairy bulls among the farmers of Vermilion to increase the butterfat production. Mr. Clarke explained to a meeting held in the creamery that these bulls would not cost the farmers a cent with the exception of a $5.00 service fee. Out of this small sum $1.25 would be used to pay the farmer who housed and cared for the animal.

There is no safer and surer way to increase the butterfat production of any district than through the use of herd sires of quality higher than the average cattle. An increase of from 50 to 60 per cent in butterfat production can be looked for in the first generation. The average butterfat production per cow in Vermilion district would be in the neighborhood of 175 pounds. By increasing this to 300, Vermilion has additional revenue of $13.00 to $30.00 per cow.

Either Jersey or Holstein bulls are offered, though Jersey cattle seem to be favored in Vermilion. Mr. Cooper, the editor of the Standard, is of the opinion that Jersey cows will make a lot of money for farmers due to their economy of production. It is said that these Jersey animals will live and produce fat in paying quantities on what is necessary to keep two larger cows alive.

Mr. Bushell, the manager of the Creamery, is another Jersey enthusiast. He says at home when he was a boy they had a Jersey cow and she was a lot better than the average to-day. He thinks this breed would be ideal for the Vermilion district.

The last two years have left some grain farmers in a very hard-up condition and the future of the grain business is not looking forth a great deal of promise to the man who specializes in one crop and puts all his eggs in one basket. Mr. D. L. Wright, who is the manager of the local Bank of Commerce, thinks farmers would be well advised to swing back into mixed farming. He says he butterfat will come out of a tractor, but that this machine will consume a lot of money to keep it running and pay for it. Mr. H. W. Harper, manager of the Royal Bank, is of the same opinion. The men he knows in Vermilion district who are today in a well fixed and prosperous condition were the men who followed mixed farming. They did not stick to one thing but spread their attentions and efforts with the result that they were seldom caught in a depression in any market.

The world is at the present time faced with the most severe over-production in what that has ever been encountered. If there is another good crop during 1930, prices received for it may be ruinous. If the crop is short by 7 or 10 per cent. a higher price does not help the dried-out farmer. There are indications that the Russians are coming back on the market with a great volume of wheat. Henry Ford has under construction one of the world's largest tractor plants in Russia. Experts from the United States have come there to teach the people how to farm 10-60 acres at a time instead of ten. The future of the wheat farmer in Canada do not seem to be at all secure.

Mr. A. H. Rankin, who lives four miles south, says he has anticipated hard times in the grain business and two years ago he started to build up a Jersey herd. He has today a 3-year old of these commercial fat bulls and is in a position of security and profitable production. Every farmer in the Vermilion district would be well advised to follow in his tracks and work into a herd of dairy cows in order that they might have a constant cash income every month in the year. Farmers who are interested in getting into better stock should see Mr. Bushell of the Creamery

Sour Stomach

Just a teaspoon dose of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in water. That is all. Quick, effective, yet harmless it has been the standard antacid for 50 years among physicians everywhere. One spoonful will neutralize at once many times its volume in acid. It is the right way, the quick, pleasant and efficient way, to end the excess acid. The case drinks. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggists.

Don't depend on crude methods. Employ the best way yet evolved in all the years of searching. That is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting acid-stomach. Refuse substitutes.

The Immigration Problem

The subject of immigration which is at present receiving a large share of attention by the people of Canada, and rightly so, is little concern, has always been in the forefront of national policy. It is likely to remain so for many years to come, a result almost inevitable in the case of a young country of small population, vast unoccupied areas, and immense natural resources even undeveloped. And especially so when, elsewhere in the world, there are numerous countries where population is already congested and the surplus people are teeming around for some place in which to locate with a fair prospect of making a livelihood for themselves and their children.

It is probably true that in regard to no other question of vital national importance has public opinion in Canada, as in the United States, so completely changed within a few years as it has in regard to immigration. Within the last few years the change has been rapid and fundamental, and thousands of men and women today hold views diametrically opposite to those they entertained five or ten years ago. Many of these people are now inclined to blame former Governments because they adopted and pursued policies which do not find favor today, forgetting that they themselves believed in and approved pol cies then which they condemn now.

Not so long ago Federal Governments were applauded or criticised according as they succeeded or failed in increasing the volume of immigration into this Dominion. Almost without a dissenting voice,—organized labor alone perhaps excepted,—the people of Canada urged and demanded aggressive policies of immigration to increase Canada's population, develop its resources, fill up the vacant spaces, and assist in carrying the Dominion's heavy burden or debt immigration was held to be necessary to provide business for our railways and to reduce the per cap ta cost of railway construction, and these and many other modern services which people demanded. And all governments tried to supply what the people on a whole wanted.

Now all this has changed, and from all parts of the country there is an insistent demand that immigration be restricted, if not altogether stopped, and just as there were extremists in days gone by who favored a wide-open door policy of unrestricted entry, so now there are extremists who would prohibit all and sundry from entering the portals of the Dominion. As in ures of almost every question, there is to in this matter of immigration a sane and safe middle course.

Generally speaking, the opinion now prevails that all forms of assisted immigration should cease, or at all events should be strictly limited to individual cases of members of the family or relatives of coming to Canada to join relatives already established here. The view is also held that there should be no more large movements of groups of people to be settled in communities. It is practically assumed that these policies will be followed in future.

Canada's immigrat'on policy has for some considerable time been one of admitting only those, mentally and physically sound, who proposed to go upon the land, while those of the artizan and unskilled labor classes were discouraged. But the difficulty has been to keep those admitted on the land. Many having had little or no experience with farming methods and implements and difficulties have flocked to the cities in search of work, with disastrous results to themselves and to the urban communities thereby affected. How to overcome this problem, under which we have labored for many years by the introduction on a large scale of labor-saving farm machines, as, for example, the combined harvester-thresher and the motor truck, and the consequent elimination of the need for a large number of farm hands, still is acute question.

It is now suggested that immigrat on should be left to the Provinces rather than continue as one of the major functions of the Federal Government, and that each Province should decide who, and how many, to admit from time to time in any one year. But here another difficulty presents itself. Provincial requirements and policies may be for from uniform. One Province may adopt a policy amount ng almost to exclusion, while another is much more liberal in its policy governing immigration. But once an imm'grant is admitted into Canada by any one Province, there is no power to prevent such imm'grant from moving to another part of the Dominion. There must of necessity be some understand ng reached by the Provinces if any effective restrictions are to be imposed by them, if the present plan of a central Dominion control is superseded.

The whole problem is one calling for the most careful investigation and study. It involves not only economic questions, but social, racial, religious, and other questions, each and every one presenting difficulties in the way of arriving at common understandings. It is a question that calls for the exercise of patience, good-s3, co-operation.

Adds To Country's Milk

THE Borden Less Milkmen Annually Through Condensed Section

Do you use milk bottles for jam, horseradish, paint, and other household art cles? Perhaps you use them for flower vases, or in many other useful ways. If they get too dirty, probably they are thrown out with the ashes or trash.

Such a procedure is far too common, says the Bureau of Dairy Industry, United States Department of Agr culture, and adds materially to the consumer's milk bill. The solution milk-bottle bill of the nation is close to $30,000,000, the bureau says, and at least $20,000,000 of this is loss occurring when milk bottles leave the dairy. Last year in one large city, jam men picked off the milk stamps 20,000,000 such bottles wh ch had been thrown away. Those bottles had a value of over $1,000,000.

SWOLLEN JOINTS GIVE GREAT PAIN

The Trouble Can Be Removed By Enriching the Blood Supply

The chief symptom of rheumatism is pain. Usually the joints swell before pain starts the pain, but it is known that the trouble is actually due to weak, watery blood. The most successful treatment is the one that helps to make the blood a healthy, normal condition. Many rheumat c people sit for pains that could be easily healed if they would only enrich and purify their blood by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new, rich, red blood, and in that way drive out the poisonous secretions which cause rheumatism. That this is the case is shown by the statement of Mr. Oickie, Bridge, N.B., who says:—"About two years ago I had a very severe attack of rheumatism. I had to walk on crutches; chiefly in my hips and legs, the joints swelling so badly that often I could hardly sit up in a chair, being unable to bend my knees. I was in bed, also, suffering. Finally I decided to try the Pink Pills that often I had heard of, to my great satisfaction, for before I had taken the first box I felt better, and by the time I was undergoing the second treatment I was strolling around the pain disappeared, and there has not since been any return of the trouble. I am thankful indeed for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me, and feel that every sufferer may benefit from my experience."

You can procure these pills from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MOTHER'S OF TWINS HELPED

Restored to Health by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winfield, Ont.—"I had little twin babies and for quite a while after I was up was not able to do my work. I became so pale and weak that I could not even walk across the floor. I had taken a number of medicines but got very little help. I read Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and sent for a trial. I was able to get up and do my work, I have taken it during my confinement and I am fine, do my work without trouble and am gaining in weight and strength. I will gladly recommend the Vegetable Compound to anyone."—Mrs. F. Pratten, Box 220, Winfield, Ont.

Glue That Beats

Distant Approach In a Motor Boat—Sets Under Water

There is a fortune awaiting the man who invents a flexible glue. This stands perhaps at the head of the list of inventions to be made by the inventor. So far the nearest approach is a glue substitute called "Weldite," invented in England, and on the market there in 1917, and now sold in Canada. "Weldite" consists of a colorless mobile compound, reinforced with fine, specially galvanized wire mesh. It is so dipped in the compound as to coat the wire mesh thoroughly on both sides and the resulting substance is therefore completely waterproof, airtight, fire-like and practically unbreakable.

One advantage this substitute has over ordinary glue is that it freely transmits the valuable ultra-violet rays of the sun. This quality makes "Weldite" invaluable for a wide variety of uses where real sunlight is necessary to health and growth such as the rearing of young chicks and turkeys in confinement. Ordinary glass shuts out these rays, and yet they are vitally important to human beings, as well as plants, poultry and live stock. Another surprising thing about "Weldite" is that while it is not is cheaper than ordinary glass, and yet extremely light in weight and very strong.

Old Marriage Contract

Mar'ages contracts were in vogue among early Egyptians, according to tablets found in the Nile region by explorers. The earliest known nuptial contract there dates from 311 B.C., the terms of which were drawn by the husband. It has been translated as follows: "If one God willeth that we should unite one with the other for righteous wedlock, after the manner of every free man and every wise woman, therefore, I have given thee four dollars in gold as a bridal gift. And for my part I will not neglect thee. Neither shall I put thee forth without a cause, having legal ground, and should I wish to put thee forth, I will pay 17 dollars for the matter."

Employment In Canada

Greater In Volume In 1929 Than Any Other Year On Record

Employment in Canada during 1929 was on the whole decidedly greater in volume than in any other year on record, 6,700 reported firms employing a monthly average of 1,630,288 persons, according to the Bureau of Statistics. This compares with 1928, the Index (calculated on the average for 1926, as 100), stood at 119.4 and was the highest for any year since the beginning of the year.

Author Urges Wider Knowledge Of Canada

American Novelist Regards Peculiar Mien People in the United States Have

Returning from a visit to Church'll on Hudson Bay, the northerly terminal of the Hudson Bay Railway, Courtney Riley Cooper, American novelist, in an interview at Toronto urged a wider knowledge of Canada in the United States. Mr. Cooper remarked that the people of the United States are under the impression that Canada is a land of barren, desolate, frozen wastes. He said, added that when he was a reporter on a Chicago paper he suffered more from the cold than in the Hudson Bay country.

"The minute I went into the north country I became well on Ohlamis and decided to make my fortune in the selling of Canada to the U.S. people through my books," he went on.

He highly commended the Canadian police and said, "The Canadian and U.S. citizens are blood brothers."

Caramel Pudding

A Delicious Dessert That Practically Makes Itself

One of the most delicious desserts one can serve, and it is one especially liked by children, is one that is practically to make itself. It is called Caramel Pudding. Here it is:

Melt a cupful of granulated sugar in Eagle Brand Condensed Milk in a bottle of boiling water and simmer for two and a half hours. Then carefully put not to let the bottle boil dry. Remove can, cool and chill. Remove top of can, cut up along the side of can and turn the top so that the contents may be removed whole; place in a serving dish and garnish with broken nut meats and whipped cream. To serve individually, cut in slices, garnish with nut meats, and whipped cream—or use plain unsweetened cream, with or without garnish."

Heirs To Vast Estate

Nine Widows and Thirteen Children Share In Estate Of Abdul Hamid

A London despatch to the New York Times states that nine surviving widows and 13 children of Abdul Hamid, Sultan of Turkey, who was deposed in 1909, have obtained after lengthy litigation $50,000,000 from his $1,500,000,000 estate.

Greece, it was reported in London, offered $20,000,000 to Abdul's former favorite now living in poverty in various capitals of Europe, but Ismail Agaoglu, Agent, Trust, Ltd., of London, hopes to get the $20,000,000 from Iraq.

Abdul, who died in private life in 1918, was said by some to be the richest man in the world. A number of British and United States financiers have backed the contention of his heirs that the confiscation of his property on ousting and after the Great War was illegal. Greece's offers are some proportion acquired from Turkey under post war treaties.

Product Of One Seed

Nine ounces of seed buried and and 1,378 ounces from one antartarian seed, is the proud record of Gordon Thomas, Boyd'on, B.C. Mr. Thomson received the seed from plants grown in his own garden in 1928, and on March 10, 1929, it was planted in a favorable location on the south side of his house. The plant was given special care and attention and developed enormously until November 11, and grew to a height of 34 feet 6 inches.

DISTRICT COURT NEWS

His Honour Judge Dubue presided at the usual sittings of the District Court here on the 11th. The action of John Fisher of Chauvenet against William McIntyre of Vermilion for damages as a result of a collision between McIntyre's car and a team and buggy driven by Fisher was decided in favor of the plaintiff, Fisher, who was awarded $125 at the report of $122 and costs. F. J. Richardson acted for the successful plaintiff and J. D. Aiken for the defendant.

His Honour also decided the small debt case of J. Gordon Wilson against J. A. Isley for hauling grain in favor of Mr. Wilson, giving judgment for the sum of $44.10 and costs. Wilson hauled grain at the rate of 15¢ per bu. to cover the thresher's bill which Isley had against the same and the latter commenced the action on the ground that it was not his grain which was hauled, but the Court decided that he had an interest in the grain hauled because of his thresher's bill and the contract was therefore entitled to judgment. F. J. Richardson acted for the plaintiff and defendant appeared in person.

Two cases under the Children of Theatrical Parents Act were also disposed of in favor of the Crown, and an appeal under the Liquor Act taken by the Crown, Rex vs Olds, was also allowed.

HEARTLESS FAKERY

(Shaftsbury Times, Jackson, Michigan)

Of all the heartless rackets those in the line of begging for money are the most so, because on these occasions the super cunning for invisible disease or worse than visible ills of a person which might be constantly treated by competent practitioners. Probably the most contemptible of this latter type of rackets is that which employs the dog which makes the rounds of the residences of our city and vicinity. Under the pretense that the animal is trained to sit up in a chair, being unable to walk, the dog is carried, after thus squatting. Finally I decided to try the trick myself, which I succeeded, to my great satisfaction, but found that the dog refused to eat from the saucer I was undergoing. Under the pretense that I was suffering and added the pain disappeared, and there has not since been any return of the trouble. I am thankful indeed for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me, and feel that every sufferer may benefit from my experience.

CLOSE GAMES IN THE CIVIC LEAGUE

ELKS 2, SOILERS 1

In the tightest game in the Civic league to date the Collegs boys lost out 2 to 1 to the Elks in the opener on Monday night. Little to choose between the two teams, the biggest difference being noted in the first per'od when the Elks had quite an edge on their opponents. The Elks were kicking them out from all angles. Resultant tallied the lone goal in the 1st third and Elks were unable to score. Strong in the second and tied the game, but Clarence Barr broke this in the third and Elks managed to score for the blue and white boys.

CABARET 6, SENIORS 2

The Senior's have undisputed possession of the top rung of the ladder as a result of a 2 to 0 win from the Cabaret boys on Wednesday night. The game was made to the Cabaret had a little more scoring punch, it might not be so far behind the leaders at present. The junior members of the Senior team got the goals, Bowen and Hall netting the counters. The combination change from mid'e to extreme by fast weather had a bad effect on the line, causing large cracks all over the surface, which hindered good play to a considerable extent.

On Monday, February 17th, Dr M. S. Thompson, Provincial Secretary of the Dominion Dental Hygiene Council, will be in Vermilion and will address the school pupils at school children's and hold an evening meeting for adults for the purpose of bringing the subject of dental hygiene to the general public. The Dominion Dental Hygiene Council is composed of a group of men who are interested in improving general health conditions by improving the health of the mouth. This campaign is purely educational and costs us being met by the Council and the Government of the province in co-operation.

On Monday afternoon Dr. Thompson will meet the children in two or three groups at the Lochaber. Where where moving pictures will be used to illustrate the lectures given. The College students will be in town immediately after supper and at 8:15 in the evening he will address the public at a meeting to be held in the assembly hall of the high school. This meeting in particular will be under the auspices of the Women's Institute and the I.O.D.E. and all interested are cordially requested to attend at that meeting. On Tuesday other meetings are being arranged by the Committee and announcements will be made later

In connection with this campaign, children of all the schools in the district, and, to a great extent, of the schools in the whole province, will be examined with regard to their teeth and their mouth health. Material will be supplied in the schools by the Central Council and by the local committee which will give information for the teaching of lessons covering this subject. Post card size material from which the children may write essays concerning mouth health. The best of the essays from each school will be sent in to the District Committee for judging and the best essay of each district will win a prize of $10 00. This prize essay will then be sent to Edmonton to compete with similar essays from all the other districts of the province and the three best essays drawn a prize of $25 00. This prize money is also being given by the Dominion Council.

As a conservative estimate places the origin of 95 p.c. of all diseases as entering through the mouth, it will readily be seen that improving mouth health conditions will materially decrease disease. The Committee hopes to have them soon. Some of us are ready to receive our Recruit Badges.

His Excellency Viscount Willingdon Delighted With Trip To the West Indies

Its developing contact with the West Indies Canada has made an exceedingly valuable contribution to the Empire, in the opinion of His Excellency the Governor-General, Viscount Willingdon, who with Lady Willingdon and members of their party, have returned to Canada, after six weeks in the tropics, highly delighted with their trip and enthusiastic about relations between the Dominion and the

"For too many years, said His Excellency, the West Indies had been isolated, not only from other parts of the Empire, but frqm themselves. From one another islands had small, taken the task of drawing them closer to the Empire and for this reason he thought Canada should receive full credit in the Home Country

"It was one of the most encouraging trips I have ever taken," said Lord Willingdon. "The enthusiasm for Canada was so great that I would go so far as to say that the West Indies, in thinking of their future, looks to Canada. They regarded our visit as a further evidence of the Dominion's desire for ever closer relationship."

Lacking consistent inter-communication, the various islands, His Excellency went on to say, had developed individually and independently, and he saw the necessity for closer communication between the islands and the windwards and between the separate islands was beginning to be made more apparent

"Of course the West Indies stand to benefit materially by trade with the Empire and they are quick to realize it But Canada will derive advantages, too, and the whole thing will strengthen the Empire by pulling these two sections of it together," His Excellency declared

Apart from trade, His Excellency saw another good reason for the closer thinking of Canada and the islands of the Caribbean.

"There is no reason," said he, "why these beautiful islands should not be the property of the Empire Lady Willingdon and I cannot say too much in praise of the West Indies from the standpoint of the traveller if Canadians know more about them they would give up going to Florida and California in winter."

Hard Place To Navigate

Magnetism In Gulf Of St. Lawrence Causes Compass To Deviate

We all know that the early mariners often got west into gravel in the Gulf of St. Lawrence because of strange magnetic properties there, which caused the compass to deviate

Now it appears that another discovery has been made, namely that at two points there the ballast has hung vertically. Along the shores of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, we are told, these deflections are of such magnitude and differ so greatly at various points that they must be determined with the greatest accuracy in order that approximate errors may not creep into the maps of the district. During the past summer the Geodetic Survey of Canada has completed a series of observations around the Gaspe Peninsula from Riviere du Loup to Campbellton for the purpose of discovering and eliminating these errors.

We live and learn. There may be something in Einstein's theory after all, and we may even discover that somewhere in this mysterious St. Lawrence region two parallel lines actually can meet.

The Poultry Industry Of Italy

Mr. F. C. Elford In In Europe On Behalf Of World's Poultry Science Association

In his recent visit to Italy on behalf of the forthcoming World's Poultry Congress, to be held in London, England, in July of this year, Mr. F. C. Elford, Dominion Poultry Husbandman, president of the World's Poultry Science Association, and vice-president of the Congress, discovered that considerable attention is being given to the poultry industry by the Government at Rome. He found there a very old organization called The Federated Societies, which not only directs the breed-up work but also takes the place of advisor to the Department of Agriculture in regard to the poultry industry. So close is this organization to the Government, that in a short time before Mr Elford's visit the same action moved its staff into one of the Royal Palaces of Italy

At Rovigo is the principal poultry station, where Mr. Elford found the descendants of Canadian "Rocks" and "Leghorns" taken to Italy after the 1927 Congress, at Ottawa. The first year the Canadian birds did not do well, but the first generation pullets in one pen laid 330 to 239 eggs each. Two of these hens raised broods of chickens. Very few cockerels and pullets from Canadian stock were also seen by Mr Elford Italy possesses a local breed known as "Padarne," a small breed somewhat similar to the Black Leghorn This is one of the more valuable breeds of the country and gives quite good results

How Nature Protects Trees

Removes Leaves In Fall So Water Has Beneficial Effects

Trees shed their leaves in the autumn to keep from drying out. "If they have water, says Martin L. Davey, the tree expert. "On the average tree there are several acres of leaves literally millions of them," says Davey. "Every leaf gives off water But during the winter the trees have a short supply of moisture Consequently, if the leaves remained on the tree and continued to draw water supply, the tree would soon die So nature sentences the Nature used by nature to make the leaves fall is complicated. Weeks before the first frost she begins to extract from the leaves all the food substance which the leaves manufacture and which the tree needs, and gradually the leaves turn brown Simultaneously, a thin-walled layer or cells is formed at the base of the leaf where it is attached to the twig This layer is a zone of weakness, so that eventually the leaf falls of its own weight or is blown off by the wind The scar left by the falling of the leaf is well protected by nature. It immediately becomes covered with a cork substance which is practically waterproof. Since the bark of the tree itself is almost impervious to water, the entire tree is practically 'bottled up' for the winter."—The Northwest.

A Truly Wise Man

In One Who Realizes He Is Not Wise

An article in E. W. Howe's Monthly says: "Because I am 76 years old I am asked whether I am wise; on the contrary, I have been remarking lately that there does not seem to have ever been a wise man in human history. Some have had more intelligence than others and more experience, but the wisest of the more notable ones have led me to conclude that an endowment of wisdom is impossible in transmission of one kind

The best we can do is to experiment candidly and extensively and come to such conclusions as are warranted Any man who is prejudiced is unable to come to sound conclusions; and we are all prejudiced. That seems the reason we cannot become wise."

Reason Most Persons Are Right-Handed

Have you ever tried to do anything with your left hand and noticed how awkward you are? Or if you happen to be left-handed you can't do very much with your right. Why is it?

This is the reason: The left side of the brain controls the right side of the body and the right side of the brain controls the left side of the body. The larger side of the brain then controls the most active hand.

In most cases, the left side of the brain is larger than the right because the blood supply seems to be richer in it means that because it is the easiest thing, most people become right-handed.

Try writing your name with your left hand and see what success you have. Your crooked writing only proves that you have not cultivated writing habits with that hand.

City Attends Sunday Vesper Tribute In Memory Of Late Citizen

The latest discovery as to the effect of city noise is that it stops the growth of animals. Those which "live in the rear and traffic streets do not reach the same size as others which are brought up in quiet country surroundings. Probably it has the same effect on human beings. We have not had the motor with us long enough to know for certain, but the nervous strains caused by living amid strident noise and commotion might well divert energy from growth. City folk in any case are usually smaller than the average. They may become smaller still.

There are between 400,000 and 500,000 miles of cable, lying on the sea floor—enough, if joined together, to circle the globe some seventeen times.

Golden Of a Thousand Hands

Banner Of the Junior Red Cross Falls Like a Benediction On All Who Gather

Somewhere in the marvellous East, there is a Goddess of a Thousand Hands who is worshipped as the Deity of Charity and Mercy. Her devotees bring homage to her and laud her for the beautiful qualities of compassion she is supposed to possess.

Somewhere in the wonderful West you may see, not a Goddess, but a "Thousand Living Hands" outstretched in deeds of loving kindness and tender mercy. The sick and the suffering are blessed by these kindly hands and hearts overflowing with an infinite pity for the unfortunate and the unhappy. This work of the Thousand Hands is known as the Junior Red Cross, and is found in the little white school house by the wayside, as well as in the palatial halls of learning of the great cities. Children the world over are eagerly reaching out their hands to help to their fellows under the banner of the Junior Red Cross which falls like a benediction on all with suffer.

Truly there is no great a wonder in the Junior Red Cross than the "Goddess" of the East, for one is human and real, and the other but a myth of the mind.

Germany's Floating Theatre

Ship Equipped With Modern Stage Will Cruise Around World

The newest German idea for entertainment is a floating theatre, for which a specially-established four masted schooner has been requisitioned. The ship will be called the "Prometheus" and will cruise the world, visiting such places as Hamburg, London, Spanish ports, South America, the Canary Islands and the Azores. The vessel will be equipped with a modern stage There will be a permanent company of a hundred people, and plays representative of the German spirit will be presented. They will also be on board an old German beer and wine tavern.

They are for duty inside the palaces on State occasions, and very rarely appear in the streets in uniform, plus steel helmets with 20-in. cocks' feathers standing over back and front. The corps is recruited from retired officers of the Army, and numbers fifty, assisted by mostly colonels, and members must be 6ft. high in socks. They attend the Sovereign at Levees, Courts and Investitures.

Stranded Fleeing

Agricultural Possibilities Of Southern Saskatchewan Discussed At Second Meeting

Economic possibilities of diversified farming in southern Saskatchewan were fully discussed at a meeting of the Southern Saskatchewan Section of the technical agriculturists, at Regina. C. M. Learmonth, superintendent of irrigation farms for the provincial government, was the speaker, dealing with various phases of agriculture. Following the address, discussion was led by J. G. Robertson, provincial livestock commissioner; P. R. Reed, dairy commissioner, and W. H. McLellan, poultry promotor. H. S. Fry, director of publicity for the Saskatchewan wheat pool, was present of the society occupied the chair.

Mr. Fry was chosen to represent the society at the dinner to be sponsored by the University of Saskatchewan alumni association in honor of Dr. Murray, president of the university, who will soon have completed 21 years in that office. The dinner will be held in the near future. Robert Savill was chosen to represent the organization at the dinner to be held later in the year to honor Walter Canada Livestock Union.

Using maps and charts, Mr. Learmonth emphasized the great potentialities Saskatchewan into four parts, and followed with statistics to show distinction of these sections. Agricultural facts revealed was that southern Saskatchewan, taken as a whole, was unsuperable for the raising of hay per cent. of all the horses of the province; 39 per cent. of the cattle; 37 per cent. of the milch cows; 29 per cent. of the sheep, and 42 per cent. of all the hogs. Further, Mr. Learmonth stated that irrigation farming was given to enormous returns either as regards quantity or quality.

As regards the production of grain, he explained that southern Saskatchewan grows approximately 50 per cent. of the total crop. Irrigation farming had also reached considerable proportion, while some 50 creameries were located at strategic points across the south section.

More Than Mere Toy

Many Boys Have Started Modest Business With Rabbits

Just as the city dweller finds in a window flower box an expression of love for the beautiful, so does the country lad find pleasure, and also profit, in a rabbit hutch and his small, find in a harmonica, or mouth-organ, a vehicle for musical talent. Many a boy has graduated to the masterly technique and charms of a symphony orchestra, the mouth-organ was the thing of contempt, but to many a boy it is alluring. It beautifully sweet, resonant, puts rhythm into his step, and although it has sunk to the level of the penny whistle, it is a real approach to the heights as a companion to the sailor at sea.

It is well to remember these facts in searching for an explanation of the popularity of the mouth-organ. Popular it is. Germany alone supplies 30,000,000 mouth-organs every year. But it does not propose to stop there. A large trust has been organized in Berlin, by which it is intended not only to control the mouth-organ market, but also to increase the possibilities of the instrument to which the ingenuity of the boy has given such magic and interest.

It would be unwise to put the mouth-organ down as a mere toy. Many a boy who has learned to play has been out of the rock of classical music has made his start on a mouth-organ, and has found an opportunity for self-expression which otherwise might have been denied him. All music is not boring, anyway. To some the memory of their first adventure into music with a mouth-organ is as fresh, and to them the mouth-organ will remain an instrument which, while lowly, is not necessarily low.

More Independence On Farm

The old myth that opportunity dwells only in cities was exploded long ago. While it is true that such great financial and industrial successes as are achieved by the very few are possible only in cities, farm life offers the greater certainty of independence and competence.

Iodine Valuable In Stock Feeding

Losses Prevented When Fed To Stock During Winter Months

Poor appetites and a dull, poor look is at the bottom of many of loss which animals always be born in mind that practically all cattle and animals are being kept in an abnormal environment. Under natural conditions they would roam at will, and instinct would direct them to the various foods to keep them in healthy condition. From this it will easily be seen that the aim of the stockman should be to supply conditions as near to the natural as possible.

During the summer months, there is little need for worry, when the stock is on the open range, but where confined part of the time as is the case with dairy cattle, or which it is known that a district is deficient in a certain vital element, even all this season, care must be taken in balancing up the ration, particularly in supplying the minerals.

Take the case of iodine, for instance. As pointed out by Dr. Lionel Stevenson, Provincial Zoologist for Ontario, there is no substitute for this. Goitre in lambs and calves, hairlessness in pigs, joint ills in foals are likely due to a lack of iodine in the rations fed to the breeding stock. In this section of the province, Agricultural facts revealed was that southern Saskatchewan, taken as a whole, was unsuperable for the raising of hay per cent. of all the horses of the province; 39 per cent. of the cattle; 37 per cent. of the milch cows; 29 per cent. of the sheep, and 42 per cent. of all the hogs. The Weak and the Strong

To the Strong, a Fall Reveals a Stepping Stone To Higher Things

There is a world of difference between failing and failing. The tragedy of failure and life is that so many people think that a fall is a failure. They fall, and then lie down broken-hearted to die. Every successful and happy person converts a fall into an inspiration to go higher Success lies not in never failing, but in rising every time you fall and rising stronger and more determined to watch the slippery and sloping places. To the strong, a fall reveals a stepping stone. To the weak it shows a stumbling block. We should strive to be like the heroes in the old Greek myth, and become stronger every time we are hurled to Mother Earth.

Proposed Branch Lines

C.P.R. Will Have Five Bills Before Parliament At Ottawa

Ottawa. — The Canadian Pacific will introduce five bills for branch lines before parliament this session. The bills provide for the construction of approximately 160 miles of line distributed among three provinces — Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Quebec. There are no bills

Proms a point on the Tuber subdivision of the C.P.R. near Tempest, Alberta, southwest for approximately ten miles.

From Dunelm, Saskatchewan, on the Swift Current subdivision of the C.P.R., southwesterly for a distance of about 50 miles.

The source states that the C.P.R. had submitted definite proposals to Great Britain and Japan. While the details were withheld it was understood the proposed reductions would show the 5-5-3 battleship ratio established at the Washington conference. It was said, however, that the proposed compromise from the three nations would be only tentative, the United States contending that it was contingent upon the settl ng of the cruiser question.

The proposed reduction in battleships is being negotiated now between the delegations of the three countries. The present attitude of the British delegation chiefs is said to be that there are prospects of resdiest acceptance, although it is known there is no agreement between any two.

The British capital ship total now stands at 39. The United States has 18 of the big ships and the Japanese ten. These limits were set by the Washington conference. Members of the French delegation expressed their approval of the proposed agreement and said they would be in accord with any such development.

Declares Next 50 YEARS BELONG TO THIS DOMINION

Washington, D.C.—"I think the next 50 years belong to Canada," said Sir Esme Howard.

The British ambassador, soon to retire, returned from his farewell visit to the Dominion obv ously refreshed and invigorated and full of admiration.

"It was delightful to visit your country again and renew old acquaintanceship," he said.

Discussing the economic future of Canada, Sir Esme remarked that unless lost fortune properties in Dominion's eggs were not all in one basket. He foresaw the industrialization of the country w th the development of hydro electric power sources," in which you are wealthier than any other land. There would be an advance in industry with the use of vast and varied resources and proportionate and necessary increase in agricultural production.

Expressing a part cular interest in his opening up of Hudson Bay, Sir Esme said he wished he had been able to visit that part of the country as well as the Maritime Provinces.

With obvious pride the ambassador lion spoke of the Dominion's nationhood, one of the things noted with a thrill of interest the national spirit of the Canadian which, inherently British, ever yet reflected strongly. He observed also the breadth of the Canadian outlook reflected in the press whose correspondence was given to world and imper al affairs.

The highest authority stated that Great Britain, the United States, and Japan expected to reach a tentative agreement on the ratio of 5-5-3 for reduction of capital or battleship contained in those countries' navies.

This source stated the U.S. had submitted definite proposals to Great Britain and Japan. While the details were withheld it was understood the proposed reductions would show the 5-5-3 battleship ratio established at the Washington conference. It was said, however, that the proposed compromise from the three nations would be only tentative, the United States contending that it was contingent upon the settl ng of the cruiser question.

London, England.—The body of Hon. P. C. Larkin, Canada's high comm ssioner in London, who died suddenly on Feb. 4, was cremated privately at Golders Green.

Col. the Hon. J. L. Ralston, Canadian Minister of National Defence, was one of the small group attending.

Eight years almost to the day from the date of Mr. Larkin's entrance to the high commissioner's office a memorial service was held at Christ Church, Lancaster Gate, adjoining the Larkin residence. The Bishop of Kensington conducted the service.

When Canada House was opened by His Majesty a few years ago, a new register for visitors was installed. The first entry reads: "Peter Larkin, Toronto, and Mrs. Larkin." Between the visitors record the probable length of their stay in London appears the word "indefinite" in Mr. Larkin's handwriting.

NO CHANGE IN POLICY OF POOL IS EXPECTED

Winnipeg. — Shadow of falling wheat prices still hung ominously over the Winnipeg market, unchanged by prairie governmental declaration of financial support for the wheat pools. Meanwhile, thousands of western farmers are well the end of a period of drastic price reductions characterized by pool officials as unwarranted by basic supply and demand conditions.

Resources of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta stood pledged as guarantees for the 15 per cent. margin demanded by Canad an banks on loans to the co-operative—the exact ways and means will be discussed to increase livestock production. The conference is to be called by Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, and it is expected he will have been sufficiently recovered from his recent illness to take some part in the sessions, although Dr. Grisdale, deputy minister of agriculture, will probably be chairman.

The fact that Canada's livestock production is not keeping pace as rapidly in many lines as the domestic consumption and consequently the home market is responsible for increasing in the reason the livestock representatives and representatives of the pools believe it will be asked to sit in with the departmental officials.

Better Radio Reception

Decrease In Sun Spots Should Help the Listen Ers

Toronto Ont — Radio reception should improve during the next few months according to the report of W. E. Harper, Victoria, retiring president of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, which was read at the annual "at home" of that organization here.

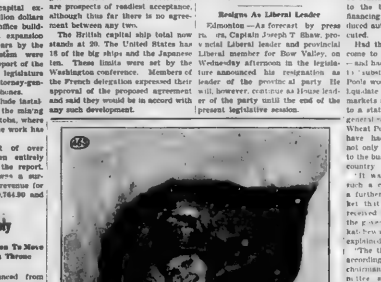
Mr Harper based his assertion regarding radio receipt on on the fact that it is poorest when sun spots are brightest.

H. R. Kingston, London, was elected president of the society, and J S. Plaskett, Victoria, was chosen honorary president.

Mrs Edmonds Victoria Celebrates

Victoria. — Provincial government plans to use at the education of soldiers' dependent children provide for an expenditure of $12,000 for this year and for the educational care of from seventy-five to one hundred students. Hon Joshua Hinchliffe, Minister of Education, explained to the British Columbia legislature when the legislation was considered in committee.

Little Lady Digs Igloo



She has dug herself a snow cave just outside the Chateau Frontenac and she expects to have the time of her life at the Winter Ice Pageant at Quebec City this month. Not that there will be anything there to compare with her own igloo—and even the Chateau Frontenac itself in her opinion, and fancy skating, ski-jumping and joring, snow-shoeing, dog sledding and all the varied winter sport amusements that Jack Strathbee, director of the Pageant, will invent do not stack up one-two-three with this real honest-to-goodness home in the snow Which goes to prove that there are attractions for all tastes at the Pageant and so one will go away unsatisfied.

Her Majesty the Snow Queen

Miss Gwendolyn Abe Stanlipton, of Calgary, Queen of the Banff Carnival to be held at the famous Rocky Mountain resort has always been an outdoor girl. Her Majesty is proficient in ski-ing, snowshoeing, tobogganing and skating and will also be able to show her skill in outstanding since the hot springs at Banff form an unique attraction during the winter It was her general all-around popularity which crowned her Queen of the Banff Carnival against strong competition from Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver, as well as Banff and Calgary.

ACTION TAKEN ONLY TO SECURE A FAIR PRICE

Edmonton. — That the attitude of the Western wheat pools in holding the 1929 wheat crop from the market is greatly misunderstood both by Canadians, and in the Old Country, was the contention of Premier J. E. Brownlee, of Alberta, during his address to the Alberta legislature recently.

"The pools are not holding wheat with the object of forcing prices to unreasonable levels." Mr declared.

"They are merely refusing to dump their wheat on the market in view of the carryover from the previous year, and having in mind the effect that such an action would show

"Argent ne has been compelled to put his grain in the market at the best price it could get, and the pool had to do one of two things—either dump the wheat and see prices drop still lower, or hold back in order not to do serious injury to the Canadian growers.

"I cannot see anything wrong with that action, yet it is reported that it has created a bad impression in England, and even the boycotting of Canad an wheat, if press reports are correct.

"Such a boycott is unfortunate, as Canadian wheat growers are merely endeavoring to secure a fair price for their product. If there is any way in wh ch public men or governments can help in this misunderstanding, it should be done in the cause not only of Canada, but of the whole of the Emp re."

Conference To Discuss Livestock Situation

Minister Of Agriculture Will Called Meeting For March

Ottawa. — The provincial governments will be invited to send representatives to a meeting here, the first week in March, when ways and means will be discussed to increase livestock production. The conference is to be called by Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, and it is expected he will have been sufficiently recovered from his recent illness to take some part in the sessions, although Dr. Grisdale, deputy minister of agriculture, will probably be chairman.

Heavy Haul Carried By Air

Figures For Last Year Show 435,163 Pounds Handled

Ottawa, Ont. — A total of 435,163 pounds of postal matter was flown over the various air mail routes operated dur ng 1929, according to figures compiled by the post office department. These figures, it is pointed out, may be amended in an upward direction when more complete information

From Sioux Lookout to Narrow Lake, in Northern Ontario, and return, the amount of mail carried was greater than that transported over any other single route. The poundage over this route was 83,604. The Montreal-Rimouski route, operated for only seven months of the year, came second with 63,672 pounds. On the trip made from Edmonton to Atlantic, with stops at many intermediate points, the weight of mail carried was 18,779 pounds.

F gures show that the air mail is used most in out of the way places where far greater weights are carried than over the well established daily services in districts where the ga'n in time is not so significant.

Departing Fleet

First Unit Of Fleet At Montreal, Sept., To Be Built This Year

The first unit of the Canadian Coal, Power and Shipbuilding Company (Montreal), will be constructed during this year, according to Hon. H. H. Stevens, M.P., Vancouver.

This first unit will cost $180,000 for equipment alone while the cost of the hull will be incurred by the company we'll bring this total to more than $500,000.

It is the intention of this company to manufacture briquettes, dry coal and power at their mine, which is located in the Bourin Bed, five miles south of Bienfait.

Steps are being taken at the present time to secure a rail line from the mine to the main line of the C.P.R. Soo line.

For the past year, E. V. Campion Weyburn, president of the coal company, has worked hard to interest Canadian financiers in the possibilities of the Southern Saskatchewan field. He has been successful and through his endeavors a new industry will be started in the province.

Hon. Mr. Stevens declared that he was acting on the advice of H. N. Freeman, consulting engineer, Vancouver. Mr. Freeman had carefully inspected the field and had been impressed with the great possibilities. Why the original outlay in equipment will be modest in proportion to the possibilities of future development, Hon. M. Stevens declared that the success of the venture lay with the people of the Province.—Regina Leader

The Council Line In Condemning His 50th Anniversary Of Service

What seemed many years ago to be a remarkable feat on the part of Chancellor "Shanty" Macdonald's recent feat of cold-winter crossing between New York and England, which was accomplished in 4 days, 23 hours and 35 minutes, at an average speed of 25.43 knots. This time figured from Sandy Hook, New York to Eddystone Light, Plymouth, is only a few hours longer than the "Mauretania's" best time of 4 days, 17 hours and 30 minutes, at an average speed of 27.22 knots registered between the same points, last August. In view of the newer engines that have been experienced recently, which have given even greater speed than 2 and 3 days late, this last crossing will probably rank as the most outstanding on the high seas this winter.

It is interesting to note that this year the Cunard Line celebrates its 90th anniversary, which recalls to mind the exploits of that great Canadian, Samuel Cunard, founder of the Cunard Line, the oldest steamship company operating on the North Atlantic route, which, in 1839, or months th ted Engl nd steamship, the Unicorn, of 700 tons and 60 horsepower. Her capabilities at an early age towards stopping Commencing with a single sailing captured enemy prizes and they carpenter, and rop ily extending, his business, he was, at the age of 37 engaged in the forwarding of mail to Newfoundland. Shortly afterwards he was distributor of the Mayflower mails in Canada, the United States, Newfoundland and Bermuda, and was transported in his fleet of 10-gun ships.

1831 he became interested in the advent of steam shipping, heading the list of subscribers to the ill-fated "Royal William," the first vessel to cross the Atlantic entirely by steam. Fired with the possibilities of the future of steam navigation, Cunard conceived the idea of applying this new method of locomotion to his own ships. Samuel Cunard, who was at that time known as the "Shanty" of the Atlantic as a genius of nerve and a man whose 40 odd years of sea the Maritime with one of the chief sources of their activities, left old England in 1839, returning to the native province from the lord commissioners of the Admiralty, asking him to submit tenders for the conveyance of His Majesty's mails to the North American continent.

After experiencing the usual little difficulty in raising sufficient capital to embark on his ambitious enterprise, he was finally successful in this regard and gave orders for the construction of four paddle-wheel steamers for the following dimensions: 1,154 gross tons, length 207 feet, breadth 34 feet 6 inches, depth 21 feet 4 inches, with a power of 740 and a speed of 8.5 knots. These vessels were known as the "Britannia," "Arcadia," "Columbia," and were to be delivered in 1840 to carry the mails. A contract was awarded to Cunard's company, known at that time as the British and North American Royal Mail Steam Packet Company. Perhaps the best known and most worthy remembrance of these vessels was the famous old "Britannia," of 1,154 tons displacement that crossed the Atlantic under her own steam.

One of the proudest moments in Samuel Cunard's life was in 1841, when he set sail from Liverpool on board the "Britannia" bound for North America, and were to be delivered in 1840 to carry the mails. Perhaps the best known and most worthy remembrance of these vessels was the famous old "Britannia," of 1,154 tons displacement that crossed the Atlantic under her own steam.

One of the proudest moments in Samuel Cunard's life was in 1841, when he set sail from Liverpool on board the "Britannia" bound for North America for Halifax and Boston. the forerunner of his present fleet of Canadian ocean liners, sailing today nearly a mill on tons of sh pping. After battling with the elements for 14 days the Atlantic for 13 days, he triumphantly steamed into Halifax harbour on the morning of the 17th, finally arriving in Boston a few hours later, which he was accustomed by the populace for his enterprise and courage. Ninety-one years ago less than seventy 2,000 dinner invitations during the first week of his arrival in Boston.

Samuel Cunard lived to see his great conception take practical form. He was knighted by the British Government in 1859 for his services rendered during the Crimean War. He died in 1865 at the age of 80, and his son Edward followed in his footsteps.

Entering upon the 90th anniversary of steady progress in a life of service to the public, the present Cunard Line with its painful "Berengaria," stately "Aquitania," speedy "Mauretania," spiffy deer bed de luxe "Franconia" and the handsome "Laconia" with a large fleet of consort vessels, maintains a regular service between Liverpool and Canada, the United States and the North American continent.

Officials of the company announced recently on the satisfactory progress made during the past year when many thousands of passengers were carried and freight handled with regularity and safety by the many vessels of the company, both ocean and associated companies, which showed a big increase over numbers carried during the preceding years It is with a comfortable portion of long years of experience that the oldest steamship company operating on the Atlantic ocean begins the ninety-first year of greater era of progress in the years to come.

THE TWELVE SENT FORTH

Golden Text: "The harvest indeed is plenteous, but the laborers are few; Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that He send forth laborers into His harvest."—Matthew 9.37, 38. Lesson: Matthew 9.35 to 11.1.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 58.7-12.

Explanations and Comments

The Twelve Sent On a Mission Tour, 10.1—Jesus had already called to Him twelve disciples, and now He sent them out two by two, as Mark tells us, that they might gain training for His work for He would work through them. He gave them authority over unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all kinds of diseases. They were "Hitherto Godless peasants" for the most part, but they were the men He could get.

The Names Of the Twelve, 10.2-4.—There are four complete lists of the apostles: Matthew 10.2-4; Mark 3.16-19; Luke 6.14-16; and Acts 1.13. In all the lists they are arranged in four groups. The first of the first group is always Peter; that of the second, Philip; that of the third, Matthew; that of the fourth, Alphaeus. The order of naming within these in each group var es in the different lists, except that Judas Iscariot is always the last one mentioned.

Simon, who is called Peter (Rock), and Andrew, his brother; James (the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, the beloved disciple) were two pairs of brothers in our second lesson. Peter and Andrew were fishermen at first, and possibly James and John were also.

Philip was a fellow townsman of Andrew and Peter (John 1.43-44; 12.20, 21; 14.8,9) Polycrates, Bishop of Ephesus, in the latter part of the second century, refers to Philip as "one of the light of Asia who sleeps at Hierapolis, and two of his daughters who grew old in virginity, and another daughter who lived entirely in the Holy Spirit, and rests at Ephesus."

James the son of Alphaeus, is called the less, or rather the Little, in Mark 15.40; probably he was short of stature, and was thus distinguished from the other James, the son of Zebedee. He must not be confounded with James "the Lord's brother," who was a prominent figure in the history of The Acts, and to whom Paul refers as one of the pillars of the Church. Thaddeus is identified with Judas (son or brother, R.V.), of James (Luke 6.16), and the Judas Iscariot, or John 14.22. In Mark 3.18 he is called Lebbaeus, who is more commonly known by his names than his surname. Of Simon the Canaanite we have his question in John 14 22. Simon is called the Canaanite in Matthew and Zelotes in Luke. The designation or appellation Iscariot is said to be the birthplace of Cain; The "Zealot," to us is being a member of the party of

Right Walk in the Rockies

Longest Trail Through Mountain Range

The night wind from the mountain tops is a meteorological phenomenon found among high mountains and noticeable in many places in Waterton Lakes National Park, in the province of Alberta. Warm air rises from the valleys during the heat of the day but at sunset a cool current of air from the peaks rushes downwards, bringing with it the scents of pines and larches and, it may be, of the flowers of some unknown species of mountain-top flowers. This downward current is frequently noticeable at Cameron Falls, at the base of Bofa Mountain and in many other places in the park.

Acid Stomach
Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and soreness about your bones after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The most effective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its introduction.
One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is tasteless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer when you learn how quickly, how gratifyingly, "just since George B's boys have left, he's the most lonely. And hasn't he always banged you out before?" she asked, as if that settled it.
Charm'an laughed.
"Perhaps for the very reason he yearns for some variety. Forget it, Grandma. It's the least of my troubles. Now that you've brought it to mind, more important to talk about. You'd never in the wide world guess what I've got in mind for a husband in making a good impression, I've—I've taken a boarder!"
CHAPTER IX.
For once Grandma forgot the passing. Her eyes left the window to rest upon her granddaughter in amazement and consternation.
Charm'an Davis, have you taken leave of your senses? What'd get in dinner? She'd be a nuisance. I won't have her!"
"He isn't a she," responded Charman, enjoying to the full the old lady's indignation. "Perhaps he will be a nuisance, but if his boarding fee will help the doctor—"
"What's Father John got to do with it?" interrupted Grandma, giving a swift survey to the street to be sure that nothing of importance was going on.
"Everything," replied Charman and proceeded to repeat most of what the old man had told her.
"Well," Grandma commented, leaning back in her chair and drawing a deep breath, "it beats the Dutch! How old is he, dearie? I hope he's old enough to know his business."
"The doctor called him a boy; but he knows his business, you may insure, or he wouldn't trust us to him!"
"Trust us to him!" Grandma echoed indignantly. "Do you suppose I've let him lay a hand on me? Well, it'll be a great change for us, Charm'an. It's all of seventeen years since we've had a man in the house. I hope he's not untidy. Sometimes menfolks make a terrible lot of work around a place. And they eat hearty. You'll have to get him something extra for supper. Shall we give him the east chamber?"

What Is a Sleeper

Definition Given By Magazine Maker One Very Sleepy

The following "good-night story" is taken from the Southern Railway Magazine: A sleeper is one who sleeps. A s'eeper is also the name given to a railway carriage in which people sleep. A sleeper is also the name of the boulks of wood that hold the rails on wh ch the sleeper runs while the sleeper sleeps. Therefore, while the sleeper sleeps in the sleeper, the sleeper runs on the sleeper over the sleeper under the sleeper until the sleeper which carries the sleeper jumps the sleeper and wakes the sleeper sleeping on the sleeper under the sleeper, and there is no longer any sleep for the sleeper sleeping on the sleeper.

A shortage of meat and threatened diminution of Russ an livestock of all sorts have inspired the Soviets to adopt extraordinary measures to conserve domestic animals and safeguard future meat and dairy produce supplies.

Preventing Illness

Doctors Of the Future May Devote More Time To Preventive Than To Cure

In late years the tendency of medical practice has been steadily away from the old family doctor toward specialist on in particular lines of medicine The campaign carried on by the Metropolitan Life and other insurance companies to encourage prevent ve medicine in preference to curative medicine, may bring about the day when the family doctor will be a thing of the past. It is said that he is sleepy under the name of the general practitioner. But if he does become as popular as formerly, it is said that he will fit a new role. He will devote most of his time to keeping his pat ents well instead of merely attending them when they are sick. The whole basis of the movement is the growing practice of physical medical examination every two years or six months It is contended that not only will a periodic health examination discover tuberculosis in its early epidemic, but that it will also become the first practical step in the salvation of the victims of heart disease and other forms of illness from extinction Ottawa Journal

Not Suitable For Tropics

British Dirigible Will Be Used In Northern Latitudes

The new Brit sh airship R-100 is not considered suitable for use in tropical climates and consequently her operations will be confined, for some time at least, to northern latitudes, said Hon F. Montague, undersecretary for air, in parliament yesterday.

Mr. Montague explained the R-100 was fitted with gasoline engines which would be highly dangerous in the extreme heat of the tropics. The R-100 is to make her trial flight from Britain to Canada in the spring.

Boy Accidentally Shot Near Derwent

Louis Hicks, Aged 10, in Hospital Here

Louis Hicks, age 10 years, son of Earl Hicks was brought into the hospital here last week suffering from a gunshot wound. The bullet travelled along the left breast bone of the victim, over the ribs and came to rest under the armpit.

Little Louis, according to the story told in the police by his father, had gone over to the McIlowell farm to play with James McIlowell, 15, and John McIlowell, 12. Deacon was also there

James McIlowell brought a .22-rifle out of the house and showed it to the other three boys, following which some dispute arose as to who was to get the rifle back into the house.

Then Deacon pointed the gun at Hicks and said, "I'll shoot you if you won't take it."

Deacon pressed the trigger. To his horror there was a report and the Hicks boy dropped in the snow.

Before he had time for the rest of the house, Jas. McDowell had loaded it, unknown to the other boys, the report arose.

Hicks was rushed to the Vermilion hospital, where Dr. Knoll extracted the bullet. He was reported resting nicely from the wound but late word states that pneumonia had set in, causing considerable anxiety over the youth's condition.

The financial statement for the year was read by the local secretary treasurer who attended for the purpose. Questions were asked and answered and the statement accepted by the meeting.

A resolution was passed asking the Council to take steps to come to a settlement with the Provincial Government in the matter of Seed Grain and Feed Relief. This resolution was to be brought to the attention of the ratepayers at the general annual meeting to behold in Vermilion a few days later.

New Nipawin Bridge Will Provide Gateway To Rich Area In Northern Saskatchewan

Faith in Canada's northern areas of resource becomes reality in the Canadian Pacific bridge now nearing completion at Nipawin, Saskatchewan. Designed to take the heaviest transcontinental traffic to be built, this magnificent structure, a little more than 1,907 feet long, spans the Saskatchewan River, at a point leading from the more definitely agricultural section into timber and mining districts of recognized magnitude. It will afford ready access to still unexhausted farm lands and direct transportation possibilities for those who will explore and develop mineral expanses rich in promise. The end of the year saw it finished.

Among the major operations of the Canadian Pacific Railway for the year 1929, the first bridge was opened for October, 1928, is one of the exceptionally large steel structures in the west. In symmetrical spans it reaches north and south banks of the Saskatchewan at about 150 feet above water level of the river. It provides not only rail-road transit calculated for 60,000 pounds axle load on the engine drivers, but is made double-decked fashion, with a sixteen foot highway for vehicular traffic on the lower chords, designed for fifteen ton loading.

This steel roadway, built on a crossoled understructure with a two inch untreated wearing surface, will carry the Saskatchewan Government's provincial highway across the river. Leg stative forces co-operated with the railway company in meeting the situation which naturally proved a hindrance to agricultural development. Hitherto a ferry was required to convey travellers and vehicles across, a mode of travel full of difficulty by reason of the steep descents to the water level on both banks, a particularly serious cond tion in winter. At each end there is a trestle approach connecting the bridge roadway with the usual highway to the river. What this connecting link will mean in agriculture settlement and progress can scarcely be computed.

T. C. Macnab, Engineer of Construct on, describes this latest of Canadian Pacific bridge achievements in the west as of deck riveted truss design with spans 280 feet long. The deck plate girders at the north approach are supported on steel towers each carried on low concrete pedestals. The abutments are of concrete and the four centre spans consist of deck trusses carried on reinforced concrete piers. The three centre piers are 130 feet high from the bottom of the footings and those connecting the outer spans are 120 feet.

Engineering skill of a high order has come into play in the construction of the Nipawin bridge. Mr. Macnab explains that owing to the depth of the water in the turbulent and shifting Saskatchewan channel, vertical supports from the river bed were impracticable. The great 280 foot spans were built out by derrick car from each pier and were added to till the steel stretched horizontally and reached the supporting spans at the end of the truss. More than 300,000 rivets have been driven by the air hammers in the field to take care of the eight and a half million pounds of structural steel required in the making

The bridge has been built by assistant engineer H. D. Brydon-Jack, whose wife, an artist of ability, has painted it with its romantic environs so skilfully that she has produced an art subject of much beauty which is now on display in the Royal Art Gallery at Montreal.

Up where the Saskatchewan waters begin to slough their dun color and take on the blue of mountain streams, this fine structure becomes part of a landscape typical of the vigorous North-West.

When the project was first mooted, D. C. Coleman, vice-president of the Company's Western Lines, referred to this railroad roadway as one of the finest structures of its kind—a main gateway to the North, and tangible evidence of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's faith in the mineral and agricultural resources of Canada's great middle northern area.

Treated Cello With X-Ray

Destroyed Beetles in Wood and Greatly Improved Tone

A musician who played the cello was worried about his beautiful instrument, which was infected with wood beetle and was gradually losing its tone. Having heard of wonderful cures with X-rays, he took the cello to a London hospital and asked whether anything could be done. The doctors were rather amused at the idea, but finally decided to one of them that a powerful dose of X-rays might kill the beetle. So the cello was put on X-ray couch and was given a strong dose of the rays.

The novel treatment had the desired effect, for not only was the beetle killed, but the tone of the instrument was much improved. This happened about a year ago, and the delighted cellist went to the hospital the other day to tell the doctor of the lasting benefit of the treatment.

Large Metal Shipment

Aluminum slabs and bars to the value of $1,500,000, originating in the Province of Quebec, have been shipped from Vancouver to Japan. They represent the largest shipment of metal ever to leave the western port —being some 3,000 tons in weight—and it is reported that a second similar shipment will follow shortly. Another outward movement of some importance is that of lead and zinc concentrates from a mine near Field, B.C., to refineries in Japan and the United States. These shipments are likely soon to run from 5,000 to 10,000 tons per month.

Indigent Patient Problem

Question Is Discussed By Saskatchewan Medical Council

Efforts to solve what is known as the indigent patient problem have been commenced by medical men of Saskatchewan. While views of the physicians have not been given, the matter was discussed at the annual meeting of the Saskatchewan medical council.

The medical council spent much time on the problem of the relation of the medical man to the public, particularly in regard to indigent people.

"No scheme has been decided on," Dr. O. H. Rothwell, newly elected president, states. "A conference has been called for interested organizations in the province and we hope to reach a solution.

"The meeting will be held in Regina some time later this month. The United Farmers, municipal officers, medical men and other interested parties, will take part in the conference. The exact date has not been decided on.

Dr. Rothwell said that the matter was one of much interest to the medical council in the province and elsewhere in Canada. It is expected that it will provide one of the important discussions at the gathering of the Canadian Medical Association, which will be held at Winnipeg during August.

It is expected that a number of Saskatchewan physicians will attend the Winnipeg gathering. The association has met on three or two previous occasions in Canada.

Will Discourage Immigration

No Change Is Made In Quota Of Immigrants From Europe

No change has been made in the quota of colonists to be brought from central European countries in 1930, according to officials of the Department of Immigration and Colonization of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Montreal. The reply was given to the question of the number of Mennonite families coming to Canada this year. A conference between the railway officials and the Department of Immigration, of the Domin on Government, made allowances for a few Mennonite families last September, and since that time no changes have been made.

Canada Occupies Foremost Place Among Countries of the World In Systematic Seed Improvement

A Challenge To the West

Western Canada Must Show Superiority Of Our Grain At World's Fair

"Mr. Craig, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, points out that the world's grain fair which is to be held in Regina two years hence will put Western Canada on trial as a grain-growing country. The prairie provinces have so persistently invaded Chicago and carried off honors at the International that they have invited friendly reprisals. Every grain-growing state in the Union, and probably every outstanding grain-producing country in the world, will have exhibits at Regina. Canada's rivals are thus being offered an opportunity to "carry the war into Africa," as they have very substantial inducements to do so. If Western Canada can capture the awards at Regina that will be a more convincing demonstration of the superiority of our grain than the honors which have been brought back from Chicago. If outsiders carry away these prizes, the prestige of the grain-growing provinces will suffer in surrounding degree. The grain to be shown at Regina will have to be grown during the next two seasons. It is not too early to centre attention upon that event and begin to prepare for it.—Edmonton Bulletin.

For Study Of Cancer

Colony Of Mice To Be Kept For Experimental Purposes At Laboratory In Maine

A city of mice—20,000 to 40,000 of them—will ultimately be under the eyes of scientists at the Jackson Memorial Laboratory, at Bar Harbor, Me., for the study of cancer. Clarence C. Little, director of the laboratory, and former president of the University of Maine, and the University of Michigan, has announced.

A complete record of the life history of each of the small rodents will be kept and although no startling or sensational results are expected, Mr. Little and members of the staff hope to learn some things that will aid in the fight against the disease.

It is again predicted that paper su ts for men will be added to the paper plates, paper towels, and other cheap and easily replaceable paper articles in general use.

Canada's Big Grain Elevator

A new seed grain elevator, erected by the government of Canada at a cost of $200,000, has just been opened formally for business in Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan. This addition to the machinery of the grain industry of western Canada is the first plant of its type to be constructed on the continent. It is a sixteen-storey building furnished with the most modern appliances for the handling and cleaning of seed grain and is capable of receiving such grain at the rate of 5,000 bushels an hour for storage in its bins. The plant has been erected for the Saskatchewan Registered Seed Growers, Limited. This organization is commonly known as the Seed Grain Pool. It numbers among its directors two celebrated growers of seed grain, J. C. Mitchell, of Dahinda, and Dr. Seager Wheeler, of Rosthern, both of whom have been winners in the past of the highest award for samples of hard spring wheat at international grain exhibitions in Chicago and, in consequence, have held for a season the title of "Wheat King" of America. The Seed Grain Pool, in Saskatchewan, has been in existence for five years and in that time has quadrupled the volume of its business.

The new plant in Moose Jaw thus will play a part in the operations of one group of workers in a very important branch of agriculture in Canada. Of such workers four or five thousand are enrolled in the Canadian Seed Growers' Association. This organization was formed for the purpose of promoting interest in the production and use of high-grade seeds of Canadian farms, and its members throughout the Dominion carry on their operations in accordance with rules laid down. In a number of the provinces, too, subsidiary seed growers' associations have been in existence for a number of years. Members of these organizations have supplied most of excellent quality to farms a short distance from their homes, while a few years ago that "among the countries of the world, Canada occupies a foremost place in regard to its organization both for systematic seed improvement and for handling high-class seed in commercial quantities under efficient control." This is as it should be, because clean seed of good varieties of plants and of a high standard of quality is necessary for the welfare of agriculture in this country. — Mail and Empire.

Mr. Found said that in succeeding seasons the figure would revert to 5,000,000 pounds.

WILLIAM McBRIDE

The funeral of the late William McBride was held on Tuesday afternoon from the Minburn United church when a large gathering of friends and neighbours of the district assembled to pay their last respects to one of the first settlers in that community, who passed away on Saturday last after a long and painful illness, in the 74th year of his age.

The service was taken by Rev. T. J. Stainton, who gave a stirring address on the text, "I have come that ye might have life," making a strong point of the way that was and is open to all to fulfill his purposes and the urgent need at the present time of staple home surroundings in the training of our young people for the life both here and beyond.

The casket was surrounded by a beautiful floral setting, including a large standing wreath sent from deceased's brother in Milwaukee Wis (U.S.A.); another from the family at home, and several others from the district.

Interment was made in the Minburn cemetery, arrangements being under the direction of J. Murray of Vermilion.

Mr. McBride was in his 69th year, and leaves behind his wife, one daughter Mrs. F. Kitchen, and one son William James, who resides north west of town. The sympathy of a large number of friends is extended to the family in their sad bereavement.

NEARLY FIFTY PER CENT INCREASE IN SUN LIFE BUSINESS

It is only four years since, for the first time in the history of life assurance in Canada, a Canadian Company was able to announce over a billion dollars of assurance in force. The event was properly celebrated by the Company in question, Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, and evoked much gratified comment from public men, financiers and journalists, as well as crowing general satisfaction among the Canadian public it was regarded as a natural achievement in a little more than fifty years of that company's history.

President Monday upon that occasion was not over-confident that the one billion dollar mark would carry the Company to even more surprising achievements in the next decade. But in doubting it even the President of the company himself, who personifies conservatism and optimism, could have foreseen that the second billion would be put capped within four years. Yet this is what has happened. The annual report of the Sun Life Company published today shows that the one billion mark now in force are close to two and a half billion or $2,981,000,000. Some idea of the magnitude of these figures may be gleaned from the fact that they exceed the total national wealth of the Dominion by more than $100,000,000.

T. B. MACAULAY
President, Sun Life of Canada

The new paid-for business for the year shows an increase of $212,200,000 or 48 per cent of an increase over the preceding year. The increase is given as "due to the total business written in 1929. The actual new paid-for business was $651,650,000. This is an annual volume of new business during the months that prevailed during the latter part of 1929, and reveals what a wide field of usefulness organization has been created by the Sun Life Company and how the ability to enjoy public con-

The assets of the Company were increased by nearly $90,000,000. They now stand at $[illegible],000.

The profits paid to policy holders and beneficiaries, death claims, matured endowments, profits, etc., it is interesting to note that not only have pay ments of this head since organization reached the sum of $119,674,000 but that in a moment, together with the amount at present held for surrender by or benefit of policyholders exceeds the total amount received from them in premiums by $139,250,000.

Even more impressive in the statement that the rate of interest earned on the Company's holdings, but of those were entirely eliminated the rate would still be 6.80 per cent which is remarkable, surpassed by [illegible] life assurance company [illegible] reflects the sound conservatism of Canadian business

Work Together For Prosperity

As a direct result of the partial crop failure experienced by the three prairie provinces last year, and the disastrous "break" in the stock markets which although long predicted as inevitable, nevertheless caught thousands of people unawares and resulted in enormous losses to many, there developed a feeling of depression and uneasiness throughout Canada and the United States.

Coming in a year, during the first nine or ten months of which employment in Canada reached a higher peak than ever before in the history of the Dominion, with greater industrial activity, more development work done and larger building programmes started or in course of completion than the parades of a greater degree of unemployment when winter set in. Although seasonal, and therefore temporary in character, this situation added to the prevailing depression.

Finally, the world's wheat situation became the cause of deep anxiety and concern in Canada because of the fact that this Dominion is now the chief exporter of wheat and wheat flour in the country of the world. Canada was not the only country wh ch produced an abnormally large wheat crop in 1928, and when the Argentine crop was thrown on the market—it has to be marketed and sold as soon as it is harvested—a condition existed which necessitated either the holding of the Canadian crop, or sell ng it in competition with the Argentine at a price which would have yielded less than the actual cost of production. Wheat pools, banks, wheat boards and other Canadian exporters, supported by the banks, withheld their wheat from export unless, and until, a fair price was obtainable. As a result transportation interests suffered for the time being and export trade declined, and some uneasiness developed because of the unprecedented stand on.

For a time the croakers, pessimists and pranksters of blue ruin had their innings. And the more they talked, and bemoaned, the larger became the number of people inclined to believe that the fundamental conditions of the economics of the situation were substantially sound. It was largely a "state of mind," a mental depression which afflicted many people.

If any one is inclined to challenge this statement, let him examine the situation more closely.

For example, the first day's showing of the new 1930 model by a well known manufacturer of automobiles in Canada and the United States brought in $30,000 00 in orders

Despite the degree of unemployment exist ng in Canada, it is less than in any other country, and the actual number of those employed is greater than in any previous year.

The Canadian National Railways have placed, or shortly will place, orders for new equipment and embark on a programme of extensions, betterments, covering larger expenditures than in past years.

The C.P.R. has just announced a programme of extensions, betterments, and purchase of new equipment for 1930 involving the expenditure of millions.

All Western Governments are planning highway construction programmes in excess of anything attempted in any one year in the past.

Building programmes in the larger cities are a course of preparation which will equal, if not surpass, the high records of 1929, which outdistanced all former years

These but not been a bank failure in Canada, all our large insurance and financial companies are sound, all our large industrial concerns are busy and prosperous, our mineral production increases in volume and value every year, the large peace of the world are prosperous and at peace.

Then what is there to worry about? Nothing. All the people have to do is to throw off their mental depression, and the fog will be lifted and dissipated.

Governments and Big Business are doing their share not only to keep the country busy and prosperous, but to speed up business and increase prosperity. It remains for the individual man and woman to do likewise. If each individual citizen does his or her share by tackling the particular piece of work close to their hands, 1930 w ll prove one of Canada's banner years.

Let every workman take a little more interest in his job, throw a bit more energy into it, strive to perform somewhat better work. In a word, give the best possible value in work for the wages received, and the effect will be startl ng

Let the farmer tackle his problem with renewed energy, and confidence will come Every farm method improved, every vigorous campaign on on noxious weeds, every new, pig or hen added to the farm, every little vegetable garden planted, will make for profit, contentment and prosperity.

Now energy and energe as by every merchant, the adoption of new and better methods, scrapping the old and obsolete and introducing somet ng new and better, will make for progress greater turn-overs, larger profits.

Let everybody work together for prosperity in 1930, and prosperity will be assured

Back from a day ag flight from Calgary to Vancouver across the highest peaks of the Canadian Rockies, Flying Officer W. L. No longer need the mountains be barriers to the development of aviat on between the prairies and coast cities, he said. An air mail and passenger service could be operated, he said, and the trip between the two c ties made in four hours.

The trip, which started from Merritt, B.C., where the aviators were delayed for a few days because of fog, ended at Calgary where where landing fields could be built.

WHY SUFFER FROM ANAEMIA

When Health and Strength Can Be Obtained Through Purifying the Blood

Anaemia is the med cal term for th k. Anaemic people are pale, and loose strength; becomes pale, is short of breath, and suffers with weak heart palpitation after the slightest exertion. The heart work becomes a burden and it: does not seem worth living. Anaemia is not a new disease by any means. Long ago it was checked It will stead ly grow worse .What is needed is a way of supply ng good blood tonic, one that will go right to the root of the trouble and drive all impur ties from the system Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—that famous blood-builder and nerve restorative.

Mrs. John Bain, Avenue Road, Toronto, says: For a number of years I was in an anaemic condition and suffering ret d through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before I began using them I used to see my self growing more and more pale and weak. The condition I was in was so plainly apparent that I could see nothing for myself — life was a burden. I was afraid to look at myself to see me strongly advised me to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did so, and after using a few boxes I began to feel myself improving. I kept on using them taking them. It was some time before I realized that there was my condition, but gradually I could see that I was improving—my color became better; my sleep sounder; my appetite improved, and the numbness in my hands and limbs disappeared. I am perfectly well in the use of the Pills. Without doubt they saved my life.

Mrs. Bain's statement is only one of many which could be published. They act exactly on the blood and in this way drive out such troubles as anaemia, heart palpitation, nervousness and general debility. They are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

German Chemist Claims It Will Net Higher Commercial Yield

H. P. Stadnikoff, agricultural chemist of Germany, who has been experimenting with various chem'cals on land near Yorkton, for the past three years, announces that he has at last discovered a preparation which will destroy weeds but at the same time not detrimental to the soil, and this prepara on has been used with much success by German farmers since. It was found, however, that owing to the difference between the Germans and Canad an soils that the preparation was too strong, for besides killing the weeds it was over-fertilizing the Yorkton tests, to the soil. Since that time Mr. Stoikff has been experimenting until at last he has discovered a preparation wh ch he claims will kill now thistle, pig weed, Canada thistle, quack grass and mustard, while at the same time will not injure the soil.

The preparation, which is known as weed-ex, is easily dissolved, is odorless, is non-poisonous and does not harm the weed. On contact with the mustard killer can be applied to a growing crop without hurt ng the latter. Many machines for the spraying can be obtained to spray the preparation. The smallest of which, known as the Colonial killer, weighs only eight pounds and can be used for destroying weeds amid the growing grain. Another handy sprayer can also be obtained which will spray one acre per hour, while horse-driven machines can be procured which Mr. Stoikff claims will spray one acre in thirteen minutes.

REVISION OF THE CANADA GRAIN ACT COMPLETED

Ottawa Ont.—The revision of the Canada Grain Act has been completed. While Hon. James Malcolm, Minister of Trade and Commerce, is still ad, make it public until introduced in Parliament, the main outline of the new legislation is known.

The revision was carried out by Mr. Malcolm, E. B. Ramsay, chairman of the Board of Grain Commissioners, and Col. O. M. Biggar, K.C., consulting counsel of the Federal Government. Every effort has been made to remove the new statute from constitutional jeopardy. The old act was supported by the clause that the Federal Government had power to enact it by reason of the authority conferred by the British North America Act. The particular clause of this section upon which the old act rested was that which related to trade and commerce." The new act will rest upon a firmer constitut onal footing.

The act will begin with a series of definitions of the terms used in the subsequent sections and a provision covering the gra n commission. Then follow th ddefinitions of the various grades.

Of vital importance is the method by which the dealings in western grain are regulated. This is the only way as to obtain any challenge as to the constitutionality of the act. This is done by having it on hands of Federal legislation rather than that of "the regulation of trade and commerce."

Those who framed the new act adopted a simple but what is regarded as an effective method of controlling elevators and that is by the declaration that they are for the general advantage of Canada, by forbidding any elevator from refusing or from receiving or discharging grain from or into any elevator which had not obta ned a license from the grain

This provision, however, forbids railway companies and vessels from carrying western grain out of western Canada, and, unless either the grain has been inspected and graded under the Canada Grain Act or the grain board author ses the movement. This is the machinery by which the new act proposes to get around the problem of validity or constitutionality.

As to the long standing problems of the remaining l censes, namely, commission merchants, track buyers and grain dealers, it is the hope and purpose to place some reliance upon exclusive power of the Federal Parliament over the matter.

Another provision is that the Board of Grain Commissioners shall have power to deal with the question of "Weights and Measures" provided, it is go ing out, that that phrase is interpreted as authorizing legislation on the subject of standards generally. The new bill, however, does not presume to deal with the matter of grades as defined by the Grain Act.

UPHOLDS THE LEGITIMACY OF POOL METHODS

Mr. Greenfield Replies To Attack Made By Mr. Stevens

London, England.—What he called a "corrective to so much rot being said by experienced people about the wheat market," was administered by Hon. Herbert Greenfield, Alberta's agent-general in London, at a luncheon of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce here.

Mr. Greenfield proposed a toast to Anglo-Canadian trade.

Mr. Greenfield formerly was premier of Alberta, active in the Canadian farmers' movement, served on the Canadian council of agriculture, and was for some years v ce-president of the United Farmers of Alberta.

After outlining the essential business nature of the Canadian Wheat Pool and the legitimacy of its methods, Mr. Greenfield reminded his hearers that without the protection of the pool, Canadian wheat would be dumped onto the market on the present crop year without a margin of profit, to the tune of a $200,000,000 decrease to the buying power of the Canadian farm.

He had been speaking to a member of the pool recently, Mr. Greenfield continued. He had ascertained indications that the situation was clearing up. But any talk of bad feeling between the British buyer and the Canadian seller was sheer rubbish.

"It just doesn't exist," he said.

Mr. Greenfield's solution for the development of imperial trade was to tackle the problem not as a political issue but by letting hard headed and successful business men get together to hammer out their own salvation.

J. M. G Bell, head of the British Government's department of overseas trade, expressed the view that consid ering the trade balance was certainly weighed in favor of Canada, the first essential in such a scheme as Mr. Greenfield proposed would be to increase British exports. He was convinced the ability of Great Britain to buy from Canada would be materially improved in the near future and he described a transfer of the gold standard from a basis of one dollar to the basis of a government subsidy.

Toronto.—On behalf of the Canadian Press, its general manager, J. F. B. Livesay, issued the following statement:

"On February 9, the Canadian Press sent out from Toronto a news despatch contain ng a statement that trucks, wagons and windows of the Lyons restaurants in London, England, displayed placards, "We do not use Canadian flour."

The next day the London manager of the Canad an Press cabled the emphatic denial of Messrs. J. Lyons and Company, Limited, whose head office is in London, and this was also circulated throughout the daily newspapers of Canada with the request that they publish it with an expression of regret for the original despatch.

The original despatch was handed to the Canadian Press from a source it considered reliable and was entitled in good faith But the Canadian Press unreservedly accepts the denial of the Lyons Company, and now desires to express its sincere regret and apology for the wrong unintent onally done to that company

NAVAL DELEGATES STRIVE TO REACH SOME AGREEMENT

London, England.—Moving slowly, like a big ship passing through a foggy channel, the naval conference is progressing. The "big five" have now got to the stage where they are sitting down the total figures of their naval needs—the round figures in hundreds of thousands of tons of the total naval requirements of their countries.

In full committee of the whole, the delegates d scussed the report of the experts; a report which attempts to find a common agreement between old rival ways of measuring and limiting naval armaments, one by lump tonnage for a whole navy, the other by limits of tonnage for each class of vessel and the committee decided to forward this report on to the heads of the five delegations.

In its classified on plan, the experts' report follows gun power as well as by tonnage of the respective type of ship. Japan agreed. The United States also agreed so far as the main categories are concerned. But the United States did not favor the substitution between 6-inch gun cruisers and 8-inch gun cruisers France reserved its opin on. Italy preserved the general principle of global lump tonnage.

The United States also re-asserted the old position upon which it is based, and minimum sizes for cruisers carrying 8-inch guns The old differences as well as the new proposals of the United States liking for 10,000-ton cruisers carrying 8-inch guns and the British need for 8,000-ton cruisers of smaller guns with 6-inch guns.

Such reports of the remainder of the three days are also expected at this time. It will be hardly feasible at such a division, if opinion over the clause governing a transfer of big guns ships of the tonnage of the class into another class.

H. Hon A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty told questioners in the House of Commons that there was no question of the British laying down other latest battleships.

Prime Minister MacDonald also told a questioner that he expected a good deal from the naval conference in the matter of reducing the number of battleships. He said that it would certainly be the object of the British delegation to endeavor to reduce the number of battleships of the Queen Elizabeth or Royal Sovereign class, now mounting 15-inch guns and to replace them with ships mounting the United States and British battle Pooleon armored class.

In reply to further questions the first lord of the admiralty said the number of 50-ton destroyers necessary for the French Empire had been received after a full investigation and that this number would meet all requirements for the period of the agreement which it was hoped would result from the London naval conference. The number he added was not yet the subject of discussion at the conference.

The United States delegation announced officially that no proposal regarding neutralization of the Philippines had come to the attention of the United States representatives.

TO INAUGURATE AIR MAIL SERVICE ON MARCH THIRD

Ottawa.—Air mail service in the prairies will be inaugurated on March 3, Hon. P. J Veniot, postmaster-general, announced recently.

The main line of the service will connect Winnipeg, Regina, Moose Jaw, Medicine Hat and Calgary. Another route running between Edmonton, North Battleford and Saskatoon goes into operation on the same date.

The post office department has been work ng for months in co-operation with the flying officials in preparat on for the new service. Despite severe weather conditions which made it awkward to lay cables for lighting equipment on land ng fields, details are stated to be practically complete

A mail plane will leave Winnipeg at 9 p.m., accord ng to the tentative schedule, and will reach Calgary at 5 a.m. The eastbound plane will leave Calgary shortly after the arrival of the plane at 1.10 a.m., and will arrive in Winnipeg before noon Other dets is of the schedule have yet to be settled.

With the new service in operation, a saving of 24 hours will be effected in the carriage of mail between Winnipeg and the Pac fic Coast. Mail reaching Calgary by air will be in time to go aboard the train which left Winnipeg the previous day. Eastbound mail will be correspondingly expedited as w ll mail between Winnipeg and Edmonton

Mr. Veniot had no announcement to make as to when the projected service joining Winnipeg with eastern Canada would be ready for inspect on to start. It was stated, however, that every effort is being made to complete all details in what will be the final link of the trans-Canada air mail lines.

For Benefit Of Teachers

Manitoba Will Fall In Line With Other Provinces In Providing Superannuation Fund

Winnipeg.—Manitoba w ll fall into line with other provinces in prov ding a superannuation fund for school teachers of the province, it was disclosed to the legislature by Hon. R. A. Hoey, Minister of Education. A bill provid ng for the scheme would be brought up at the present session, and Hon. Mr. Hoey also agreed so far as the main categories are concerned. But the United States did not favor the substitution between 6-inch gun cruisers France reserved its opin on. Italy preserved the general principle of global lump tonnage.

Mr Hoey made this ann-uncement in connection with the budget estimates for the Department of Education were under consideration. He said that the matter of such a fund was taken. Manitoba might soon be in the unenviable position of being the only province in Canada without a plan whereby teachers can be paid from a superannuation fund when they reach the retire ment age of sixty-five. Estimates totalling $3,216 675 07 for educat n were passed in committee.

Thursday Night Saw Finals in Bonspiel

Both Primaries Go To Visitors

The annual bonspiel of the Vermilion curling club was brought to a successful conclusion last Thursday night with the playing of three final games on the 9 p.m. draw the other two finals having been completed on the 6 p.m. draw The two primary events and one secondary, were won by outside rinks, the Grand Challenge going to Cassoon of Vegreville and this rink also gathered in the Alberta cup, while Dr. Hemsly of Manzville took the Brunswick on a last end win from Duncan of Vermilion. Tedman had just previously won out in the Vermilion Hotel competition. Ed Sutton had things his own way in the final of the Pilkie competition against the Casselman rink of Kinsey The draws were run in A1 style throughout the whole 'spiel, and it was unfortunate that sort weather made ice conditions not of the best. However the bonspiel was a very successful one and the games drew crowded galleries every evening.

Draws Crowded House Islay Y.P.S. Play

First Effort Was Decided Success

A large assembly gathered at the Moore hall, Islay, on Monday, Feb 24 to hear the play entitled "The Deacon Entangled" presented under the auspices of the Young People's amateur dramatic society in aid of the Rose United church. The cast consisted of the following local amateurs. The Deacon Pomeroy, Mr. W. M. Barnes, Mrs. Pomeroy, Mrs. W. M Barnes, Dr. Sopher, Mr. C. C. Miller; Cairus Spangler, Mr. R. C. A. Lees; Georgie Sopher, Miss Vera Clement; Ruth Penrose, Miss Violet Edwards; Harry Baxter, Mr. L. Thompson, Deacon Hoober, Miss Vera Clement; Ruth Penrose, Miss Violet Edwards; Harry Baxter, Mr. L. Thompson, Deacon Hoober, Mr. C. Bell; A Plain Clothes Man, Mr. C. Mooney. A Policeman, Mr J. Rogers

The assignment undertaken by Mr Barnes was that of a fatherly nature and was, without a doubt, superbly acted, notwithstanding the wonderful co-operation afforded him by Mrs. Barnes in the capacity of the Deacon's wife. The role of Dr. Sopher was no less inferior as interpreted by Mr. C. C. Miller, much to the delight of the enthusiastic audience Mr Lees as Calvin Spangler possessed a charm ing temperament for the sentimental scenes and was undoubtedly the comparable at holding the interest while the curtain slowly descended. Miss Vera Clement playing the part of Georgie Sopher greatly enlivened the gathering with the exhibition of responsive co-operation as in the case of the Deacon and his wife when she recognized regards to Calvin for his numerous attention. The Deacon's daughter, Ruth, was Miss Violet Edwards, held the key for newlyhood with Harry Baxter approached the local minister with the proposition of an elopement, and the Rev Thompson acting the part of Harry Baxter seemed to readily consent with decided alacrity. As a charming couple of "ready to wed" they certainly attached a sense of humo to the play. The efficiency of Kathleen maid—Miss C. Bell—holds no equivalent for competition. The part of the plain clothes man, who in person appeared in the Mr C. Mooney was outstanding, notwithstanding his speech was greatly impeded by the fact that he was compelled to bear. M J Rogers as a policeman has already been accommended to the local police authorities as a very possible officer of the law

The play was under the supervision of M. s. Enns, who is to be congratulated on the achievement. Miss Enns did several a most superior piano selection at the opening and closing of the play. Bothwell are to be thanked for the services rendered by their orchestral selections during the intermissions, accompanied by Mrs W. L. Roebuck.

Judging from the applause it is safe to say the entertainment was a decided success.

The giant British dirigible, R-100, is undergoing tests with the possibility that she may make a flight to Canada towards the end of April or the beginning of May.

Aeroplane service carrying passengers between St. Paul, Minn., and Winnipeg was inaugurated February 17. The passenger service will be operated over the week-ends only.

Canadian silver fox pelts are finding a ready market in Great Britain. It is stated by Lt.-Col. D. A. MacKinnon, D.S.O., of Charlottetown, P.E.I., one of Canada's principal silver fox breeders.

Will Try New Process

Canada To Experiment With Freezing Fish In Transit

Experiments in the freezing of fish in transit by the silica jell process will be conducted by the Department of Fisheries early this summer. It was learned at Ottawa. It has been found in the United States that this method of refrigeration is eminently satisfactory in the transportation of prechilled fish, but the Canadian Department desire to go a step further and ascertain if it is equally as effective for fish that has not been pre-chilled.

Should the experimentals prove successful it would mean a saving of about 12½ per cent. in refrigerating space, with a consequent increase in that proportion in the packing of fish cargoes by rail.

Means Plenty Of Work

Breeding Australia's Rabbit Is Considered Quite a Task

Australia has an area of 3,000,000 square miles, and the task of exterminating the rabbit is one of considerable magnitude. Throughout the continent there are no less than 6,000 rabbit gauges, 800 of which are operated by the private citizens, who are all unpaid weather observers. In some parts of Australia the observers have a long time in the rainy season in eastern Queensland early this year as much as 59 inches of rain were recorded in 24 hours.

Of Historic Interest

Some Inscriptions Which Cannot Be Classified As Vandalism

"Vandalism" exclaim most people when anyone defaces a monument or stone or tree with any sort of inscription. Of course, the comment is usually justified, but there are exceptions. Such scribbled remarks by "vandals" who lived 2,000 years ago or more have often shed light on the ways of ancient inscriptions. And there are some modern inscriptions of th's kind which may prove interesting to the archaeologists of the future. Certainly, these "writings" prove that human nature has not altered much through the centuries. Among some of them left on the columns of an ancient Egyptian altar, at Saggara, by American troops who served in the War, is the following: "I am the only survivor of my company which fought in Gallipoli, John Smith, Melbourne 1917." An Egyptian hieroglyphic recently uncovered is worded in almost the same way: "I am the only survivor of my company which fought in Syria. I have written home to the worship at the temple of my fathers." The Egypt an soldier who signed it lived over 3,000 years ago.

Subsidies For Air Transport Urged

Would Put Passenger Rates On Par With Railway

Subsidies for aerial passenger transport lines were urged by Major General J. H. MacBr en, president of the Aviation League of Canada, in a speech he delivered in Europe, where such subsidies are paid, aerial passenger rates were on a par with railway rates whereas in Canada the air rates are three times as great as those offered by railroads.

For this reason the passenger branch of air transport was not progressing.

Major MacBrien urged the formation of a branch of aviation to be known as aerial service in which all companies would co-operate to eliminate wasteful competition and work for greater development of the industry.

WHAT LENGTH SKIRT?

It all depends on the style. In evening wear, dresses are quite long, often to the ankles, but where the style digs in the back, the dress hem must be considerably higher.

Afternoon dresses are from three to five inches below the knee, depending on the type of frock, whereas sports dresses are but slightly longer than bathing suits.

In this impor. tant detail, as well as many others, it would be best for you to follow authoritative guide. Grain Estimates Small

Says Every Bushel Of Wheat Now In Storage Will Be Needed Before New Crop Harvested

E. J. Garland, M.P., for Bow River, Alberta, declared in an address given at Brantford, Ont., that the Argentine wheat crop is not the only factor contributing to the present condition of the wheat market. Overestimation of the grain is one of the biggest factors, he declared, and he cavtioned the day when the League of Nations will be called upon to deal with short selling in local issues.

"Canada has positively no need to be alarmed at present, he said, because there was nothing to be alarmed about. The wheat pool in the west knew what it was doing and every pound of Canadian wheat now in storage would be needed before this year's crop is harvested, he declared.

"If the wheat stored now were sold at the present prices it would mean two hundred million dollars less than last year," he stated. "That would mean, in fact, two hundred million dollars less purchasing power. For every cent wheat rises in price it will mean one less half million dollars added to the purchasing power of Canada next year.

"The translation companies," he added, "have nothing to worry about because they will get the grain when it begins to move."

An oak tree, 1,500 years old, near the village of Neuhausste, is claimed to be the tomb of the famed German poet and statesman, Hans von Thummel. Gambled By Invisible Ray

Money and Valuables Can Be Protected By a New Scientific Device

A fifty-dollar bill guarded by an invisible ray, was placed in the hands of men who can pick up the money without making the ray sound the alarm.

The ray was set up at a meeting of the New York Illuminating Engineering Society in the Westinghouse Lighting Institute by James H. Mc-Coy, research engineer of the Westinghouse Lamp Company. It was announced that the money would remain indefinitely behind the ray awaiting all comers, or until someone solves the scientific riddle.

The bill was put in a five-foot safe with the door closed, but unlocked. Somewhere athwart the safe, probably across the door, an ultra-violet ray is placed. It is harmless. cannot be felt by human touch. It is invisible either in darkness or light. It "shines" so to speak, upon a photo-electric eye some distance away. Anyone attempting to pick up the bill interrupts the ray, thereby causing the unseen "shadow" upon the mechanical eye. Thereupon the eye loudly goes "ding," ringing a burglar alarm.

"With these rays," said Mr. McCoy, "it will be possible for jewelers, bankers and others to protect, to odd greater by the security of their valuables. It can be made impossible for an intruder to move about without detection, as the rays can be placed at various angles in a room. They may operate a tear gas barrage, or set off a silent alarm. They can be projected far enough to protect the entire room, or the door in wartime with warning signal belt."

Nome Is Exclusive

Ontario Has Only "Brockville" in the World

A gentleman, once stepped into a post office in London, England, to which the cable office is attached, and wrote out a cable to his correspondent in Mesdanie, Ida, in the hope he would discern that after all "love" was the chief business in Brockville, Ont. Brucs.

The attendee were Jesus' credentials. They proved His divine power, His great love, His holy character, His purity. They were "signs," as they are called in the Fourth Gospel, recorded "in order that ye may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing ye may have life in His name."

To me these acts of healing and restoration, whether of the soul or of the body, are not incredible. I do not regard them miracles in the sense of violation of the laws of Nature, but as manifestations of spiritual power, and as wrought through knowledge of spiritual laws in the obscure domain of mental and spiritual being. Almost as important as their truth is the direction of Jesus' mind in them.—The Dean Worcester.

Remember the word of rebuke for John's lack of faith, but this gentle message was added: "And blessed is he whosoever is not offended in me." Capacity of stumbling is me"; Happy is the one who is not disturbed by the methods I use, by My ways of fulfilling My mission.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

MARCH 2

JESUS TEACHING ABOUT MINISTRY

Golden Text: "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Matthew 11:28.

Lesson: Matthew 11.2 to 12.50.
Devotional Reading: Isaiah 61.1-10.

Explanations and Comments

What Jesus Said About Himself To John the Baptist, 11.2-6.—"John the Baptist had been imprisoned at Machaerus by Herod, and when his disciples came and told him what Jesus was doing, he sent them to Jesus to ask, "Art Thou He that cometh, or look we for another?" "He that cometh" is a phrase for the Messiah derived, it is believed, from Psalm 118.26. As Dr. Bruce comments, "At this time John had been a prisoner for some time, long enough to lose the heroic mood." When John was there he had been the first to recognize that Jesus was the Coming One, the Messiah, but in his imprisonment he had grown doubtful, for in that period again Jesus seemed too mild in His teaching to suit the expected avenger, the Christ as had pictured it.

"There is only one Man with whom it is always high-water; all others have ebbs and flows in their religious life, and variations in their grasp of the truth."—Alexander Maclaren.

Jesus's disciples found Jesus busy and was very work that had disappointed John. The sick were coming to Him, and He encouraged their coming; to the poor He proclaimed the gospel, but uttered no word about the fire or the ax of which John had spoken. (Matthew 3.10-12). Jesus stopped His work to answer John's messengers. "Go not tell John," He said, "but things in which ye hear and see: the blind receive their sight, and the dead are raised up, and the poor have good tidings preached to them—is a fulfillment of the prophecy as to the Messiah, in Isaiah 35.5, 6; 61.1. "But your sorrow agree and not admit him of those prophetic texts. Let him study the two together and draw his own conclusion." It was a spiritual invitation to John to accept his Messianic idea, in the hope he would discern that after all "love" was the chief business in Brockville, Ont. Bruce.

The miracles were Jesus' credentials. They proved His divine power, His great love, His holy character, His purity. They were "signs," as they are called in the Fourth Gospel, recorded "in order that ye may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing ye may have life in His name."

To me these acts of healing and restoration, whether of the soul or of the body, are not incredible. I do not regard them miracles in the sense of violation of the laws of Nature, but as manifestations of spiritual power, and as wrought through knowledge of spiritual laws in the obscure domain of mental and spiritual being. Almost as important as their truth is the direction of Jesus' mind in them.—The Dean Worcester.

Remember the word of rebuke for John's lack of faith, but this gentle message was added: "And blessed is he whosoever is not offended in me." Capacity of stumbling is me"; Happy is the one who is not disturbed by the methods I use, by My ways of fulfilling My mission.

An Ailing CHILD

Are you prepared to render first aid and quick relief when your loved young youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing immediately—though the emergency came without warning? Many mothers find Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish condition, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so.

You can tell from the recipe on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But you should watch Castoria until a child is grown.

"I thought the room over the kitchen would be easier to heat in winter."

"The idea!" snapped Grandma. "That's where I used to put my hired girl!"

"And it's the most comfortable bedroom in the house," said Dr. Parshert man. "I'd have taken it myself long ago, if I hadn't wanted to be nearer to you, Ida Belle, in case you ever needed me. He can decide it himself when the doctor brings him in on Saturday. Perhaps after his inspection he'll have none of us."

"Well, well," Grandma repeated, "it'll be a great change. I don't know as I like the idea—hardly. He may be fussy, and want milk in his tea instead of cream, like Deacon Purdy."

"Let's hope he does," laughed Charman as she moved away. "It'll be that much cheaper feeding him!"

"Hush!" reproved the old lady. "Would you begrudge the poor man a dish of cream?"

It was a sunshiny Saturday when the doctor's dusty car stopped before the old Davis house. Grandma, peering from the window, caught a fleeting breath of relief as she viewed the stranger who stood beside Doctor Howe, tall, well-built, admiring the carved pineapple above the door.

Yes, he was young, she decided, but not too young. He was past the age when he would thoughtlessly track dirt into the house (if a man ever is past that age), and he wasn't old enough to be set in his ways nor thirty surely. He probably wouldn't notice whether his tea contained milk or cream; and he had fine, straight legs. Grandma had once been wooed by a youth who was slightly knock kneed, and, as she told Charman, after sixty years the remembrance still made her shiver.

"The Davises were all tall and straight," she continued. "That's one reason I took to your grandpa. There wasn't a knock-knee or a bow-leg in the family. They walked like soldiers."

"And he does, too," mused the old lady, as she watched the newcomer bound the steps to the house. Then the doctor looked up and waved to her, and in another moment was in the doorway.

"Well, Grandma," he began cheerfully, "this is John Carter. You see I kept my word and brought him to you and Charmian to inspect. This is Grandma Davis, Doctor Grandma to those of us who live in the village watchstover. We couldn't get along without her."

"Indeed!" Grandma looked up and smiled, her eyes, bright as a bird's, meeting those of the young man as he took her hand and bent above it in a deferential manner of a bygone day.

She was thinking: "Routinely taught like his manners, must have respect for—age." She said, motioning her guests to be seated, "I supposed it was you who had supposed all, though the theory now proven by Dr Plasbert has been suggested as a possible solution. That, of course, is the world relates on its own axis in a modus which gives us night and day. The motion is at the rate of 24 000 miles in twenty-four hours. The world go s around the sun once a year, proceeding the like change in seasons. This tour being conducted at the rate 19½ miles a second. Thirdly, the whole solar system is in another circle, this being independent apparently of the great universal movement which Dr. Plasbert has been investigating. Fourthly as he explains the earth, the sun the moon and every body paid to be visible to astronomers is travelling in a circle of almost unimaginable diameter. Roughly speaking, it is at the rate of the constellation Hyg ttinus and is so far distant that light from there takes 47,000 year to reach the earth.

"Traveling at inconceivable speed through space, the earth is subject to ies within men's ken streaking over distances which it is difficult for the human mind to comprehend. Dr Plasbert estimates that it requires 300 000 years for the visible universe to reach the point in which it is bound its distant centre. The movement is at the rate of about 300 kilometers a second, or some 200 miles. This is more than 200 times as fast as aeroplanes travelled in the Schneider Cup contests. Astronomers have broke all records for human travel."

Constantinople Is Dead

Even Name Has Been Abolished By Turkish President

Constantinople, the magnificent city of the Byzantine Emperor and Turkish Sultans, has been abolished by Mustapha Kemal Pasha. Not only are the streets no longer deserted and mosques and palaces are slowly crumbling as they were abandoned by the President even abolishes the name Constantinople this being contained in the Turkish Republic with the Ottoman name Stamboul or fake president.

The example of the Bolsheviks of abandoning Petrograd as the former splendid capital of Russia to its fate and concentrating upon Moscow is followed by Kemal Pasha who has today a big building program in Angora where new parks and squares are being laid out and where a certain amount of night life is developing, following the opening of several theatres and night clubs.

Adds To Reputation

Astounding Discovery Has Been Made By Canadian Astronomer

Dr. J. S. Plaskett, director of the astrophysical observatory, near Victoria, one of the world's most eminent astronomers, has added to the reputation of Canadian science and to his own fame by an astounding d s covery in connection with the movement of the world, the sun and all the heavenly bodies visible to mankind. For this achievement the Royal Astronomical Society has awarded to him its coveted gold medal, which never before has come to Canada.

Dr Plasbert's newest discovery has been translated into unscientific language to mean that every star which in the vision of the most powerful telescope and every other body for millions of miles around us is revolving about a centre inconceivably distant from this earth.

The meaning of the speed of matter as one as our world finds its place in a modus which gives us night and day. The motion is at the rate of 24 000 miles in twenty-four hours. STORMY WEATHER HARD ON BABY

The stormy, blustery weather which Canadians experience during February and March is especially hard on babies and young children. Constipation make it necessary for the mother to keep them confined to the house, whose rooms may be overheated or badly ventilated. The little system can catch cold and their whole system becomes racked. To guard against this a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house, and an occasional dose given the baby to keep him fit. If a cold suddenly grips him to restore him to health again and keep him in good condition till the brighter, warmer days come along again.

Baby's Own Tablets are not what the mother needs for her little one. They are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels sweeten the stomach; break up colds and simple fevers; banish constipation and indigestion and make the cutting of teeth easy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Back in 1700, the foundations of industrial medicine were laid when a doctor wrote a book of 43 chapters on "Diseases of Artificers and Tradesmen."

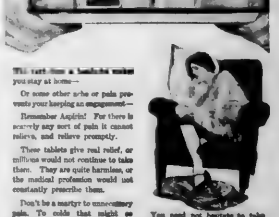
Needless Suffering


This tart-time a headache wakes you stay at home—
Or some other ache or pain prevents your keeping an engagement—
Remember Aspirin! For there is scarcely any sort of pain it cannot relieve, and relieve promptly.
These tablets give real relief, or millions would not continue to take them. They are quite harmless, or the medical profession would not constantly prescribe them.
Don't be a martyr to unnecessary pain. To colds that might as easily be checked; neuritis, neuralgia, to those pains peculiar to women; or any suffering for which Aspirin is such an effective antidote.
You need not hesitate to take Aspirin. It is safe. It is always the same. It never depresses the heart, so use it as often as needed, but the cause of any pain can be treated only by a doctor.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear husband and father,

ROBERT A. WILSON

who passed away February 26th, 1929

He has gone from us, our loved one
To a home we cannot see;
His is happy there and we grieve but mourn
Though we miss him day by day
We do not call thee dead, but exalted into life
Come from our home, the true past all earthly storm and strife
No voyage at sea distressed and tempest tossed
But safe in port at then—its billows safely crossed.
Dear one, we call thee ours, ours as of yore, the same;
Though in the nearest blest, wearing the loved "new name"
So we know that they will watch for us
In the happy home above,
And heaven grows near, as we your love
To the loved one bright and fair;
Heart-aches will be gone when we join the glad throng,
And know what it is to "be there."

Government Saw Plough Through Here on Saturday

One of the big snow ploughs operated by the Provincial government in an effort to keep the highways passable for motor traffic all winter, passed through here on Saturday en route to Lloydminster and return. Following its going through with snow ahead of it, the trip up from Islay, several coming in to the hockey game Saturday night. Reports say that the plough could have gone deeper and done much more good, the snow on the roads in some places still being six feet deep. On the return trip on Tuesday the plough left only a skim of snow on the highways and rendered them easily passable for cars.

Service Of Sanatorium Reaches Into Homes

BY TIMES TELLER

Working wherever the need is apparent, a small group of people are endeavoring to cope with the spread of tuberculosis through the Province of Alberta. All these workers come under the Department of Public Health of the Alberta government, but they work in conjunction with local physicians.

Few realize that out from the Central Alberta Sanatorium near Calgary, where many tuberculosis patients are cared for, there radiates a comparatively stream of service reaching right into the homes. When a patient leaves the sanatorium, he is still under observation and receives much help, and patients who have never been there are guided indirectly.

Three months after a patient returns home, the sanatorium sends out a questionnaire asking how he is and what he is doing. At the end of six months, another questionnaire is sent him, and then every year thereafter. The reports that come in in reply are consolidated on a follow up card showing the names of patients, dates, and a short note on his general condition. A complete record of every case is kept.

Cards are grouped according to towns and railway lines. These serve as a guide to the travelling diagnostician, Dr. L. A. Armstrong. Periodically Dr. Armstrong makes a trip along certain railway lines, having previously communicated with the doctors in the various towns concerning his intention, and giving them a list of patients in that locality whom he would like to see. He also notifies certain patients that if they or members of their families would like to be examined, he would plan a trip along with the local doctors. The sanatorium doctors do not treat patients outside the sanatorium, but always work through the local doctors. They do not, however, refuse to examine a patient who does not come through a doctor. The sanatorium records regarding patients go to local doctors, for their guidance.

All patients are advised to be reexamined from time to time. If it is found they are slipping, they are advised to have treatment. If they can have sanatorium treatment they are advised to do so. Those who cannot are told that the sanatorium will write their local doctor telling him their condition and advised them to see the doctor and discuss the situation.

Last year Dr. Armstrong travelled over 5000 miles, interviewed 110 patients, 91 of whom had referred patients to him, and examined 244 patients. His travels took him from Peace River to the southern boundary.

Chest clinics conducted by the sanatorium doctors are held regularly in Edmonton and Calgary, and every two or three months a doctor goes to Medicine Hat, Drumheller and Lethbridge and holds a clinic at one or more days, depending on how much work there is to do. Other points are visited when possible and necessary. In planning the clinic to be held at the Provincial exhibition grounds during the first and third Fridays of each month in Calgary in the city health department's offices every Wednesday afternoon. Here the doctors see out-patients, new patients referred and reports, examine them and give them advice. Wednesday afternoons is set aside for examination of ex-patients at the Sanatorium. It has been found that there is more tuberculosis in the central and southern part of Alberta than in the south. This is largely due to the large settlements of Ukrainians among whom the disease is rampant. At a recent clinic held in Edmonton four of the eight new applicants who came for examination were Ukrainians. Twelve patients in all were examined that day, and of these 6 were positive cases, two contacts, and two strongly suspected cases.

In both Edmonton and Calgary the provincial health department has made arrangements so that people who are afraid to be X-rayed may have this examination at the clinic's expense.

Juveniles Drop Opener In A Wonderful Game

Score Was 2 Goals to 1

Big Crowd Attend

In a breath-taking and thrilling encounter here last Saturday evening the Edmonton champion Juvenile team, the Canadians, were extended to the limit to take a 2 to 1 verdict from the local youngsters, who thus go into the final game in Edmonton Wednesday night with a one-goal deficit. The crowd hungover and good points who predicted that our young stars would be "trained over" certainly got a rude shock, for the score could have as well have read the opposite way on the strength of the play. The game was played on the ice which hampered both teams, particularly in the first period, the ice conditions improving as the rest of our services was taken off. The Edmonton Canadians have the benefit of a good long schedule of games under their belts as well as the play-off for the city championship, as our young stars were up against a bunch of seasoned performers. Indeed, practically the same team won last year's provincial championship.

The Edmonton boys started the game with a tremendous rush and bombarded the local citadel for the first five minutes before Jack's hide got going; then the game evened up and a fine-fang battle was on. Chet, Canadian right winger, came in for a cross from centre, while Art White narrowly missed a goal on a long rush. Mitchley of Edmonton drew the only penalty of the period.

The second stanza produced one goal when Jimmy White netted the disc on a hot low shot between a multitude of legs, tying up the score. Art White's tremendous rushes were bothering the Edmonton outfit and he seemed all set for a goal several times. Every man on both teams was on his toes and a hot pace was set throughout.

The third period was half gone before a local three-man rush was broken in mid-ice and the opposition were away with the whole forward line abreast and only the defence to beat. Kennaluk scarfs from right wing. The Edmonton team were hacked into their own goal area for the last two minutes, and resorted to shooting the puck the length of the ice to relieve pressure on goal. No results were forthcoming and the game ended 2-1 for the visitors.

Kennaluk of the Canadians is an outstanding player, but none of the visitors can close with Art Wiebe who broke through the whole team time and again and was only prevented from scoring by bunch luck, sticky ice and good goal-keeping.

The line-ups were:

Canadians—McClintock; Mitely, Robson; Dykes, Kennaluk, Smith, Loyster, Clark and Campbell. Bert Crockett, manager and coach.

Locals: Powell; Wiebe and Fraser; Scatish, Waldenberger, Brimacombe.

"The Deacon Slips" at Dewberry

"The Deacon Slips" will be presented in the Dewberry Orange hall on Friday, March 7th. Be sure and meet the Deacon, then you will understand why Miss Meredough forgives him for nearly breaking her heart. Mildred, owner of the farm, will win your sympathies when she is worried by the persistence of Mr Ringling who wants possession of her farm. Paul, Mildred's friend, is a straight-forward young man who is forced to decide between love of his mother and love for Mildred. "Pesta" our dapper will win your admiration as she does Leslie's old Hannah's; the trunk's men with a ford mouth amusement. An attorney also appears which adds to the fun.

Orchestra music will be provided by the Riverton orchestra, their ability is well known to the community. Following the play a light lunch will be served free of charge.

High School Notes

Owing to the absence of so many of the players, the high school hockey game on Tuesday was not counted. Two pick-up teams were chosen and resulted in a score of 5-2 in favor of the winning side, so far as we are able to ascertain.

The girls' team practiced on Tuesday afternoon but the expected game with Mrs. Mackenzie's team in the evening did not come off.

The Juveniles departed on Tuesday afternoon and were well sent off by a number of the school hockeyists. All the team members attend High School and we are going to claim at least half their glory.

The school debaters, Winnie Gilbert and Ethel Shields, are preparing to meet their college opponents on Mar. 7th. We are hoping that they will give the agricultural students "a run for their money."

A social time even this week was Maurice adding at a 66 miles an hour rate in order to give the Juveniles a complete send-off. It might have ended in a funeral had it not been such a short distance.

On Tuesday the regular weekly meeting was held in the Armories with the Coyotes the only patrol in full attendance. The matter of enter a team in the First Aid competition in Edmonton next spring was brought up but has not yet been decided.

Winners In Wheat Competitions Distributed Widely Throughout Wheat Growing Area In West

The successes of Western Canadian farmers in international wheat competition, within a period of nineteen years since the institution of the reward in 1911, constitute one of the most impressive features in the records of Canad an agriculture. On various occasions, the Dominion's talented representatives won against all North America with exhibits of hard red spring wheat and in addition to these other years they carried off the prize for the best hard red spring wheat, although in the two years just referred to they lost the grand championship to hard red winter wheat by a narrow margin. The work of these farmer farmers' have brought them high personal distinction, for the winning of such competitions is, first and foremost, a tribute to the talent of the exhibitor. But their work has done more than that—it has brought renown to the west, and to the whole Dominion.

And it is a matter of gratification that this notable series of successes has not been monopolized within any restricted area. As the accompanying map indicates, the locations of the Canadian winners of the highest honours in North American wheat contests are remarkably well and widely distributed throughout the vast area of wheat-growing territory in the Canadian West. The Prairie Provinces furnish a far-flung habitat for wheat of premier quality.

Shown Development Of West

Last Year's "Round" Crop Would Have Shown Increase Ten Years Ago

"How far the development in Western Canada has proceeded in recent years may be realized by noting the size of the wheat crop (270,000,000 bushels), that we now refer to as a small one. In no year previous to that was any such production at all contemplated, and with the exception of 1915, when crops were generally extraordinarily large, it was not until 1921 that Western Canada produced as large a quantity of wheat," points out Hon. T. A. Crerar in a recent statement.

"For the 10 years ended in 1920, the West's annual production of wheat averaged 214,000,000 bushels but for the four years which ended in 1928, the average production was 438,000,000 bushels. Before 1915, the acreage of lands in Western Canada devoted to wheat did not exceed 11,000,000 acres, but in 1929 it was almost 25,000,000. Summerfallowing and fall crops, summer-fallow and tame-pasture pursuits, over 50,000,000 acres are now under cultivation in the West."

Canada's Wool Production

Larger Production Shown In 1929 Than In Previous Year

The total production of wool in Canada in 1929, is estimated at 21,- 234,000 pounds, as compared with 19,- 611,400 pounds in 1928, and the total previously estimated at 54,347,000, as compared with 50,089,200 in the previous year. Ontario was the largest producer of wool last year among the provinces of Canada, with 6,300,000 pounds, followed by Quebec with 4,- 400,000 pounds, Alberta, 2,054,000; Nova Scotia, 1,584,000; Saskatchewan, 1,192,000; British Columbia, 1,- 156,000; Manitoba, 1 015,000, New Brunswick, 885,000, Prince Edward Island 312,000, and Indian Reserves, [illegible]

Planning 2020 Is Great Help In Economic Steadying Of Seasons

It will not be long before most farmers begin to think about getting the seed oats ready before the spring starts and there is no more important agent in the preparation than the fanning mill. Yet it is doubtful if any piece of farm machinery gets more abuse in a year than this necessary piece of equipment.

The work of the mill is three-fold —the air to blow out useless impurities and light grain, by the sifters to carry over large grain of former varieties, and by the sieves to grade the grain to size and remove weed seeds. If, through neglect or abuse, the mill is unable to carry out one or more of these functions its usefulness is minimized.

It is a good plan to check over the sieves to make sure that they have not suffered too seriously since last fall or since they were last used, and it is important that any repairs incidental to the fans be attended to. A machine which has some fans missing is reduced in efficiency to the extent to it is lacking in these parts.

One of the most important items to keep in mind while the grain is being run through the mill, is that the work is no job, and to get the best, results the grain must be taken down from the hopper at a reasonably slow rate of speed.

Just-Plain Common Sense

No Mistake Made In Using Newspaper For Advertising

In the last few years the largest concerns in the world have recognized that the newspapers is the medium that gets nearest to the mind and heart of the mass of the people, at the time when they have time to read and study while digesting their paper, after the labors of the day. What all these have discovered may well be accepted as sufficiently proved for all concerns.

Advertising is moving the need, and when nourished with follow-up advertising it springs up with an abundance of fruit for the advertiser who has planned the purchaser with good heart.

Advertising in newspapers isn't something tricky. It's just plain common sense, and its being universally provided by every successful business house

Keen Demand For Young Saddle Horses

Canadians Compelled To Import Mounting Horses From Ireland

A lively demand continues for horses suitable for saddle and hunting purposes, according to a statement in the report of Dr. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, for Saskatchewan, for past fiscal year. Canadians looking for good horses for hunting, have been compelled from time to time, to import their mounts from Ireland. The critics of the country surrounding the breeding stations where heavy-weight thoroughbred stallions have travelled, have been combed over to such an extent that there is scarcely a suitable hunter or prospect available, for unfortunately, too, as pointed out in the report, the majority of this good young mares have been sold outright to the high prices the buyers are willing to pay. In one station district it is reported eleven colts competed to the tune of two and three-year-olds, brought to that district $5,750. These colts had received no other training than breaking to the halter. In another case a United States buyer is reported to have paid an average of $300 per head for fifty-two colts varying in age from one to three years.

One of the difficulties in the way of increasing the supply of this desirable class of stock is the limited number of suitable stall-ions available for the needs of the country.

Bakery Tax Low

Now and then an applicant for a job will give an honest estimate of his worth.

A farmer, in great need of extra hands at haying time, finally asked Si Warren, who was accounted the town fool, if he could help him out.

"What'll ye pay?" asked Si.

Si scratched his head a minute, then announced decisively: "I'll be darned if I'll work for that!"

He is dressed for the part and would not be out of place in the Byrd expedition. At present he is emulating "Jud," head dog in the snow team of Arthur Beauvais, and is practising for the International Dog Derby later in February, though he will not study figure among the contestants. Imagination is however the main thing and condition the bracing air of Quebec gives it a zip.

The two honorary delegates from all parts of Canada attended sessions.

Grain Crop Production

Canada's Total Yield Of Wheat For 1929 Is Placed At 390,336,000 Bushels

The total yield of wheat in Canada in 1929 is estimated at 390,336,000 bushels, from 25,896,402 acres, according to the annual crop report recently issued by the Canadian Government Bureau of Statistics. These 387,308,000 bushels less than the yield in 1928. Last year's oats crop totalled 407,233,000 bushels, against 470,000,- 000 bushels less than the previous year. The 1929 yield of barley was 107,213,000 bushels which is about 29,000,000 bushels below the production in 1928. Of the total yields of these three grains, Saskatchewan produces — Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta—grew 276,664,000 bushels of wheat, 141,000,000 bushels of oats, 170,000, and 79,787,000 bushels of barley. Reduced production is due to unusual [illegible] conditions in 1929.

Selling College Stock

University Of B.C. Will Offer About Forty Head For Sale

Decision of the British Columbia Government to curtail its expenditure on the agricultural department of the University of British Columbia has caused the University authorities to decide on a sale of purebred Jerseys and Ayrshires on March 5. The exact number to be offered has not yet been fully decided, but it is expected that at least 40 head will be put up. The offering will include the progeny of the imported Ayrshire herd, six bulls and four heifers, all sired by the prize winning bull Netherton Peter Pan and choice herd bulls in Scotland. The Jerseys are all of the University's breeding. In addition to the large number to be offered has not yet been fully decided, but it is expected that at least 40 head will be put up. May Make Tour Of Europe

The new British airship, R-100, will not be flown in Canada until the spring. Whether the giant vessel will be kept in its hangar in the meantime is not stated. The proposition is being put forward that she should make a comprehensive tour of Europe, which would enable her crew to gain further experience in the handling of the great vessel.

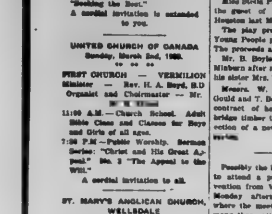
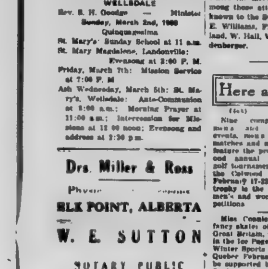
Protecting the Poultry

Parasites Should Be Killed To Ensure Egg Production

Eggs are worth big money these days and the busy hen is the one that pays. Hens that are continually irritated by external parasites cannot give their full energy to egg production. Poultry lice will continually irritate the birds and interfere with their rest, thus reducing their egg-production value. The constant use of a good plan is to dust every fowl with equal parts of sodium fluoride and corn starch mixed together. The dust can be passed among the feathers next to the skin by first ruffling or dampening the hands and fingers. Then plunch on the fowl, one on the breast, one just below the vent, one on the tail, one on each thigh and one scattered on the underside of each wing should be sufficient. This work could also be done with a salt shaker. Another and newer method is to put the required amount of Black Leaf 40 on an ordinary machine oil can with a fairly large spout and run a continuous line of the liquid along each roost. This should be applied about half an hour before the birds go to roost. Careful application is necessary in ea ch days.





The dipping back bess of circular skirts have been a feature still. Crepe print accentuates slimness and gives the figure charming length.

The normal waistline is indicated by plaits at underarm seams and stitching at centre-front which also give prominence to flat hipline.

Bandsman Practises Reading With Short "A" As In Bird

Mr. Nathan Haskell Dole, signing himself "a transplanted Bostonian," writes to Alfred E. Smith, ex-mayor of New York, in defence of his use of "radio" with the "a" short, as in hat. "There seems to be no more sense in 'raydio,'" Mr. Dole suggests, "than there would be in changing 'rad-i-cal' to 'ray-dical.' Moreover, there seems to be an excellent classical precedent for "radio" itself. The word appears in Ovid's Fasti, in the ablative case of "radius," and there the "a" is short, Mr. Dole contends, beyond any shadow of a doubt.

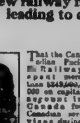
Can. Pacific President Declares Faith in Canada; Based on Fine Progress

E. W. Beatty tells delegates to Canadian Industrial Traffic League that "end is not yet" although this railway has spent $386,000,000 in past decade in improvements, new railway facilities, new hotels, new ocean fleets leading to deeper pride and patriotism in the Dominion.



E. W. Beatty,
President of the Company before the meeting of the Canadian Industrial Traffic League at their banquet in Montreal recently. With the filling up of this country and the development of its commerce, not only will new construction be required, but vastly enlarged facilities for handling the older districts will be needed because they will be outgrown by the needs of the communities which they are provided," he continued, "which fact is the basis in the future of Canada and when applied upon its known and tested resources, all other business men a "sympathetic support and confidence in the dimension of 1929 was not likely to have been exceeded in subsequent years."

Mr. Beatty said, had a peculiarly national significance in that 97 per cent of all its investments in rail, telegraph, ship, hotel, express and other activities was in Canada, and on the day of its inception in 1881 politic- have been dictated by faith in the country and by enlightened self-interest. "I do not know of any railway which has more faith in the country than the railway of the Canadian Pacific," he declared when congratulated on the construction of new lines and facilities in one way by which the company has sought to keep pace with the development of the country. The railway has spent millions of dollars on capital account alone and during the same period had built over 1,500 miles of branch lines. 1928 with its decrease in earnings, he regarded as an exceptional year not likely to be repeated in subsequent years.

The True Spirit

At the first showing at Ottawa of the moving picture record of the great Boy Scout Jamboree, held in England last summer, in which 50,000 boys from all parts of the world participated, His Excellency, the Governor-General, Lord Willingdon, in an introductory speech, spoke to the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides present very particularly and in all seriousness." Saying:

"You, young scouts, are more than we all know, that since the years of the Great War all the nations of the world have been striving by conference, by pacts and agreements, and by diplomatic negotiations to get rid of the terror of future warfare. The League of Nations has during the past ten years done a great and noble service to secure this end. But I am inclined to think myself that the work of the young people of the League of Nations is the most hopeful organization to achieve what we are striving for.

"Under this association you are all growing up filled with the spirit of goodwill and good fellowship to all others. To this you bring good turn each day to one another, in whatever country your future work may find you, whatever the race and colour of that other may be. I beg of you all to let that spirit guide you in your future years, for it is by that spirit which teaches us to think well and not ill of our neighbour, that we shall in time attain our great goal as a among the nations of the world."

These words of His Excellency are most timely because, if there is any one thing calculated to nullify the efforts of statesmen in all countries, destroy the unifying work of many organizations, and bring to naught the prayers of millions of people, it is the persistent and poisonous propaganda of a few evil-minded persons, who, under guise for themselves, or temporary advantage for some cause they espouse, through the division of peoples and nations along racial or religious lines, and the cultivation of feelings of suspicion, ill-will, and antagonism among and between them.

It is probably too much to hope that those individuals who are serving their own selfish ends by such unpatriotic conduct at home, and destructive of peace and brotherhood abroad will cease from their evil ways. They are fully alive to the harm they are doing but that counts for nothing with them because they are prepared to sacrifice the temporary selfish benefit themselves. But there are bright hopes for the future if the boys and girls of today learn the better way, and in the activities of everyday life emulate the life and the example of the Great Teacher, who came to show unto all men, who taught men that love is better than hate, who refused to recognize any distinction between men of different races or creeds, but emphasized at all times the common brotherhood of man through the Fatherhood of God.

Just as the serpent brought evil and discord into the first Garden of Eden, so do the serpents of today in many disguises seek to keep alive all the ill-will, suspicions, prejudices and passions which have been engendered in the bygone years of a less civilized era in the world's history. These fermentors of strife at home are the first line of defence maintained by those who desire for gain to keep the nations armed to the teeth, and who foment and precipitate wars.

The League of Nations is striving with every means at its control to allay racial suspicions and ill-will. While engaged with practical problems of disarmament, and other concrete causes of strife, the League is devoting possibly even more attention to educational influences. The efforts made to raise the status of women and children in backward countries, to improve labor countries everywhere, to put an end to white slavery and the traffic in narcotics, all have as their underlying object the removal of causes of friction, misunderstandings, and ill-will among people, and the development of a spirit of world brotherhood. The Balkans have long been recognized as the danger spot of Europe, and the causes of friction in racial and religious suspicions and prejudices. Once these can be allayed, peace in Europe will be largely assured.

Lord Willingdon sees in the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides one of the most hopeful movements for future world peace, while Sir Phillip Gibbs has declared that the Junior Red Cross in banding the youth of all nations under the common banner of service for humanity offers the most hopeful sign of the dawning of a better day. The Y.M.C.A. is engaged in the same work among young men of all races, colours and creeds.

Evil-minded men may stir up strife for a time here and there; they may appear to reap a measure of success; but it is temporary, and when the passion of the moment subsides, and people realize how they have been fooled for an ulterior purpose it will be found their actual achievements have been nil. Hate may influence people for a time, but love in the long run will conquer. It always has. It always will, for love alone is enduring.

Plans For Establishment Of Three Plants Are Under Way In Alberta

Co-operative packing houses in Lethbridge, Calgary and Edmonton are projected by the Alberta Live stock Pool, and plans for the establishment of a trio of plants are under way. The idea of a centralized co-operative plant at Calgary is said to have been abandoned in favor of the per three plants serving the southern central and northern sections of the province.

Alberta Creamery Butter

Increase In Production In 1929 Over Previous Year Announced To Over 11 Per Cent.

The provincial dairy commissioner's reports that creamery butter production from 97 creameries of the province of Alberta, during the year 1929, exceeded 16,025,000 pounds, an increase over the previous year of 11.6 per cent. Manitoba produced butter cheese, milk, ice cream and sweet cream to the value of $14,987,651 last year.

When Pain Comes

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and need soothing. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has retained the standard with physicians for the 50 years since its invention.

Tablets alkali to-water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting stomach acids. Each bottle contains full directions for many uses, including those listed above. Made in Canada.

New Material For Ships

Will Make Vessels Practically Unsinkable, Says German Inventor

While the delegates to the five-power naval armament conference in London, are trying to limit or reduce the navies of the world, a German inventor named Franz Felder, demonstrated a new material for ship-building that is alleged to make warships to carry twice as many guns as they could formally, and to make them practically unsinkable.

Herr Felder displayed the buoyancy of his patented materials with model ships. One, of iron, which bore a yard long and a foot wide, supported a load of 120 pounds, while a wooden model of the same dimensions went to the bottom of the water with a similar load.

The inventor hopes to build a motor ship to show the possibilities for the use of his materials in the carrying of commercial cargoes.

ARE YOU RUN DOWN AND NERVOUS?

All That Is Needed Is a Tonic To Build Up the Blood

There are thousands of people who really do not know they have it, but they are suffering from nervousness, sleeplessness and a general weakness. They have given up hope that they will ever be well again, and they should at once try a blood-builder that is known to all that is required to restore health and vitality. Such a tonic is found in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are made from the formula of over a hundred years ago by a well-known doctor, and are recommended by thousands of people who have used them.

Mrs. F. C. Grander, Toronto, Ont., says: "Before I got Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I was always tired out. I had no appetite, no pep and no sleep. I was all run down and looked pale and listless; my arms and feet were numb and tingling at times. I doctored all winter my condition did not improve. I was told that I would be a specialist and he sent me to the hospital where I remained for seven weeks. I left the hospital in worse condition than when I went home. I went home a nervous wreck. I remained in all summer. Everything possible was done for me I did not improve. A friend advised me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a last resort, so I sent for a supply. I do not know how or I first noticed the change in me in my condition. It seemed to come to me gradually. I began to sleep better; my meals so long distasteful were being eagerly partaken and enjoyed. I began to show an interest in what was going on around me. The color came back to my face and strength to my limbs. In perfect health in all ways. My pale and sunken I was well and happy again. That is why I always speak well of them when I have been able to do all my housework for a family of seven since I left the drudgery of my former trouble."

If you are feeling run down give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial and new health will be yours. You can get them from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Interpreters At Geneva

Speeches Have To Be Translated Into English and French

Dr. Caroline MacDonald, of London, Ontario, who has spent many years in Polola, in social service and prison reform work, last year accompanied the Japanese labor representative to Geneva, as interpreter. This was no easy task, the Eastern and Western languages are so different. During the ten days' preparation in Geneva for the great conference, Miss MacDonald had to translate all speeches from the Japanese to the English, as English and French were official languages to be used, and following the address of the Japanese representative, she had to give it in English to the non-Japanese speaking section of the audience.

Dr. MacDonald has been away the eighth wonder of the world, says Dr. MacDonald. By an ingenious arrangement of headphones, and microphones, interpretation of the speeches into two or more languages follows one another after the usual delivery. Telephones were at each desk, and each member dialed on whatever language they wished to hear.

Having Faith In People

Life Would Be Miserable If We Distrusted Everyone

Although faith in people gets a severe shaking at times, it is worth while. If it were, it would be a miserable thing to try and carry on business at all.

Imagine having to regard as a crook every man with whom you have dealings until he has proved he is reliable. You wouldn't want to have any person visit you in your home under that sort of atmosphere; you wouldn't want to place an order for merchandise over the telephone; you wouldn't like to go to a lodge meeting or become identified with any other organization.

The great overwhelming majority of people are honorable; they will deal fairly with you; very many of them will go out of their way to try and help you along. If it were not so existence would be a miserable thing indeed.

One of the most effective vermifuges on the market is Miller's Worm Powders. They will not only clear the stomach and bowels of worms, but will prove a very serviceable medicine for children in regulating the laxative system and maintain ng it in a healthy condition. There is nothing in their composition that will injure the most delicate stomach when directions are followed, and they can be relied upon to do all that is claimed for them. They will utterly destroy all worms.

Chinese Chicken Feeder

Many restaurants in New York who buy ch ckens in great quantities are having them sent over from China. The breast of the chicken is very much larger than the breast of the American one. It seems in the abundated country food they feed them better than they do hers and consequently there is more meat on the bird. They are being shipped to New York by the carloads.

For Catarrh—It is one of the chief recommendations of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil that it can be used internally with as much success as it can externally. Sufferers from catarrh will find that the lill when used according to directions, will give prompt relief. Many sufferers from this ailment have found relief in the Oil and test testimonials.

Russia Purchasing Cattle In Uruguay

Soviets Are Anxious To Reopenside Lucrative Trade With Europe

Soviet Russia is soaking to Uruguay to repopulate her heavily diminished cattle breeding industry. She has completed a deal with Ramon Arregui, long a resident at Montevideo, to tour the Soviet Republic lecturing on the cattle industry as practiced in Uruguay.

At the same time the Soviet has purchased 250 Uruguayan Hereford bulls for reproduction purposes and indicates she may buy as many as 100,000. For animals from two to three years old the Soviet is paying an average of $180.

While Argentina's vast cattle industry is based on the importation of British thoroughbred short horns, Uruguay's cattle herds were fathered by American Herefords, which were found better suited to resist ticks and other Uruguayan cattle diseases, as well as this part ruler climate. Soviet Russia is therefore using grandsons and great-grandsons of animals which first saw the light of day on American prairies.

Life Saved By Hymn

British Soldier Escaped Death As a Spy, Said Heavenly Escape

How a British soldier escaped death as a suspected spy at the hands of the French by singing a hymn, was related in the House of Commons by Lieut.-Colonel Ralph Glyn (Derbyshire) Board of Guardians.

The man Joseph G. Davidson, who had sought relief during the recent disposition, served with the Expeditionary Forces in France during his war. He was taken prisoner and after spending 2½ years at various camps in Germany escaped into the French lines. Many inquiries were made about Davidson, and information was received from the British C. I. H. Q. that the man had been killed in action.

The French promptly ordered him to be shot as a spy, but a few hours before the firing party were ordered out, a wounded British soldier asked Davidson if he could sing. He sang "Abide With Me," and this so impressed his captors, that they made further inquiries, and eventually released Davidson.

Odd Use For Eggs

You might not know it, but the same eggs you use for cook ng are used for tanning glasses, and this industry is the cause of importing more than 500,000 eggs a year into England. Only the yolk of the egg is used in the tanning process.

An Unusual Picture

Sunset On Moon Taken With Motion Picture Camera

Motion pictures showing sunset on the moon was one of the features of the annual exhibit of the Carnegie Institution, of Washington. The film was made at the Mt. Wilson Observatory, in California, with a motion picture camera attached to the great 100-inch reflecting telescope. Like the earth, the moon rotates, thus causing the sun to rise, cross the sky and set, but as the moon takes twenty-seven and one-third days, instead of twenty-four hours as on earth, lunar sunrise and sunset are more leisurely than the earthly variety. Because there is no atmosphere on the moon, there is no twilight, and the sunset represents a sharp change from brilliant sun light to darkness, instead of the gradual dimination of light on the earth. The film shows the shadows of the lunar mountains crawling across the surface. The actual times occupied in the taking of the film was five and one-four hours, or a little over an hour and a half.

BRILLIANT RITES AT OPENING OF FEDERAL HOUSE

Ottawa.—The fourth session of the 16th Parliament of Canada was opened with the ancient rites and ceremonies attendant upon the feature of the political life of the country. The Speech from the Throne forecast items in the way of expected legislation and was in no sense a controversial document.

There is nothing in the speech likely to occasion a prolonged debate on the address in reply, but the gossip around the corridors indicates that this debate may extend over a week or two. In recent years the debate has been disposed of in two days at most, but this year many private members have prepared speeches and will participate in the discussion. If the party whips do not exercise a restraining influence.

The latter refers to the prosperity of the country, the advancement of foreign trade by the appointment of new trade commissioners and the opening up of new steamship services. The progress being made on the great public works of the Dominion is alluded to, the Hudson Bay Railway is now nearly complete: the Welland canal and the Gaspe-to-Matapedia line, with the new lower lake terminal at Prescott rapidly is taking form.

The speech was drawn carefully to leave the government unconmitted on the radio broadcasting question. The report, it is stated, will be submitted to parliament. The report of the commission on the use of mechanical workers also will be tabled.

In the way of legislation, the speech forecasts the ratification by the natural resources agreements with Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia, the revision of the Railway Act, bill dealing with the National Railways and other bills amending the Elections Act, the Bankruptcy Act, the Companies Act and the criminal code.

Record Entry For Manitoba Winter Fair

Officials Are Looking For Additional Stabling Accommodation

Brandon, Man. — Another record making entry has caused the officials of the Manitoba Winter Fair to look around for additional stabling accommodation. A year ago every available inch of space in the various barns and buildings to take care of the livestock entries, and some departments were crumped even after some of the stock had been taken care of in outside barns.

It is expected that the Hon. T. A. Crerar will open the show. If the new Minister of Railways, and member for Brandon, can leave Ottawa even for a short time in March, he will probably attend the opening of the exhibition.

Drive Against Orientals

White Canada Association Asks B.C. Government To Act

Victoria, B.C.—The British Columbia Government was asked to ascertain the practicability of the removal from the country of all Asiatics and the expropriation of all property owned by them upon payment of compensation.

In arguments presented before the agricultural committee of the legislature, it was stated that the elimination of the Oriental from British Columbia was the most pressing matter before the people today, and that the situation was grounds for a grant of $5,000 to the White Canada Association for a campaign fund to carry on an agitation for revision of British treaties which now bar restrictive local legislation.

The matter was brought before the committee of the advisory board of the Farmers' Institutes, and was spoken to at length by A. R. Smith, of Cranbrook, secretary of the advisory board; C. E. Hope, of the White Canada Association, and J. P. Hampton Hole, grand factor of the Loyal Orange Institute Columbia.

It was declared that the effort could compete with the Chinese but that the Japanese were almost the master. Beverage of competition caused the whites to drop out of an industry. It was opposed by Mr. Smith.

Mr. Smith, however, that there was no lessening of output, but an increase as Orientals took up slack production.

"To them, it is a profitable business," he said. "They have low overhead, work longer hours, and are willing to work the whole family."

Hope asked the province to persist in re-enacting disallowed legislation until some action was attained. He advised placing representation at Ottawa towards attaining a redrafting of treaty arrangements. Such redrafts would be acceptable to Japan, he believed. If they were on a basis of exact equality.

Will Request Change In Banking System

Western Members Of Federal House Have New Plan

Ottawa, Ont.—Western members of the Commons will, in the near future, for the opening of the session, are keen to get on with public business as many more will endeavour to get parliamentary approval of important reforms.

Among the most coherent objective among western members is to bring about a change in the banking system. Such a federal banking and discount would be set up and the present discount activities of the banks would be curtailed, if not discontinued altogether.

The Alberta members are particularly keen on getting action along these lines. It is held that the general credit situation and the gold standard can best be controlled and delivered at country sidings, the equivalent of $1.08 a bushel f.o.b. for one year only, when growers can see that this guarantee be extended to cover three years. Hon. Parker Mackenzie Minister of Mines, has said the government could not agree to extending this guarantee until it was seen the scheme for an Empire-wide wheat pool was in operation.

But when the pool is established and is working satisfactorily, the government will favorably consider the suggestion of extending the guarantee of price, the minister promised.

The Rumford medal will be presented to Dr. Plaskett at Boston, on April 9, when he is en route to England to address the Royal Astronomical Society and receive his gold medal, recently awarded him for his remarkable studies in stellar movements and the scientific conclusions which have been made possible by his labors.

Would Give Power To States

Association In Against Prohibition Amendment, Demands Its Repeal

Washington, D.C.—Outright repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and its transfer to the states of the power to regulate intoxicating liquors was demanded by witnesses before the house judiciary committee which after a recess of several days has returned to the hearing of testimony for a change in the dry laws.

William H. Stayton, chairman of the board of directors of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, asserted people throughout the United States had no respect for the government because of the prohibition law, and because it had lost its efficiency.

WHEAT POOL TO BE ESTABLISHED IN AUSTRALIA

Canberra, Aus.—A great wheat pool will be established in Australia. There is some difference as to whether it will be a Commonwealth-controlled body, or under the direction of the wheat growers themselves. But there is little doubt that a Commonwealth wheat marketing body will be in operation in a comparatively short time.

A great conference between the Commonwealth and State governments, and the Wheat Growers' Associations, decided on the Pool. The Federal Government wants it to be under government control, with a state board in each state operating under a commonwealth board at Canberra, on which the state boards would be represented. The wheat growers want it to be under control of the farmers

The real difference, however, centers around the government guarantee of a stabilized price for the farmer. The government offered to guarantee $1.08 a bushel f.o.b. for wheat delivered at country sidings, the equivalent of $1.08 a bushel f.o.b. for one year only, the wheat growers want that this guarantee be extended to cover three years. Hon. Parker Mackenzie Minister of Mines, has said the government could not agree to extending this guarantee until it was seen the scheme for an Empire-wide wheat pool was in operation.

But when the pool is established and is working satisfactorily, the government will favorably consider the suggestion of extending the guarantee of price, the minister promised.

Bucharest.—Postponement of the wedding of Princess Ileana, of Rumania, and Count Alexander von Hochberg, is the only official answer in Rumania to reports that their engagement, which the princess herself announced some weeks ago, had been broken off definitely.

Private Company Asks Alberta Government For Permission To Build Line

Edmonton.—If the Canadian National or Canadian Pacific Railway companies jointly or individually, will undertake to build a new northern line giving the most desired Peace River outlet to the coast, information to that effect will be appreciated by the legislature, otherwise there is a fairly good chance of a charter being granted to the Beaver Lodge Navaws River Railway Company, which is asking permission to construct a line through the Grey Pass, it was revealed here. The bill to incorporate the company was before the railways committee of the house, and given a thorough airing. The outcome being that C.N.R. and C.P.R. officials are to be asked to attend at a future sitting of the committee and state what objections, if any, and what intentions, if any, or both of the transcontinental roads may have, in the matter.

Applying For Charter

High Speed Road Bill Is Again Before Alberta House

Edmonton, Alberta.—Supported by an influential petition containing the names of over 5,000 residents of southern and central Alberta, the bill for a charter incorporating Alberta Trackways, Limited, comes before the Alberta legislature this session for the third time, sponsored this year by Donald Cameron, U.F.A., Innisfail.

The bill provides for the incorporation of a company which undertakes to lay concrete highways of not more than 16 feet in width, from Edmonton to Calgary, from Calgary to Banff, and from Calgary to Macleod Lethbridge and Coutts

Construction of the trackways is to be commenced within two years, and completed within five years of the securing of the charter

The idea back of the plan is for a system of safe, speedy, all-weather highways, constructed of concrete between the points indicated, which would enable auto drivers wishing to make the best possible time between these points, to travel on the trackways instead of on the slower and more tortuous provincial highways

A small toll would be charged each year for the privilege of the use of such trackway and, according to the promoters, such toll would more than be offset the saving in gasoline, wear and tear on car and tires, saving of time, etc.

The promoters are D F. Whitney and W. D. Milner, of Calgary, and F. W. McDonald, of Medicine Hat, with financial backing of a syndicate in case the legislature this year sees fit to grant the application, the promoters state

Body Of Eielson Found In Wreckage Of Plane

Fairbanks, Alaska.—The body of Pilot Carl Ben Eielson was found in the wreckage of his plane, 90 miles southeast of North Cape, Siberia, Pilot Joe Crosson has radioed from the fur-trading ship "Nanuk," at North Cape.

Eielson and his mechanic, Earl Borland were lost November 9 last, when their plane, Alaska, to the ship "Nanuk." Eielson's body was found first

Crosson investigated that Eielson had been killed instantly as had Borland. He said the bodies of the two fliers would be taken to Fairbanks as soon as possible

The fliers' plane crashed in the fog at night. Eielson and Borland were on a flight to the "Nanuk," a fur trading ship ice-bound here. The wreckage was found on January 20 by pilots Joe Crosson and Harold Gilliam, who had conducted numerous scouting flights from the ship.

The plane was torn asunder by its impact with the earth, the various parts being left being scattered over a wide area. The motor, near which Borland's body was found, was buried 100 feet beneath the wreckage, while one wing was broken off 200 feet from where the main portion of the plane came to rest.

MORE INTENSIVE PRODUCTION IS CANADA'S NEED

Regina.—The paramount need for people in every part of the British Empire to adopt a policy of buying home products first. Empire products next and foreign products last, if the Empire is to survive the present period of distress and competition was portrayed vividly and unanimously to the Canadian Club by W. A. Wilson, a former Reginan, who is now Canada's agricultural representative in London, and a member of the Empire Marketing Board

He referred to the proposals for preferential trade within the Empire and to Lord Beaverbrook a crusade for free trade within the Empire without taking sides for either proposal, save to point out that Lord Beaverbrook was not to be taken too literally in Canada as his aim was to get the delegates to the Empire economic conference in a frame of mind for action, to work on effective scheme

Dr. Wilson laid great need on intensified production and the opportunities for Canada in the British market. Mr. Wilson pointed out that Great Britain, in 1928, imported 960,-000,000 lbs. of bacon, of which only 3.4 per cent. came from Canada, 685,-000,000 lbs. of butter, of which 0.9 per cent. came from Canada, 337,-265,000 dozen eggs of which only 2.5 per cent. came from Canada, and 2 tons from Canada

Fairbanks, Alaska.—The body of Pilot Carl Ben Eielson was found in the wreckage of his plane, 90 miles southeast of North Cape, Siberia, Pilot Joe Crosson has radioed from the fur-trading ship "Nanuk," at North Cape.

Eielson and his mechanic, Earl Borland were lost November 9 last, when their plane, Alaska, to the ship "Nanuk." Eielson's body was found first

Crosson investigated that Eielson had been killed instantly as had Borland. He said the bodies of the two fliers would be taken to Fairbanks as soon as possible

The fliers' plane crashed in the fog at night. Eielson and Borland were on a flight to the "Nanuk," a fur trading ship ice-bound here. The wreckage was found on January 20 by pilots Joe Crosson and Harold Gilliam, who had conducted numerous scouting flights from the ship.

The plane was torn asunder by its impact with the earth, the various parts being left being scattered over a wide area. The motor, near which Borland's body was found, was buried 100 feet beneath the wreckage, while one wing was broken off 200 feet from where the main portion of the plane came to rest.

CONFERENCE TO MEET IN LONDON SEPTEMBER 30

London, England.—Prime Minister MacDonald told the House of Commons that the next meeting of the Imperial Conference will be held in London in autumn The date for the opening meeting was fixed for September 30.

Ottawa Particular interest attaches to the announcement from London that the Imperial Conference will be held this autumn in view of election gossip. It has been rumored in a number of quarters that the Canadian Government would go to the country this fall, but any movement of this character seems quite out of the question.

It is understood that the conference will be an informal affair, but that no formal resolutions will take place at the time. The premier of the Dominion Minister will be received in London.

Commonwealth conferences will take place at intervals of four years, the last one having been held in 1926. The conference of the premiers of the Dominions will be held in London and governments of the Dominions will be represented.

The latter will not be present at the conference, but will be represented by their ministers of finance. It is expected that the conference will last about a month.

Among the matters to be discussed at the conference will be the question of the Empire's gold reserves, which are now held in London. It is understood that the Canadian government will ask that a portion of Canada's gold reserve be transferred to Canada.

Britain's New Auto Laws

One Provision Is To Increase Penalties For Dangerous Driving

London, England.—Miss 1930, with her modern leanings, will find no difficulty in complying with the order compelling motorcyclists to ride astride, which is one of the provisions of the road traffic bill, on which second reading was moved in the House of Commons by Herbert Morrison, Minister of Transport

Other provisions of the bill abolish the speed limit in congested areas, increase the penalties for dangerous driving, fix 16 years as the minimum age for driving motor vehicles and set 21 as the age of those driving public service vehicles; lay down a maximum number of working hours for drivers of heavy vehicles and empower compulsory third-party insurance.

Would Improve Park

Prince Albert.—The Saskatchewan government has unanimously asked Premier King the necessary assistance for immediate development in Prince Albert National Park, and make it fully available for tourists and visitors this summer. A telegram to this effect has been dispatched to Ottawa.

Increase In Gold Reserve

Ottawa.—Canada's gold reserve is gradually increasing. The circulation and specie reserve released from the Department of Finance recently, as at January 15th, show that the gold held in the Minister of Finance's vaults, in banks and guaranteed currency notes totals is $63,223,-7[illegible]

CURLERS' WEEK

Unique and Interesting Draws Are Planned by Curling Club

At a meeting of the executive of the curling club held on Wednesday, it was decided that, commencing the first draw on Monday next, the Club will put on a week of curling open to everybody who wishes to enter. There will be two competitions, so all rinks are sure of at least two games. The entry fee is 25c per curler and this goes to providing prizes.

Rinks Will Be Evened Up

It is proposed to classify all players, both men and women, place the names in hats according to their ranking and then draw them to the various rinks. This is an absolutely fair way of making up the rinks and eliminates the forming of so-called "packed" rinks. Bonspiel rules will apply to all games, the chief one being that players cannot be substituted in rinks

Open to the World, Curlers and Non-Curlers

Let's all join and help make up say 40 rinks, and have a week's fun for 25c. When not curling you can go down and "curl the game" in the waiting room. Remember its open to all men or women whether you have ever thrown a rock or not All names MUST be in the hands of the secretary not later than 5 p.m. on Saturday Please your name in right now.

Dancers Thanked by Curling Club

No Raise In Rate For 1930

General One of 55 Mills Struck Covering All Municipal Taxes

At the regular monthly meeting of the town council held Monday night, a resolution was passed setting the mill rate - which is now a general one at 55 mills for the current year. This is the same as last year. The amount to be raised is apportioned as follows: For municipal purposes $17,275.00; school district $30,260.00 and hospital $7500.00 Provincial government supplementary revenue taxes are covered by a separate rate of mills.

In view of the prevailing condition of the past several months and the present unsettled outlook, all expenditures in connection with the town affairs will be kept within the bounds of actual demands until such time as conditions show general improvement.

H. G. Seymour, commissioner of town planning, talked upon the council and several matters of moment were discussed, among these being a subway under the C.N.R. on the proposed new road diversion into town from the west on the Jasper highway. The location of the subway is near the hospital bridge and the sum of fifty dollars was voted by the council for the preparation of plans showing the contour and certain topographical features of the town site.

The commissioner visited the bathpool at the river and made suggestions regarding the cutting away of portions of the large bank towards the end of laying out an ideal and commodious swimming pool. The Board are understands that the laying out of resorts at every hundred miles is part of the policy of the department and it is recognized that this river spot is a most attractive one for such a purpose.

H. E. Spencer, M.P., Battle River, Receives Support for Resolution

OTTAWA, March 4 - Spirited discussion of the part which the federal government should play in health matters, enlivened the house of commons for a short time last evening. The bone of the discussion was a private member's resolution, which met with the support of nearly all speakers.

Moved by H. E. Spencer, U.F.A., member for Battle River, it merely asked the house to declare that "the [illegible] with this means would [illegible] the advisability of making grants to the provinces equal to one-third the cost of establishing, and to cover permanently, such full-time health units as may be organized." ANNUAL DEBATE IS AROUSING INTEREST

Vermilion Agricultural College Vs. High School

The annual debate, Agricultural college representatives versus the high school, is scheduled to take place this Friday evening in the gymnasium of the School of Agriculture, commencing at 8:30 p.m. sharp.

The subject chosen this year for the debate is: "Resolved that Public Ownership of Utilities is to the Greater Economic Advantage of the Consumer than Private Ownership." The high school have the affirmative side of the question with the Aggies taking the negative.

The college debaters are Miss Ruth Stephens and Cecil Warner, and the high school will be represented by the Misses Winnie Gilbert and Ethel Shields.

Dr. W. W. Bell will act as chairman for the evening, with Messrs. Adam, Richardson and Morrison as judges.

This debate will be open to anyone desiring to attend, but no one will be allowed to enter the hall while anyone of the debaters is speaking.

MIXED CURLING FIESTA NOW IN FULL SWING

40 Rinks, Totalling 160 Curlers, In Action This Week

The interest competition over to be perpetrated in the Vermilion curling rink is now in full swing, 40 rinks being engaged in action in a primary and secondary event. May be the curling isn't of the highest order, but what is lacking in skill is amply made up for in interest and excitement. The idea of the competition is to get everyone with the slightest hankering towards curling into the game, and it has certainly served its purpose. The banquet of two weeks ago is as nothing compared to the present social gathering event. Packed rinks are an impossibility; all participators were classified, the regular men (skips, thirds and seconds) are ships, and their rinks are made up of the lady curlers, club members and next ranks, 100 on the sheet. As a result of this big open 'spiel it is expected that four sheets of ice will not accommodate the 32 to 40 rinks which will make up the two curling clubs next winter. Full results will be published in next week's paper. Two draws in the evening with a provisional one at 4:30 are being run off daily.

An event of this kind is the best thing in the world to foster a good community spirit; everyone is taking part and enjoying it. No one expects to win with the rinks they draw, so no one is disappointed. Even at that the secretary has to be a mighty good natured human to put up with all the "razzing" he gets from all sides, but —so in case you have any complaint to make tell it to the silent policeman at the corner of Main and Sixth and then no one will know what a crab you are.

ELKS HEAD CIVIC LEAGUE — PLAY-OFF NEXT WEEK

The Elks took the Seniors into camp two goals to one last night and this, coupled with their victory over the college last Rain day evening puts them at the head of the league at the end of the regular schedule. The Elk-Senior clash was a better exhibition of ice-game than that between, and ended up with the Seniors having the ice after dropping an Elk goal which was allowed. The Elks and Juniors now go into the play-off for the Wicket cup.

College and Cabaret in 8-6 Tie

The Y.A.C team grabbed off its lone point when they tied with the Clerks' team in a stubbornly fought game last evening. These two teams now are out of the fight and will stand by and watch the Elks and Seniors battle for the Cup, now in possession of the latter.

High School Notes

The Glee Club concert came off quite successfully last Thursday evening with Mr. J. W. G. Morrison acting as chairman. Many thanks are due the friends in town who kindly contributed to the high school Glee club's efforts. The latter seemed to be highly appreciated and the Club's first appearance was a happy one. A short Greek play rendered by Mr. M. Brimacombe, Miss Agnes Stephens, Clarence and Kenneth Welsh was very well done and met with an appreciative audience. The payment for our piano was made and we hereby extend thanks to all who helped in making our concert a success.

On Tuesday another league game was played which further strengthened the Jack English team's position. The game played against Bowsh team resulted in a score of 5-1. The standing now is: English 10 pts, Munce 6 pts., Bowen 6 pts.

The girls' hockey team expect to play the public school girls on Thursday afternoon and Mrs. Mackenzie's team on Friday. They have been practicing and are getting better all the time.

The debate is to come off at the College on Friday, March 7th. The high school representatives, Winnie Gilbert and Ethel Shields, know so much about public utilities that they dream about them. The majority of the students intend accompanying them as supporters and bringing them home as winners.

We would like to suggest that Pie restrain his exuberant spirits more, and not lift any more balls through the gallery windows. It's slightly dangerous—to the windows—and besides it might rebound and hit you on the nose!

Things we would like to know:
(2)—Has French passed a new style of manage, or is he just suffering as victim of rough hockey?

DEWBERRY

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Dewberry School Fair association was held in the Orange Community Hall on Saturday. Mr. Harry Wood, owing to increased cash on hand from other public services, tendered his resignation, which was accepted only on condition that he would continue to give his invaluable advice and assistance as a member of the committee.

The following schools will be represented at the Fair: Dewberry rural, Dewberry village, Greenhaven, Hazelbend, Hazeldean and Rye.

The committee for the forthcoming fair consists of: Mrs. L. L. Craig, Sec.-Treas.; Harry Wood, Sam Butt, Louis Garnier, John Klimick, John Grant, Harry Lashley.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lemp have returned from Edmonton to their farm at Dewberry where they intend to reside in future.

Among the prize winners of Dewberry village school at the monthly examination on Feb 28th were: Helen Anderson, Clifford Hardwick, Addie Rahn, Morrie Brett, Edith Anderson and Evan Gartsler.

The first meeting of the newly-elected councillors of Dewberry M. D. will be held in Dewberry on Mar. 13.

The services rendered the public here by the isiay branch of the Bank of Montreal are very much appreciated and it is hoped a permanent office will be opened here soon.

There appears to be a good opening here for a medical doctor and dentist. If the proposed hospital materializes it would pay a doctor to be in on the ground floor.

Mr. and Mrs. John Selkirk Are Selling for Home

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. John Selkirk will be glad to hear that the latter have left England, where they have resided for the past year for the benefit of Mr. Selkirk's health, and have sailed for Canada. The letter might prove interesting to most people of Mr. Selkirk's acquaintance and is in part as follows:

57 St. George's Terrace,
Jesmond, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

Dear Mr. Cooper,

Just a line to ask you not to forward any more papers to me in England as we are leaving here the first week in March for home. Instead of coming the usual way we have booked by a slow boat, the route being via the Panama Canal to Vancouver. I am glad to say that I am greatly improved in health and hope that the longer sea trip will put the finishing touch on. Thank you very much for forwarding the paper every week; it, with the letters from my many friends has kept me in touch with home all the time, in fact the paper was just like a long letter every week. Mrs. Selkirk joins with me in sending to you and family our best regards.

Sincerely yours,
John Selkirk.

POPULAR TEACHER SHOWERED

A very pleasant evening was spent at Alandale on Wednesday, Feb. 26th when Mrs. Wm. Mayers entertained at a shower in honor of Mrs. Frank Lyons, nee Ethel Daffrey, a bride of recent date. There was a large gathering of friends and well-wishers from the community, some forty guests being present.

The evening's entertainment took the form of a whist drive for which suitable prizes were given. At the conclusion of the games a dainty lunch was served by Mrs. Mayers, who was assisted by a few of the ladies present. During the course of the evening Little Miss Ruth Armstrong presented the guest of honor with a beautifully decorated basket, containing many lovely and useful gifts.

Mrs. Lyons is now completing the third year of a very successful career as teacher in the Alandale district. Though much regret is felt in the community at having to part with her services, all unite in wishing her every success and happiness in her married life.

HEAVY BRANCH LINE PROGRAMME FOR WEST

Canadian National Railways To Spend Nine Millions on 1930 Construction

Nine million dollars will be spent on branch line construction by the Canadian National Railways in Western Canada this year, according to a statement made today by A. E. Warren, western vice-president of the company. This is exclusive of the $4,000,000 of the $16 mile three-year branch line programme approved by the federal government at its last session.

Twelve branch lines are covered by the programme of which six are wholly in Saskatchewan; one partly in Saskatchewan and Alberta; three wholly in Alberta and two in British Columbia. Divided by provinces the work can be summarized as follows: Saskatchewan, 171 miles of grading, 129 miles of track laying and $16 miles of ballasting; Alberta, 72 miles of grading and 52 miles of tracklaying and ballasting; B. C., thirty-two miles of grading and ten miles of tracklaying and ballasting. The longest piece of line is 136 miles joining Mt. Waldorp, Sask., and Bonnyville, Alta., of this line 100 miles will be graded during the year and steel laid and ballasting completed on 65 miles.

In addition to the completion of the 290 miles, grading will also be finished on 212 miles of additional line and 98 additional miles of steel laid, so that very little work will be required to complete the full program within the stipulated three - year period.

Two bridges of considerable size will be constructed this year in connection with this programme. One of these is over the Beaver River in Saskatchewan. It will be 1200 feet long, 110 feet high and will have a clear span of 180 feet. The second is over the Fraser River. It will be 4100 feet long and will contain a swing span 280 feet long. Three hundred miles of fencing 240 miles of telegraph line and a large number of railway buildings are also included in this construction programme.

CENTRAL HEATING POPULARITY GROWS

Success in Winnipeg Brings Contemplated Projects All Over Canada

Winnipeg. — In view of the success of the central heating projects in this city enquiries are now coming here from all parts of Canada where similar schemes have been under consideration. Of interest daily is the civic enterprise through which over 200 large buildings in the centre of the city are now heated from the one plant, saving every and often sup-ply to the owners and providing a fair profit to the municipality.

An interesting aspect of the situation is seen in the figures which show that in the five years which the civic plant has been in operation the city's fire losses have been over two million dollars less than during the previous four years. While the civic authorities regard the central heating system as contributing materially to this reduction this phase of the situation was not cited as a factor when the Western Canada Fire Underwriters announced their recent reduction in rates.

Serving the River Heights district a private company is now operating a central heating plant, and similar projects have been promised in two other residential areas of the city. The general experience appears to be that the cost of heating a residence in this manner runs about 15 pc higher than the cost of coal. Thermostat control, the absence of dirt, freedom from worry are favorable factors in the new scheme.

DISTRIBUTION WITHOUT WASTE

- because He Shares in the Profits!

The Safeway manager regards the store he operates as though he owned it outright. He gets a reasonable salary and—in addition—almost a third of the net profits. Oftentimes, too, he is a substantial stockholder in the company. Therefore, his interest in serving you and earning your approval and confidence for his store is, in every way, as keen as that of any individual merchant. His ability to satisfy is much greater because of the unlimited advantages of his Safeway connections.

Production and Marketing Problems

The question of disposing of surplus farm products is an orderly manner, and these present disastrous breaks in prices by reason of the throwing of a large portion of the surplus on the world's market for time all with a view to securing to the producer a fair margin of profit over and above costs of production, is not peculiar to the wheat growers of Western Canada. It is a problem which confronts agricultural producers in many countries, and applies to other products than wheat.

Governments and producers are grappling with the problem. In Canada it is wheat in the United States it is wheat, cotton, and tobacco; in overseas possessions and dominions, such as Ceylon, it is tea; in the U.S. it is sugar; in Brazil and other South American countries it is coffee: in certain British colonies it is rubber.

In each case the problem is a most complicated one. Such factors as world consumption, world production, fluctuating with variable seasons from under-production to over-production; the ability of importing countries to pay the price demanded or to maintain the purchasing and exporting countries; the price asked and methods of marketing: costs of labor and marketing in different seasons and methods of marketing: costs of labor and marketing in other competing countries, all enter the picture and call for consideration.

In the Argentine, for example, orderly marketing as we would develop it in Canada is impossible in that great wheat growing and exporting country. They have no elevator storage system. When the crop is harvested it must be rushed to the seaboard at once, and the growers are obliged to accept the price they can get for it at that time. If the crop is large, or if for any reason there is a congestion of traffic, the effect is to force buyers to offer a substantial reduction from the price they would pay with a normal haul, or with a normal haul, not only to the Argentine grower, but to other wheat growers everywhere. The Canadian Wheat Pool had to face just such a situation in 1929-30.

In the United States a Federal Farm Board has been created and given a huge sum of money to use in an effort to stabilize prices of agricultural products by that country. It is now facing its first test. It has called upon the farmers to reduce production of cotton and wheat. It has also called upon them to reduce the acreage of corn, or even a majority of planting smaller crops. Will the individual farmer act on the belief that, with such co-operation, prices thereby be raised, such co-operation will further assume that the Farm Board will further assume that the Farm Board will further assume that the Farm Board

Mixed Curling Event Completed Last Night

Cameron Takes Primary and Duncan the Secondary

The mixed Scotch which has aroused unparalleled interest in the curling game in this town in all over, the final games being played last night. The final of the primary was won by Lloyd Cameron, with Jock Tucker though Craig and Eleanor Wiebe constituting his rink, and the secondary was marched off by Bert Duncan, with Douglas Cooper, Muriel Stone and Muriel Marshall the other players.

Monday night the semi finals were played with Cameron eliminating Norman Cooper's rink, and Waldenberger winning from McQuarrie in the primary, while last night saw Cameron take a thrilling extra ender from Wen by a 7 to 5 score.

Both the semi and finals were played in the secondary last evening. Percy Long defeated Badgero and Joe McKeag beat an extra end decision to Bert Duncan, Duncan going on to defeat the Long quartet in the final by a score of 11-4.

Great enthusiasm has prevailed throughout the entire competition and the innovation can easily be classed as a roaring success. Burt Sutton and the draw committee are to be greatly commended for the able manner in which they ran off the draws, with forty rinks competing. What apparently should be done to further its ends is to hold another event of this kind at the beginning of next season and then watch the membership of both ladies' and men's clubs jump up.

Agricultural Society Makes Presentation to J. F. Andrews

Dr Wallace, president of the University of Alberta, and Dean Howes, of the department of agriculture of the university, addressed the students of the school of agriculture here Monday afternoon. Dr. Wallace surprised himself as being greatly pleased with the splendid work that was being done at this school by Principal Elliot and his staff.

The Vermilion agricultural society tendered a complimentary banquet Monday evening at the Brunswick hotel, to J. F. Andrews, recently appointed assistant to the deputy minister of agriculture, and for several years a member of the staff of the school of agriculture here. J. W. G. Morrison acted as chairman and a time with the sweet of honor there were President Wallace, of the University of Alberta, and Dean Howes, both of whom spoke

Mr. Andrews was presented with a handsome desk writing set, the presentation being made by W E Burton, secretary of the society. A similar presentation was made to Mrs An drews by Mrs. Mabel Robinson, on behalf of the ladies committee of the society.

In the course of his reply, Mr Andrews referred to the world grain show to be held at Regina in 1932 and commented upon the evident change in farming conditions in Alberta. He saw a gradual swing from pure grain raising to more diversified farming, in which he was led to believe laid the hopes of the province of Alberta

Carelessly Addressed Letters

Cards Post Office Department Half Million Dollars Yearly

The Post Office Department incurs an expense every year of almost half a million dollars in giving a special directory service to some millions of pieces of mail which are carelessly addressed. This in spite of repeated warnings to the public asking that patrons take care in wrapping and addressing mail. It is now suggested that the Department make it compulsory to place a return address on all letters and parcels. Since in the final analysis the financial burden of the carelessness of some people falls upon the taxpayer it would seem only fair that all be required to abide by a certain standard of carefulness.

Rebates Lead In Passenger Traffic

Cunard and Associated Lines' Atlantic Bookings In 1929 Were 368,794

For the seventh consecutive year the Cunard and Associated Lines carried, during 1929, a larger number of passengers across the Atlantic than any other steamship line or group or lines, accord ng to a statement made by Arthur Sandles, general passenger manager for Canada of the Cunard and Anchor-Donaldson lines.

Statistics of the passenger traffic for last year revealed the fact that Cunard and its Associated Lines carried a total of 365 734 passengers on their regular transatlantic sailings.

Of this large number a total of 65,510 passengers were carried by the Canad an service liners, 20,087 on Anchor-Donaldson steamers, and 45,413 on Cunard Canadian service liners.

Of the total carried by our lines the Cunard Line accounted for 208,185, and the Anchor Line, 45,311,- and M' Sandles. "Not included in these figures are 5,232 carried on Cunard Cruises, 11,364 in the Cunard Mediterranean service for 1929 also 1,250 on the Anchor L ne cruises, and several smaller categories, which raise the grand total of all passengers carried to 384,197. This total incidentally represented an aggregate increase of 17,430 over the 366,167 carried in 1928."

"A survey of the travel prospects in our various departments, first-class, second-class, cabin, tourist third cabin and third-class, leads us to the conclusion that if the present rate of booking is maintained through spring and summer, the Cunard Line and associated Lines will experience a good year," Mr. Sandles stated.

Edmonton Spring Show

Children's Calf Feeding Competition In Attracting Much Interest

In order to give all children residing in farm homes an opportunity to become conversant with the many specialties going on for them at the Edmonton Spring Show to be held from April 8 to 12, and particularly from the special encouragement given to amateur exhibitors, letters and prize lists were sent to every school north of Red Deer. A number of teachers have written in that the children have been quite interested and excited, and it is expected that the many changes adopted with an eye to improving the 1930 Children's Calf Feeding competitions will result in a largely increased entry.

It has been felt by the directors for some time that when once a child has succeeded in feeding a calf to the point where it can win first prize in the competition, it is only fair that some one else should have an opportunity to win this prize the next year, in order that the benefit of the first prize might be distributed a little, and this year all those who have previously won first prize are barred from again competing. The 4 strict prizes offered by the Edmonton Stock Yards have also been divided into three prizes for each district, instead of two, which will also give greater encouragement to the amateur exhibitors in those districts which have not the same high quality of livestock as some of the districts which have been battled for a longer time

The Reindeer Trek

A. E. Powell Gives Some Details Of Government Undertaking

Referring to the organized reindeer trek from Alaska to the Mackenzie district of the Northwest Territories (to ensure an adequate meat supply to Canada's northern citizens), A. E. Powell, of the Department of the Interior, now back from the drive, reports that the herd comprises 2,000 animals, 307 bucks and more than 200 steers—the last being required to haul some 50 sleds, laden with camp supplies, food and to supply fresh meat to the herders. A steer is hitched to each sled, travelling caravan fashion, with the unharnessed steers in the lead breaking the trail.

Figures relative to the lumber production in Saskatchewan during 1929 reveal that the number of mercantile have increased from 10 to 13 during 1929.

Ready For Poultry Congress

Eggs To Be Exhibited By Canada Are Now In Cold Storage

Eggs and poultry are already in cold storage for exhibition by the Canadian Poultry Pool at the World's Poultry Congress at the Crystal Palace, London, England, in July of this year, Mrs. John Holmes, president of the Saskatchewan Co-operat ve Poultry Producers, and vice-president of the Canadian Pool, said that Canada's interest in the congress was keen, particularly as production of eggs and poultry last year was the largest unequalled consumption in Canada. The associated a foreign market and increased gains was proceeding in finance and marketing of the surplus.

At the second meeting to Manitoba, recently, Mrs. Holmes stated that a trial shipment of eggs from British Columbia via the Panama Canal to Britain had been very satisfactory. Five thousand cases of eggs, or 17 car loads, had been sent cold storage and sold in Britain at a profit, and that the trade mark C.P.P.—Canadian Poultry Pool.

Asked whether the opening of the Hudson Bay route might not help solve the problem of marketing, Mrs. Holmes stated that settlement and the lowest temperature of the former was not such a drawback as dampness has proved to be. She added, however, that probably Saskatchewan would eventually adopt the intensive system of poultry raising now prevalent in British Columbia. This method had been found more economical as poultry is best reared for eight months under control. In addition poultry produced under the intensive system had been found to be free from disease. Mrs. Holmes stated, according to the findings of a Winnipeg firm which owns chicken.

The assembling system of British Columbia was superior to that of Saskatchewan, Mrs. Holmes remarked. In the former province eggs were brought by motor-truck system to the assembling station in three days. In Saskatchewan the eggs were assembled by rail in about seven days.

Buying Of Cracks By Old Prospectors

Troopers Also Heal Local Wives' British Columbia Waterways

Work

To a reflective person travelling through British Columbia's diversified out-of-doors, this threefaure question is packed with fragmentary interest when he ponders on the names given to some of the remarkable streams of the province.

Along the line of the Canadian National Railways there are more than a few Bad, Silver, Copper, Ruby and Quartz creeks to show that prospectors had a hand in the christening. There are also a few of the amateur guard of settlement named many Salmon and Trout creeks. There are Coal, Mud, Duck, Goose, Sheep (also a Sheppard), Fup, Deer, Grizzly, Silvert'p, Bear, Cougar, Whitegrouse, Eagle, Marten, Mink, Fish-hawk, Caribou, Wolf and Porcupine creeks. There is even an Octopus creek, and a stream called Creasy Bird. One wonders who this Creasy Bird was and what he looked like. There are Whiteman, Indian, Chinaman and Negro creeks. There are Green and Vermillion creeks. Along the St. Mary's River the creeks are named for the prominent settlers known. So are Ryan, Whiskey, Soda, Lemon, and Sugar creeks. One finds Silver and Gold creeks and Longhorn Creek, while away north of the Canadian National line, west of Jasper Park and Edson, there are streams with the Frypan mountains. There are Snow and Snowball creeks, Slipper creek and Boot creek and Shoe creek. Also Corn and Blueberry creeks. Then there are Knoll, Rock Summit, Pyramid, Hump and Cairn creeks. The last suggests elusive treasure and an old miner's delightful hopes. But Irish Columbia as egg-producing provinces, Mrs. Holmes declared that the lowest temperature of the former was not such a drawback as dampness has proved to be. She added, however, that probably Saskatchewan would eventually adopt the intensive system of poultry raising now prevalent in British Columbia. This method had been found more economical as poultry is best reared for eight months under control. In addition poultry produced under the intensive system had been found to be free from disease. Value Of Game Preservation

Game Statistics Of Saskatchewan Point To Interesting Conclusions

The astonishing increase of British Columbia's game resources found in Saskatchewan for the 1929 shooting season is not to be duplicated approximately to 30 per cent. of the returns have not been received, it has been roughly estimated that the total big game animals were legally killed in the province last year.

It has also been estimated that 90 per cent. of all the animals killed were brought down in close proximity to game reserves, 17 of which have been located in the province. If at all accurate that estimate pays the highest possible tribute to the value of such preserves.

Includ ng the many thousands of duck and other game birds shot last season, it has also been estimated that the value in money of all game shot was not less than $1,000,000. If that estimate is anywhere near accurate, the value of game protection in Saskatchewan, if for no other than a financial standpoint, is sufficient.

Laboratories Maintained In West For Control Of Insect Pests

Entomological laboratories are maintained in each of the wheat growing provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, by the Entomological Branch, Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, for the carrying on of the investigations to determine practical methods for the control of important insect pests.

These laboratories have been established and developed with the necessary equipment and staff as a means of protecting the wheat and other crops against damaging insect attack.

PARABLES OF THE KINGDOM

Golden Text: "The kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit."—Romans 14:17.

Lesson: Matthew 13:24-52.

Devotional Reading: Proverbs 3. 13-26.

Explanations and Comments

• The Parable Of the Wheat and the Tares (vs. 24-30).—Mark Twain was a lad, he was sent by his mother to weed a flower-bed. So he pulled up the weeds that flowers and came back to ask his mother if he had pulled up the flowers or he might not "flower the weed-ed." This parable is a warning against the danger of flowering a weed-bed.

The Parable Of the Mustard Seed, verses 31,32.—In this parable Jesus likens the Kingdom of Heaven to a grain of mustard seed which a man took and sowed in his field. This mustard seed was the smallest seed cultivated by the Jews and was popularly regarded as the smallest of all seeds. Although the seed is so small, mustard sometimes grows to a height of ten or twelve feet, and then the birds of the heavens come and lodge in the branches thereof. The parable teaches that the Kingdom of Heaven is a sure, that from a small beginning great results follow. The husbandman once his part in preparing the ground and sowing the seed, but he cannot increase it in the care of the earth, depending upon it, together with the action of the sun and air and rain to carry the germinating life through the stages of its growth. So man must trust to a Power that lies beyond him for the growth of the seed of the Kingdom of God in the hearts of men. Growth depends on the agency of man alone but upon God's power.

"Wondrous Man . . . . . You had your dreams:
That John the Lord Peter, James and Magdalene—
Each! Judas, too—should learn to know your God.
You had the right to hail the King-dom's glesms
In earth's unsettled realm; and still your hope
Is undismayed, though men in darkness grope."
—Thomas Curtis Clark

Jails To Spare

Huge Decrease In Crime In Great Britain Is Noted

Britain's criminals are one class which seems to be traveling on the road which leads to gradual extinction. While the criminal "dole," as the prisons' appropriations might be termed, is decreasing the prisons of today finds itself embarrassed by a superfluity of prisons and military barracks.

Maidstone jail, which is to be closed shortly, is the twenty-seventh institution of its kind to disappear since 1914. Since that year—memorable as the outbreak of the war—the prison population of the United Kingdom has declined by 70 per cent.

The use of military barracks arises partly from reduction of the forces and partly because the scheme of army organization today calls for the construction of troops in definite training areas, rather than their housing in different parts of the country. It is doubtful if the present field barracks will ever be occupied again. Many of them have stood as ex emergency conditions.

Like many similar institutions, the Maidstone barracks were built about the time when industrialism, still a new phase, was coming to its full strength in the north of England. Such barracks, for the most part are veritable fortresses, designed then to meet the risk of providing refuge in times of riot.

The suggestion has been made in parliament that London's two principal prisons—Wandsworth and Pentonville—should be razed and housing areas for the working class substituted.

Two Weeks

Rare Mineral Cures Consumption

Two new words, "supinax" and "depalax," are to be included in the forthcoming edition of the American New Standard Dictionary. The rest of the two words is impeccable, it is added, according to the editor of the dictionary, who says that their use in air transport is synonymous to that of "outrank" and "detrain" in railway service.

Minerals Necessary For Cattle

A cow puts 14 pounds of minerals into every live calf she drops, and 10 into a normal producing year. One ton of alfalfa hay contains 163 pounds of minerals, and a pound of alfalfa combine more calcium than 100 pounds of corn.

The longest singular "date" of which there is authentic record was 11 feet and 3 inches in length, and the pair weigh 393 pounds. They are now in the possession of the New York Zoological Society.

Parking In Melbourne

The parking of cars in Melbourne, Australia, is controlled by issuance of a ticket for the sum of 2S cents. A motorist parks his car any place he can find space, hands the ticket to a policeman. The ticket is good for one day only.

DO YOU SUFFER FROM CONSTIPATION?
Countless remedies are advertised for constipation. Many relieve for the moment but few get right to the root of the trouble. Nujol is entirely different. It is not a medicine nor a patent medical drug, which results in the system, acrid in the bowels and causes aches and pains. Some are harsh purgatives which irritate and gripe and leave a depressed after effect. Avoid lubricating oils which only grease the way for constipation and cause's machinery to become lazy.
A gentle, vegetable laxative such as Carter's Little Liver Pills, gently touches the liver, but starts to flow, the bowels move gently, the intestines are thoroughly cleansed and evacuation poisons pass away. The stomach, liver and bowels are now active and the system enjoys a real tonic effect. All druggists 25c and 75c red pkge.

A Real Economy

New Yorkers pay $160,000,000 a year to ride in the city's 26,000 taxicabs, reports a writer in World's Work. But huge as that sum may seem, the taxicab is a real economy for the New Yorker of the class which would own its own cars in another city. Not the necessity of high rentals, lack of parking space and traffic congestion, it is estimated that the cost of maintaining an automobile and chauffeur is the city is $8,000 annually.

Heart disease, in 75 per cent. of cases, develops in children before they are ten years of age.

"You look elegant as well as prosperous," she added. "Lend me a helping hand, Jim, so I can descend gracefully."

Jim grinned, and stretched out the hand old gingity. "A man, he began, flushing a dull red. Charman, at cold ground again, looked up at him, "to see if you were going to the strawberry festival tonight. If you are, I'll stop for you with the car as I go along."

A disconcerting smile curved the girl's lips as she replied: "That's thoughtful of you, Jimmy, but you needn't bother because I—"

"Bother!" he exploded. "Who said it was a bother?"

"Well, you see, I promised Doctor Carter to let h'm tag along, so I won't need you. That's a stunning suit, Jimmy. You look like a — a bridegroom!"

Jim flushed again, angrily this time.

"Look here, Charman," he began hotly, "if you're mad because I took Clara Darling to that sociable and the picn c at the Falls, why I don't mind saying—"

"Mad!" broke in Charman. "Why on earth should I be mad, I'd like to know?"

Jim's color was fast becoming apoplectic.

"Well, other times I—I've always taken you; but Clara was visiting here, and Mother . . . You see . . ."

"Yes, I see," said Charman, coming to h's rescue. "I see perfectly. Now run along, Jim, and let me get to work. Doctor Carter's going to use this for an office. Won't it be darling? Not dar! ng like Clara, but—"

"Darling!" exploded Jim, that's thoughtful of you, Jimmy, but you needn't bother because I—"

"Jim stepped in the doorway, looking up at her.

"Don't be an idiot, Jim. Of course you'll go. Tell me, is Miss Darling going to stay all summer?"

The man's question ignored this question as he slouch off her hand roughly and strode away. For a moment Charman stood watching him, knowing that he was intended for a soothing speech. Then she smothered "Damn," that wasn't really an unbecoming word as should have been. Jim took his departure.

The doctor gave vent to an expressive whistle as he watched the young man's retreating figure, more stiffly erect than usual.

"Jim's in love, and the man who has been entirely unmoved of a green hat!"

"The same," admitted Charman, shrugging h s bewildering simple shoulders, "but now let's get to work. If you'll take Jim's place on the ladder we can accomplish wonders before I have to start dinner."

Meanwhile Jim Bennett had crossed the strip of road that divided the town of Grandma, who was watching with interest the struggle of two small boys for the last piece of candy in a bag. "I've got a half day off, and this is to be part of your time, Charman, hiring those lanky boobs. Let me get up and hand 'em down to you."

"You'll do no such thing! You'd simply ruin that new suit!"

"What's a suit —between friends?" asked Jim, looking around for a clean spot to wipe his hands. He laughed, and was, suddenly, the old Jim which had been her life-long comrade. She said, and smiled, prompting the words: "Jim, you're a trump. I ought not to let you, but those books are terribly dusty. Here, put on this linen duster and roll up your sleeves. Hand me the top books first, and go slowly so I can dust. I've got plenty of time, and that a man about the place is a grand thing."

"If you want one — permanently," he began from the top of the ladder, when a step sounded on the sidewalk, and John Carter appeared in the wide doorway.

CHAPTER V.

Jim stopped in the middle of th's important sentence, glared down upon the new doctor, while Charman uttered a relieved: "Oh, it's you! I thought you'd gone with Doctor Hero—"

"And I thought I told you not to touch this place but I see you're so careful help. That's fine. I—"

He he suppressed she had hired Jim! This appalling thought swept through Charm an's brain. If Jim guessed he'd be furious, and a foe to John Carter for the rest of his natural life With haste born of real consternation she interrupted: "Indeed I have! Jim Bennett was good enough to offer his assistance in lifting down those heavy books. Have you two been properly introduced? Jim, this is Doctor Carter, our new brother. Jim's an old chum of mine, Doctor. He used to carry my books to school for me and fight my battles. You ought to be friends."

The young man on the step ladder looked the reverse of friendly at just that moment, but he descended, and reluctantly gripped the hand which the doctor had extended.

"I was only giving Charman a little help," he explained, more somewhat breathlessly; and added, a belligerent note creeping into his voice, "this is no part of work for a girl, it seems to me."

"You're right. Miss Davis will tell you that I told her not to touch it. I expected to go with Doctor Hero this morning, but when I told him of this sch ol for co ored children he put off the day off. He thought it a great idea, and I'll say I'm in luck! I'll get some old clothes and be back in a jiffy to pitch in."

"Well," began Jim, removing the duster and reaching for his neatly folded coat, "you won't need me now so I'll run along. I—Suppose you see me a lot of that fellow, Charman!"

Charman was obliged to conceal a smile at the boyish jealousy that Miss Darling was not omnipotent.

"I eat three meals a day with him" she answered. "Seven times that fortnight I've seen a young man ride by in an automobile with the brightest green hat known to man ever I had eyes on. Linzie Baker says it's sinful—that hat, I mean; but Charman says it's boyish. What do you think about it, Jimmy?"

Cheese Is Good Food

With Wholewheat Bread and Fruit It Is Real Meal Says Dietitian

Without a dietitian to prescribe his food habits, Julius Caesar chose a health food—Caesarian Helvetian," Helvetian cheese. Wise as he was in the ways of conquest, Caesar knew no more than others of his 1 me about vitamins. In ancient days, however, the idol of the Olympian athletes consisted of fresh cheese, dried figs and wheaten porridge.

It is possible that Caesar may have known the facts assembled several decades after his death by Pliny the Elder, and Pliny the Younger, who wrote of Zoroaster, 1000 B.C. living for twenty years exclusively on cheese. He had no nutrition experts as Dr. Mary Swartz Rose, to plan his dietary. As to the healthfulness of cheese, she writes:

"Half a pound of cheese will provide sufficient protein of the best quality for an average man for a day and fully one-third of his total calories. The simple addition of a pound of wholewheat bread and a couple of pounds of fruit will provide in a few adequate for an adult in every respect and at a most moderate outlay of money and effort."

A half pound of cheese provides all the protein needed by an adult for one day, also furnishing more than 1,000 calories

High School Wins in Debate with College

Resolved that public ownership of utilities is to the greater economic advantage of the consumer than private ownership" was the rather ambitious subject debated the past in their annual talk fest between the Vermilion high school and the school of agriculture for the Sherrer cup. Without as the subject might appear yet it was extremely well handled by the respective contestants. The high school had the affirmative, the speakers being Misses Winnie Gilbert and Ethel Shields. The negative fell to the agriculturists, the supporters being Miss Nita Stephens and Cecil Warner. Scores of figures were quoted by both sides as well as famous critics some by eminent authors in support of their respective positions, and even banal utilities referred to as shining examples of success or horrible failure as the case might be. As arguments became rebutted and rebuttals were refuted, the large and interested audience were more or less confused until the judges announced their decision in favor of the affirmative when all of a sudden everybody seemed to agree and the debate was over.

The judges were Rev. H. A. Boyd, J. W. G. Morrison and F. J. Richardson. The announcement was made by Mr. Morrison who in the course of his remarks complimented both sides on the very pubic manner in which although and rather abortive subject had been conveyed. He made special mention of the debating talent shown by Miss Gilbert and the very clever manner in which she had marshalled her arguments. The decision was unanimous, however, only by a very close margin he said. While the judges were ill liberating on the merits of the debate a vocal and instrumental program was rendered by the students, the leading features of which were a vocal solo by Mr. Strindelhurst, an original solo by Mr. Plummer and Miss Hollingworth. These numbers were especially well received. A terrific storm of applause greeted the decision of the judges.

This is the first occasion upon which the high school has won the Sherrer cup, the college holding it for the past two years. The cup was donated for this purpose by Rev. F. J. Stevens, former rector of St. Andrew's church.

Rev. W. W Bell presided.

Word received last week from the Rev. A. E. Sage, formerly of Vermilion and later in charge of Lloydminster church, Saskatchewan, England, announces the death of his father, Colonel Charles A. H. Sage, late Royal Engineers Corps, at the age of 73 years. The deceased had a long and distinguished career, having first received mention some sixty-two years ago. His death drew forth extended notices in English papers. Colonel Sage is survived by his widow, one son and three daughters. The sympathy of friends here will go forth to the family in their bereavement.

Here and There

A description of the wide range and high quality of manufactured products originating in the twin cities of Fort William and Port Arthur was commenced on by visitors to the "Home Industry Exhibition," held in the latter city recently. The Exhibit was open only to hosts and hostesses, as of the two cities, and one hundred entrants had displays in which there was practically no duplication of goods.

Forty years ago not a tree could be seen growing on originless stretches of the virgin prairie in western Canada. To-day trees are plentiful and there is hardly an established farm house but has its shelter belt or a row of poplars, maples or some other variety of trees. Recent reports of inspectors of Canadian Government Forestry Service show that there are 7,000 farms thus provided and to date over 100 million trees have been distributed on the prairies, with many millions more brought from nurseries and planted on farms.

High School Notes

The debate came off most successfully last Friday evening. The judges awarded the decision to the High School debaters Winnie Gilbert and Ethel Shields. Their college opponents were Miss Stephens and Mr. Warren. Dr. W. W. Bell acted as chairman and made the presentation after the judges, Mr. Morrison, Mr. Boyd and Mr. Richardson had, through Mr. Morrison, announced their decision. Special congratulations were offered to Winnie and the cup will, for this year, stay at the high school. A program was put on by the College students and a special event was the "rolls" contributed by both School and College. We grant their superiority in numbers, but not in noise.

On Saturday evening a number of the students went up to a dance at the College. All had a delightful time.

On Friday, March 14th the High School will entertain the College students. We anticipate a very good time

A really peppy game was played on Saturday between the Rowan and Mines Hockey team. It was the last of the regular games and resulted in a victory for Canan's (Mines's) team two play-off games will be held in the near future as Corona and English are now tied. Total scores will count to determine the winning team of the season.

We think it would be a lovely thing if the Board would present us with a silver cabinet to keep our trophies and cups in. It certainly is too bad to have no place in which to exhibit our honors.

Detroit police radio sedanet cars made 1,186 arrests in 1929. In September last year they made 192 such arrests in an average time of 21 minutes each. These arrests ranged from bank robbers to bootleggers and even petty crimes to murder. Fifty specially equipped Ford phaeton patrol the entire city by day and night under the direct control of police radio system headquarters.

Father And Son Banquet

The Father and Son banquet held in the United church on Monday, March 10th, was a most enjoyable affair. Mr. T. Hawthorne, secretary of boys' work in Alberta, was the guest of honor.

The most important part of the evening's entertainment was admirably undertaken by the ladies of the W. A. If one may judge by the quantities of pumpkin pie that disappeared and the manner was greatly enjoyed. Still, with all the abundance of good things one often was heard to inquire, by remark that he had had only two pieces of pie!

Speeches, interspersed with community singing, followed. Harold Brown extended a welcome to the Dads and Mr. Baker replied. His worship Mayor Fuller gave a short but well-turned speech on "What a Town expects from a Boy." Percy I. Parsons took the other side of the question and well expressed the busy man's attitude in his remarks on "What a Boy expects from his Town." "What a Boy expects from his Home" and Mr. Parsons on "What the Home expects from a Boy." Answer but it that the latter gentleman is still looking for his dime. Matt Brimacombe then spoke on "What a Boy expects from his School," and Mr. Burkle replied. Mr. Hawthorne then gave an inspiring address, emphasizing the relationships that should exist between fathers and sons. Mr. Baker thanked the ladies and Rev. Mr. Boyd spoke very briefly.

The evening was rounded off with group games under the supervision of Mr. Hawthorne. Special features of this part of the evening's entertainment were: Dr Scott and Gordon Wilson's tug-of-war; Mr. Fuss attempting to jump the broom and Russell Bowes's endeavors to keep a correct record. By the time the games ended one wasn't quite sure who were dads and who lads.

The committee in charge of the arrangements is to be heartily congratulated on the success of its annual banquet.

"Youth and The State" was the subject of an interesting and instructive address given by J. W. G. Morrison to the Young People's Society of the Presbyterian church on Wednesday evening. The speaker spoke of the duty of our young people to them selves, to their homes, their religious home, their teachers, their town and the state. He emphasized the importance of health, reliability, education, kindness, self respect and self control as being among the many virtues that went to build up character without which no one would be fitted to take a place in moulding the affairs of the state. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker at the close of his address.

COMMUNICATION

Marwayne, Feb. 20th

To the Electors at Div. 6,
M. D. Vermilion Valley.

After serving you as councillor for two years I wish to thank you for your wholehearted, sympathetic, considerate and intelligent support you have given me. I have always felt the intelligent fair minded thinking men and women of this division were ever ready to give any assistance in any way by suggestion, word or deed to carry on the work as satisfactorily as possible. True my efforts no doubt have been lazy, but I am glad I have been able to lessen the over responsibilities of previous years by about one thousand dollars and hope you have got value for the money I have expended. Sometimes it seemed to me I was serving you at a sacrifice, but I was more than repaid to meet you and hear you discuss the problems as they came up and listen to your intelligent sensible manner, especially when it affected your fellow ratepayer. If any injustice in the way or assessment or anything else affected your neighbor it certainly was brought to my attention, for which you have my thanks. True, some did not see eye to eye as I did, and to them I hope they got value for their money.

I am pleased one so able and of high standing is taking up the work. While no doubt at a sacrifice to himself, he will find it interesting and elevating to serve such a people. I feel as much interested in the Division as ever, although moved into another municipality I am still a ratepayer. Again I rise to thank you for your very sympathetic support while service you.

Canada and War

Canadians unquestionably are deeply interested in the Five Power naval parley now in progress in London. They are really assured that it will have a successful outcome and that as a result there shall be not only further reduction in naval armaments, but a new and better understanding established between the great naval powers.

Canada, considering its size, geographical position, population and wealth, spends less on defence or preparation for war than any other country in the world. To all intents and purposes, Canada is and has been disarmed. If other nations maintained armies and navies proportionate to population and wealth reduced to the Canadian scale, the whole world could be said to be disarmed.

Yet Canada knows what war means. During the years 1914-1918, the people of this Dominion learned the bitter lesson of war's tragedies, and each succeeding year, since 1918, has only served to emphasize that lesson. Canada paid in the loss of its young manhood, in its army of wounded, many maimed and crippled for life or permanently undermined in health. Canada paid then, is paying now, and will continue to pay for many years to come, in dollars and cents for the huge cost of war and war's destruction.

Even so, it is doubtful if the average Canadian realizes what war, even preparation for war, actually means to this old world. As already stated, Canada's annual expenditure for war purposes,—that is, aside from the burden imposed by the Great War for which our people were in no sense responsible, but participation in which was a duty forced upon us—is slight, almost negligible, a very small percentage of our total annual expenditure as a nation. But this is not true of all other great nations, and most of the small and minor nations.

For example the United States, removed from the dangers and complexities of European entanglements, and largely occupying a position of isolation, spends on its armament budget a larger sum annually than any other country in the world, although the percentage of its total income so expended is smaller than in other countries. And it is a startling fact that the amount so expended is increasing. In the four years before the Great War the average annual expenditure of the United States on armaments was $440,000,000. The years later it had risen to $879,000,000. If Canada followed the example of European nations, we, too, would be spending a crushing amount merely because our neighbor is doing so.

In 1913, before the war, Great Britain's armament expenditure was just under $400,000,000. Last year it was $573,000,000. Every one of the Great Powers, except Germany which is temporarily disarmed, is spending much more today on armaments than was spent before the Great War. And this despite the League of Nations the Kellogg Pence Pact, and treaties galore pledging the nations not to engage in offensive warfare.

Great Britain spent $90 000 000 000 on its part in the colossal tragedy of the Great War It left Great Britain with a war debt of over $35 000 000, 000. Interest on that sum calls for $1,720 000 000 a year. For debt purposes alone Great Britain has to raise by taxation $5,000 000 a day, or $3,000 every minute It takes the whole time labor of 2,000 workers year in and year out to pay the annual cost of the debt burden. Add to this the $575 000,000 spent annually on armaments and $300 000,000 for pensions, and a total of $2,000 000 000, or $5,000 a minute has to be raised by taxation, or three-quarters of the whole annual revenue of all Government expenditure. Is it any wonder there is lamentable depression and unemployment in the British Isles!

If the London Naval Conference is successful in part only, namely, the matter of what are termed "capital" ships the saving to three countries alone, Great Britain, United States and Japan will amount to $1,000,000,000, or twice the total annual expenditure of the Government of Canada for all purposes for just it another way. if Manitoba could take into the treasury of the Province the sum saved when construction of but one 10,000 ton cruiser is cancelled, not only would all Manitoba's bills be paid for an entire year, but a surplus or $2,000 000 would remain on hand.

Apart from all humanitarian, Christian reasons for disarmament, the above figure indicate the economic dollars-and-cents aspect of this great question.

Canada paid, and is paying for war, let us pay and pay generously and ungrudgingly for peace by supporting the League of Nations with all our energy. Every individual Canadian, man, woman and child, should be a peace advocate an unqualified supporter of the League, and full Canadian participation in the League They should unitedly pray for the success of the London conference

Buy Use Pulverized Coal

B.C. Department Of Mines Investigating Its Advantages

The British Columbia Department of Mines, fully aware of the difficulty which the coal industry has been facing, has been making investigations into the uses and advantages of pulverized coal, and has secured the assistance of the fuel research laboratory at Ottawa. In an address before the Vancouver Chamber of Mines, J. D. Galloway, provincial mineralogist, expressed the opinion that if pulverized coal were used properly there would be no cause for the inquiries from Manitoba into the Coalmonts of a single barrel of coal oil. British Columbia produces 2,000,000 tons of coal last year. Of this, about 140,000 tons were used in pulverized form in various industries. The Vancouver Province says it seems highly probable that if the uses and advantages of pulverized coal and the facilities for using it were brought more forcibly to the attention of the people, it

RED CROSS ANNUAL MEETING

The main feature under discussion at the annual meeting of the Alberta Red Cross society, which was held in Calgary on Saturday, Feb. 15th, was the definite need for more support if the society is to continue to exist in the Province. The financial standpoint presented to the meeting showed a deficit on last year's operations of $13,500.00 and as there is no capital fund from which the society can draw, it is obviously impossible for this to be continued. In consequence the Executive was directed to reorganize all the way along the line, and presented a memo calling for an expenditure of nearly $12,000.00 less than in 1929. The work of the Division has been on an economical basis, and therefore the cuts that must now be made will be largely made in the service which have been rendered. Despite these cuts, the Division is facing a deficit of $6,000.00 at the end of 1930 unless the revenue for 1930 can be increased by this amount over that received in 1929, hence the definite appeal which was made at the annual meeting for greater support.

The reports which were read at the meeting by the Commissioner showed a really splendid work done during 1929. One hundred and eighty crippled children were treated in the two hospitals in Calgary and Edmonton and as a matter of interest $30,000.00 was spent by Red Cross on Crippled Children's work in 1929. Of these 180 children, nearly 100 were under (illegible) requiring long hospital) tation. These children came from 97 different points in the Province and the Calgary and Edmonton hospitals giving some idea of the wide-ness of the work. The Junior Red Cross also showed a splendid membership of six thousand members, bringing the total to just under 24,000 enrolled as Junior Red Cross members. In 1400 branches throughout the Province There is no question that the work which is being done in connection with the three aims of the Junior Red Cross—Health, Citizenship and Safety, is really admirable one. The Outpost Hospital at Peace Coupe had another successful year with 224 admissions and over thirty-three hundred hospital days, there being 33 births in the Hospital during the year. The Health Service through the radio and the public work done proved a very popular feature, and during the last four months, over thirty patchwork quilts and many sewed bandages and fifty garments were made by radio listeners in, and sent in to the Provincial Executive. Dr. Cross-ley would not listen to the reports which were given at the annual meeting without crediting the work which he is being done is of real value to the life of the people of this Province, and it would be a most unfortunate thing if, because of the lack of a comparatively small additional amount of financial support, Red Cross will be in any way to stop operation. If the Alberta Division does not carry on the work, it will be the first Province across Canada to break the continuity of the work which is being done by Red Cross, and it is hoped that the citizens of Alberta will take sufficient pride in the work which has been done by Red Cross and the part it has played in the development of the Province and their interest in connection with any local activities which may be attempted in support of the work.

Mr. Returned Man . . .
Do You Really Know "The Legion"?

DO YOU KNOW that all Provinces would, without doubt, have been out 10 per cent. years ago but for "The Legion."

DO YOU KNOW that "The Legion" is the only Returned Men's organization recognized by the Federal Government.

DO YOU REALIZE that "The Legion" is fighting for justice for hundreds of Returned Men's cases every year;

DO YOU REALIZE that it may be your "Case" next.

DO YOU KNOW that "The Legion" fights for the dependents of your pals and friends if you don't back it?

DO YOU REALIZE that staying with the Legion, both morally and financially, is the only way to help

Yourself (maybe, some day);
The wounded and gassed returned man;
The returned man in our midst whose health is slipping; (There are lots of them,—ask the Secy-Treas.),
The dependent wives, children and mothers of our chums who can not come back;
The returned man in our hospitals in every city;
The unfortunate soldier father.

DO YOU KNOW that because the Legion is not run for profit we expect every returned man will feel under an obligation to support his own organization by attending the meetings and help pay his own dues.

DO YOU KNOW, as a Returned Man, we count on you to support your Legion. We have no quarrel with you don't wish to strike you off. Come and give us your support if you think the Cause is worthy.

YOU MUST REALIZE if we all leave it to the "other man" to pay his dues and carry on, our Legion will go right out of existence. And we warn all Returned Men to get busy at once, and do the following much.

In Flanders' Fields the Poppies grow,
And we have it is — the Torch we throw,
To carry on — To carry on.

MESSENGER . . . . . The Legion is not out to make money, but only to "CARRY ON!"

NEXT MEETING OF THE LEGION: MONDAY, MARCH 10th, 1930.

A. SHAPE, Secretary Treasurer, Vermilion.

Farewell And Presentation To Old-Timers

Again Claymores witnesses the meeting away of her old time citizens, in the person of Mr. George Rutherford and family. Just one year ago Mr. Gordon Dunmore and family, another old time citizen, moved to Vermilion.

On Wednesday night, March 5, the Claymore community held an old time dance in honor of Mr. and Mrs Rutherford. Friends from near and far gathered at the school where the old time waltz, French minuet, schottische, and all the other old time dances were tripped in real old time manner. About the hour of midnight, when people were beginning to feel the need of a little refreshment, a dainty luncheon was served, after which Mr Norman Tucker called Mr and Mrs Rutherford to the floor. Addressing them he re-minded his hearers how Mr. Rutherford since 1903 when the latter first came into our midst. The on behalf of the Claymore community he presented them with a wicker rocker, chair and rug as a token of remembrance from their old neighbors Mr Rutherford's response was fitting and appreciative of the past friendships as well as the present evidence of their continuance Circling about them the roof rang to the hearty singing of "They are jolly good fellows" Then on with the dance until even the Claymore crowd had to admit it was time to go home.

Mr. and Mrs Rutherford have been good neighbors and will be heartily missed. They will make their new home in Kitscoty

DEWBERRY

Human nature is the same problem grave and gay, immortal and repulsive, noble and base, was creditably mirrored in a three-act play staged by the Dewberry Ladies' Aid in the Grange hall here on Friday evening.

The cast of characters and scenes were: Mildred Greendale, owner of a farm: Mrs Leslie Gardiner; Paul Hearman, in love with Mildred: Tommy McLaughlin; Deacon Hope from Missouri: William Forster; Pat, the Deacon's daughter: Mrs. Cecil Smith; Leah Jerkinson, farm hand, patent medicine vendor and cherished admirer: Louis Gardiner, Eunice Moredough, a husband-seeker: Mrs. Wm. Forster; Caleb Rigsling, a crook: Rev. Mr. Hocking. Thanks to no less Mrs Bob Braithwaite; Mr Brown, a lawyer: Cecil Emigh

As this play may be presented at other centres in the near future it is considered advisable not to reveal the plot; but whenever or wherever presented "The Deacon Hops" as played by the Dewberry dramatic society under the capable directorship of Mrs Sam Irwin will be worth going many miles to see. It is impossible in a limited space to give each actor her or his due measure of praise, individually and collectively they were a big success. Judging by the loud laughter and louder applause of the entire audience Louis Gardiner as Leslie Jerkinson was the star light star in the dramatic firmament. His absolute as an actor for the sake of a curtail sales on every possible occasion was funny in the extreme; while his purring and cooing in the lobe wooing of Eunice Moredough was the acme of fastidious perfection. Mr. Gardiner is without exaggeration a born actor.

Mrs Cecil Smith as Mildred, was natural and convinced by Mr. Emigh as Frank, showed remarkable patience and indelible realization in all her trials and troubles. T. B. McLachlin as Paul, the patient lover of Miss Mildred, though not a very aggressive lover, made the grade with the same in his calm, gentlemanly style. Cecil Emigh as the crook's voice behind the next and did not seem professional at his client's final discomfiture.

The Riverton Orchestra discovered some music between the acts and the entire audience joined in God Save the King at the conclusion of a very successful play. Over $100 were taken at the door. The Ladies' Aid for their splendid entertainment and the Hall committee for the use of the building, deserve appreciation.

Growth In Tourist Traffic

Thousands In Foreign Cars Come To Canada Last Year

Foreign automobiles to the number of 4,500,000 reported into Canada last year for touring purposes, it was announced in a statement released by Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of National Revenue. This was an increase of 862,853 cars over 1925. Every province enjoyed a substantial growth in tourist traffic.

A feature of the report is the increase of over 158,000 in the number of cars which remained in Canada for some considerable time. Last year 1,099,961 foreign cars entered Canada under 60-day permits, and 1,264 others came in for longer periods than that. The remainder of the 4,500,000 came in for a period not exceeding 24 hours. In 1928 the number of cars which came in under the 60-day permit totalled 943,548.

Even at an estimate of three persons to each cave the above figures are impressive as to the number of people from the United States who visited this country last year The totals will set statistic ans figuring the amount of money this multitude left in the country and emphasize the great importance to Canada to its tourist traffic.

"Ontario is the banner tourist province of the Dominion" says the minister's statement. "Over 75 per cent. (3,500,000) of the total tourist vehicles entering Canada came in by Ontario ports. Of the increase over all the Dominion of 862,353, 743,326 is accounted for by the increase in that province Quebec had a gain of over 90,000, British Columbia, 19,000: Alberta, 17,000: New Brunswick, 20,000: and Saskatchewan, 3,000.

Canada Steadily Advancing

Has Made Wonderful Progress In Past Five Years

Canada will build its nationhood on its own history and within the Empire rather than with its identity in the great mass of energy to the south of it, said Col. J. H. Woods Calgary publisher and president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, in an address to the Toronto Board of Trade Club.

Canadians had in the past, he contended, been more inclined to admire the progress of the United States than to ponder on that of their own country. This Dominion, he said, had advanced more in the past five or seven years than the United States had advanced in 20 years during any period in its history.

"Today," said Col. Woods, "Canadians are pressing northwards and finding that climate is not always a matter of latitude and that there is both wealth and romance to be found there. Some 200,000 miles of country in the north of Canada had recently been explored by airplanes, Col. Woods said By the old means of exploration this would have taken almost a decade.

Col. Woods paid tribute to the work being done by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in knitting the Dominion together.

Early Measurements

	Distance Was Determined By Ancients in Many Ways

Early measurements were derived from different parts of the human body Thus we find a fathom — approximately the distance between the hands of a man standing with them outstretched at right angles with his body; a cubit was the length of the forearm, and the all the distance between the ends of the thumb and little finger when outstretched, the palm the width of the hand, the span the breadth of the finger. The Roman was subdivided into four palms, and the palm into four digits. The subdivision into inches or uncia, a twelfth part, applied not only to the foot but to anything. For longer measures there was still less system. Canada like the Hebrew's half-day's journey, the Chinese li, the distance a man's voice can be heard upon an open plain; the Greek stadium, derived from the length of the race course; the Roman pace of five feet, the mile passus, a thousand paces, is the origin of the modern mile. In Old Loch is defined in English law as the length of "three barley corns, round and dry."

Where Britain Gets Bronze For Medals

All Victoria Crosses Cast From Guns Captured During Crimean War

Ivory Victoria Cross, "to matter in what war and in what part of the world it is won, is a link with the Crimea. For each of the bronze discs the "ore value" is cast from guns which were captured by this country during the Crimean War. The War Office keeps a supply of this raw material, and when a V.C. is awarded it sends along the order for the decoration together with a piece of Crimean bronze, to the firm which makes the decorations. Each cross is cast separately, the design and the famous legend "For Valor" being added afterwards Originally, only white troops could win the V.C., but since 1911, it has been open to Indian soldiers also; and since 1920, to women or, in certain circumstances, to civilians. There is only one foreign V.C.—Mr T. Dinesen, of Copenhagen, and only one case in which the coveted cross has not been awarded for some deliberate exploit. This is the V.C. laid on the War Memorial at Washington, on Armistice Day, eight years ago, "and dedicated to the American Unknown Warrior

Insect Bite

The shipper of the Popeye Rovers was interrogating a prospective recruit

"Do you want to play in our team?" he asked. "Are you any good as a goalie"

"Oh, I'm passable," was the modest answer.

"Then you won't do!" snapped the skipper. "We want some one who isn't passable."

Caller—"Are you sure the manager is out to-?"

Office Boy—"Do you doubt his word, sir?"

Fewer Wild Horses In British Columbia

Ranchers Are Having Grazing Land Fenced Or Individual Herds

The bunch grass plateaus of British Columbia are gradually being rid of their wild horses. Every year roundups are held at which several thousand of the animals are captured, the best of them being sold as mounts or farm horses and the others destroyed.

This winter with a special inducement offered the horse wranglers, the catch is likely to be larger than ever. J. W. Durno, of Calgary, offered to pay 50 cents per hundredweight for wild horses at shipping point for any number up to 1,000 head.

The price offered, a 500-pound cayuse would fetch $4.50, which would be found money to the owner, while the clearance of the horses would leave so much more feed on the range for the profitable stock.

Mr. Durno has not stated how he intends to dispose of the horses, but it is believed that the game may be exported to European countries such as Belgium and France, where horseflesh is eaten and that the remainder of the carcass may be turned into fertilizer.

Most of the wild horses are unclaimed, crippled or otherwise useless for riding or harness purposes. They represent the offspring of horses turned loose years ago by operators of pack trains and teams on the Cariboo road and other old highways during the gold rush days. For many years they have been a menace to the range country as a result of their increase on grazing land and their influence on domesticated stock.

Potato Ousts Food Only Of Waiting

Lower Climate Name Of It And Its Origin

The lowly potato, nicknamed "Irish" by some, whose more than 300,000,000 bushel annual production in the United States is the root of so serious an agricultural problem that the federal farm board has set it apart for special treatment, is a native of America, like corn and tobacco. The Incas, of Peru, had it under cultivation centuries before the Spanish invasion.

The tuber's history, from the time it was an important food in the hut South American civilizations, as prehistoric mounds show, was traced through a slow rise to its present day place of prominence next to bread, by William Stuart, of the U.S. Bureau of Plant Industry.

For 150 years after its discovery by Europeans, only wall-to-do people ate the potato. It was raised in their gardens and the lower classes knew of it by hearsay alone.

Discovery of variation was begun about 1880. Now, by artificial propagation and sexual reproduction, scientists are developing new and improved varieties of the original potato.

An Ideal Employer

Men Who Work For King George Well Looked After

King George is the ideal employer of labor from a point of view of Englishmen looking for jobs.

Seldom does any one employed on the King's estate at Sandringham, quit his job, for:

He gets a nice house with a garden.

He and his family are looked after by the King's physician at a fixed rate of 3 guineas a week.

He can look forward to an old-age pension and, if he dies, his widow gets a pension for life.

His pets (milk from the King's prize cows, wood from the King's forests and an occasional brace of rabbits or fowl) from the royal barnyard.

He has the use of a club house with library, billiards and games rooms, and a concert hall when needed for him 1 penny; half price for children.

Order Not Rescinded

Drury Lane, the great home of pantomime, used to enjoy a unique distinction among London theatres. For over a century and a half soldiers were placed on guard outside the doors during every performance. Many thought the guard constituted a recognition of Old Drury's status as a Royal theatre, but actually it was set there to prevent a threatened riot one night when George II. was to be present. The order not being countermanded, the guard was continued until 1894.

Standard Englishman Is Pleasant Speaker

Has No Peculiarity Of Speech As So Often Erroneously Believed

Something is radically wrong with our stage Englishman in America — almost as wrong as the stage Yankee who appear in English theatres. Who has ever seen an Englishman in caricature on the American stage without a ridiculous accent? Yet the head of this English nation has no accent at all. True, the radio announcer, in London, spoke of the naval conference as meeting in the house of 1-o-r-d-s; but when King George came on the air his pronunciation was so devoid of any peculiarity as to surprise most of his American listeners. He did speak distinctly. Every syllable was precisely uttered, not a letter was slurred, and the words were sufficiently spaced to prevent them running over each other. It is apparently a family trait, for the Prince of Wales speaks the same way.

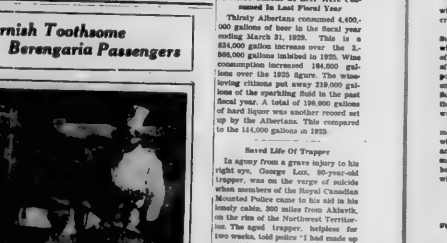
If they are heard often enough the American comedian will presently have to amend his traditional conception of the standard Englishman's speech.—Detroit Saturday Night.

Camels Are Fools

Back in the days when Australia was just being built up, camels were introduced to aid transportation. But with the coming of automobiles, railroads and airplanes, they have been abandoned and have now increased to such an extent that they are pests. Camel shoots are being organized to kill off these animals, which are eating so much grass that sheep are running short.

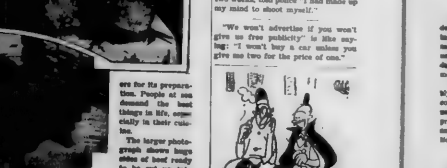
It has been calculated that between 1914 and 1918, the Turks shot, burned alive or caused to starve to death more than 800,000 Armenians.

Prize-Winning Steers Furnish Toothsome Delicacies For S. S. Berengaria Passengers



Prize-winners for prize-winners—that is the way it goes: in the panel is pictured sturdy, wicked-looking, horned shorthorn steer which took first prize in the John Labatt National Live Stock Exposition at Chicago. From their pen they went directly to the packer and are now aboard in different form, the S.S. Berengaria, flagship of the Canard Line, where they will be used in the various menus.

It is not an uncommon affair for the Canard Line to purchase its meat supply "on the hoof" and to make special arrangements with the packers for its preparation. People at sea are fond of the things in life, especially in their cuisine.



The large photograph shows huge cuts of beef ready to be cut up into steaks, juicy steaks or luscious roasts for the fortunate passengers aboard the "Berengaria." These are the best steers of the entire photograph. The first prize winner at the international exposition, which were purchased by the Canard Line and drawn especially for the "Berengaria" by the Armour Company.

HAVE REACHED A SETTLEMENT ON RESOURCES

Ottawa.—When the representatives of the Saskatchewan and Alberta governments walked out of the conference room in the House of Parliament recently, the natural resources question — a question which has individual political ills in Canada for 69 years—had ceased to exist. There remains only the natural resources questions affecting Manitoba and Alberta were solved.

Three weeks ago the question affecting British Columbia was finally disposed of. The Saskatchewan delegation took the train for Regina with a complete and permanent settlement agreed to.

The Saskatchewan resources question, although it has been decided, is not yet the subject of a signed agreement. But the agreement is ready to be signed to-morrow, by both parties, and only awaits the framing of a supplementary Act of parliament at Canada in order to be completed. When that has been achieved, the representatives of the two governments will sign it and the words natural resources in the sense of a provincial grievance will disappear from the lexicon of politicians.

"After conferences covering several hours, the question of the Saskatchewan has received a satisfactory agreement from the Federal Government in relation to natural resources. The legal representatives of the province and Dominion will meet within the next 10 days and decide upon what questions will be placed before the Supreme Court and, if necessary, the Privy Council.

"The agreement will not be finally signed until these questions are agreed upon by the governments concerned in friendly fashion and the Saskatchewan delegation is leaving for the west with a feeling of satisfaction that this vexed provincial question is now on the way to an ultimate solution."

Premier Mackenzie King, in discussing the conference, said:

"The four western provinces now have their resources. The Maritime Provinces have had their difficulties adjusted. The whole country has had its problems aired and attention given to them.

"As for the Saskatchewan conference, Premier Anderson is well pleased with the decisions reached, and, for my part, I am gratified with the result."

The agreement arrived at with Saskatchewan may be outlined, unofficially, as follows:

1. Saskatchewan will receive the unalienated resources immediately.

2. The subsidy in lieu of resources will be continued, with statutory increases, in perpetuity.

3. There will be a reference to the Supreme Court of Canada to discover whether or not the Dominion has the $2,-500,000 and the Dominion Lands act of 1873 are intra vires or within the power of the Dominion parliament to enact. (The decision of the Supreme Court will be appealed to the Privy Council regardless of which way the decision goes.)

4. A Royal Commission of three members will be appointed to discover what further amounts of money, if any, the province of Saskatchewan may be entitled to receive in order to proceed upon a basis of equality with the older provinces.

Prince Kasper Killed

Officer Of Anhalt Prince Stabbed To Death By Inmate

Auburn, N.Y.—Edward L. Beckwith, prison principal keeper, was stabbed to death in the mess hall of the institution by Anthony Mortsillo, an inmate, and became the third in succession in that office to lose his life at the hands of a convict.

The news of the fatal stabbing came at the height of the trial of Max Becker, gunman and gangster of Rochester, and a convict, charged with the murder of the man Beckwith succeeded — George A. Durnherr, Supreme Court Justice Benjamin R. Cunningham immediately recessed court.

Beckwith was killed in the second prison riot at Auburn within five months in 1929, that of December 11. About two years ago James E. Burtless, whose place Durnford took, was cut down by a stabber. The stabber was seized.

Promise Highway To Saskatchewan Border

Road From The Pas Is However, Still In Condition

The Pas, Man.—Citizens of The Pas, have been definitely promised a highway to run here to the Manitoba-Saskatchewan border if the Saskatchewan Government would build a road to connect with the proposed highway from Hudson Bay Junction, north of Prince Albert, Sask. Premier John Bracken, of Manitoba, told a meeting of the citizens that a road from The Pas to the border would be built under this stipulation.

The Premier said his government was now engaged in completing its part of roads from provincial extensions, and nothing would be added until that program was completed. He asked, however, that the present road program the road from The Pas to the Saskatchewan border would be the first construction undertaken.

Premier Bracken indicated that the Legislature, recently elected shortly pass a resolution urging construction of the Mafeking railway cutoff. He hoped this would receive favorable consideration from the Canadian National Railways.

In concluding the Premier intimated that the support of his government would be extended to the Imperial government if it displayed interest in the reclamation of the Carrot River triangle as an area for settlement of British agriculturists.

NEW HOPE FOR THE CAUSE OF DISARMAMENT

London, England.—New hope for the cause of disarmament at a time when critical issues in the present naval conference are growing because of delays, was contained in a statement issued by Colonel Henry L. Stimson.

The informal statement by the head of the American delegation declared that not only naval limitation but a reduction of at least 20,000 tons in the United States fleet, and an even greater cut in the British fleet could be achieved at the London conference.

The statement, issued in response to many appeals from the United States as to what the conference is doing follows:

"There seems to be an impression that the work of the American delegation at this conference is likely to result in an increase rather than a reduction in tonnage of the navies of the world.

"The surest way to answer that is to give such results as seem to be within reach up to date. A plan which is (in essentials appears to be acceptable to America and Great Britain provides for net reduction in tonnage of the American fleet in capital ships, cruisers, destroyers and submarines — built, building or projected for — of over 200,000 tons and an even larger reduction on the part of the British fleet.

"This would be substantial but not commenced were concluded in existing fleets, the amount of reduction would be much greater. Of course these reductions are contingent upon some reduction being made in the fleets of other powers."

The Stimson statement came unexpectedly at the close of a day of meetings and conferences, from which came only the same reports of uncertain progress that have footnoted proceedings since the French political crisis arose.

Immigration Policy Changes

Federal Deputy Minister To Interview Provincial Governments

Winnipeg, Man.—Changes in the immigration policy of Canada decided upon by the Dominion cabinet, were laid before Hon. Albert Prefontaine, Min'ster of Agriculture, and Hon. R. A. Grey, Minister of Education and acting premier, by W. J. Egan, Federal Deputy Minister of Immigration.

Following the conference the two Manitoba officials made a formal statement in which they declared that they are glad to advise that the general policy laid down in connection with provincial co-operation is, in their opinion, workable, but they are not prepared to discuss details until they have a further conference to which this said 'If' is issued."

Mr. Egan said that he had nothing to say about the Dominion government plans. He would interview every provincial government from coast to coast, he declared, before any statement would be made.

Questioned about the term "general policy," Mr. Prefontaine replied that the plans outlined by the Federal Government The Minister of Immigration, he said had made tentative arrangements which would be subject to change

Brydges Wins Dog Derby

Finished Race Twelve Minutes Ahead Of St. Godard

The Pas, Man.—Battling obstacles created by the past few years have thwarted him in his efforts to win major dog races, Earl Brydes, 22-year-old Northern Manitoba musher, has captured his first 200-mile All The Pas dog derby

Emil St. Godard, the champion and the favorite, finished twelve minutes behind Brydges. Brydges crossed the finish line at the north end of the town here at 12:16 o'clock to the cheers of hundreds of spectators.

He was carrying one dog of his own dog team, on the sleigh. Emil's team, visibly tired, finished at 12:31 o'clock, he was carrying three dogs on his sled, but Tuffy, the famous leader, was still in the key position at last.

In capturing the derby Brydges wins the first prize of $1,200 cash as well as the Grant Rice-Walter Coyne trophy.

TARDIEU CABINET EMERGES WITH GOOD MAJORITY

Paris.—Andre Tardieu's second cabinet ran the gauntlet of the Chamber of Deputies and, although roundly thumped by the parties of the Left, emerged with a favorable majority of 53 The rectified ballot was announced at 316 to 263

The appearance of the second Tardieu cabinet before the chamber with its ministerial declaration was the signal for one of the bitterest parliamentary battles the chamber has ever witnessed, the sessions being prolonged at one point.

The premier's declaration was interrupted by a tumult from the Socialist and Radical benches.

The opposition smarting under its failure to regain power with the Chautemps cabinet, taunted the deputies on the left who had accepted portfolios in the new ministry, and drowned the premier's voice.

The winning margin of confidence was almost twice as great as political forecasters had been ready to grant the cabinet in advance of the voting Most of them agreed that a majority of 50 to 60 would be a sign of strength for Tardieu and as the bitter debate on the ministerial declaration of policy progressed some of the pessimistic views began to believe that the cabinet would be likely to win at all

As a consequence the government will go back to the London naval conference and will face the chamber on the question of ratifying the Young plan revising Inter-Ally debts and passing a budget with enhanced prestige

The naval conference has been proceeding without the French officials represented but its progress has been slowly been slow, and the reappearance of the French will be the signal for resuming the negotiations at full speed

BRITISH NAVAL ESTIMATES ARE PARED DOWN

London.—British naval estimates for 1930, made public recently, show a net total of £51,730,000 against £55,-665,000 for 1929, or a reduction of £4,126 000

Rt Hon. A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, in a statement accompanying the estimates said the substantial decrease was due principally to reductions which the government felt justified in making in the shipbuilding programs of 1928 and 1929, in accordance with a policy already stated in Parliament — that is, trimming of naval be lding to meet decreased needs produced by the Briand-Kellogg pact and other peace instruments

He summarized the reductions as follows: Five vessels of the 1928 program have been cancelled namely, two cruisers of the 10,000 ton type with 8-inch guns two submarines and one submarine depot ship.

Twelve vessels of the program of 1929 have been cancelled, namely two cruisers of the 8,000-ton 8-inch type, three submarines, two sloops and one net-layer and target-towing vessel. Also there have been cancelled one of the 10,000-ton type with 8-inch guns.

He said that in addition decision had been taken to postpone the commence of the 1929 program are to be proceeded with has been deferred until after the London naval conference.

Mr Alexander claimed that the effect of changes in the full programs of the years 1928 and 1929 will be to reduce expenditure of new construction in these estimates by over £4,000,001."

Mr Alexander said the new building he said the government had decided not to formulate any proposals until after the London naval conference had become known and had been fully considered. "No provision," he said, "has been made in the naval estimates for commencing any further new construction in 1930

MONTREAL IMPORTS RECORD AMOUNTS OF BRITISH COAL

MONTREAL, March 19 - Imports of record proportions are anticipated for the current year by local importers of British coal. Last year in Montreal and district alone, half a million tons of Welsh coal, largely anthracite, were used out of an estimated total consumption of a million tons.

Three steamers are at present loading Welsh anthracite at Swansea and will probably be among the first two ports to reach Montreal this season.

ELKS TAKE FIRST GAME OF PLAY-OFF

Score Was 6-3

The Rooters took the short end of a 6 to 3 count in the first game of the Civic League play-off last night against the Elks. The game was cool all the way from a spectator viewpoint and besides the usual hockey, a little excitement in the way of a fight was added. The Rooters opened up with a rush and, backed up by sensational goal-keeping by Welsh, led by a 2-1 score at the end of the first period. The Elks were far from through, however, and rushed in five goals in the sandwich session with the whole team on their toes and dominating the period from bell to bell. The last period saw the rooters hockey of the year, no goals being scored. The Elks thus go into the final game Friday night for the Wiebe cup with a three goal lead.

Cooper, Barr and Rosebeck put two goals each with Fallow getting three assists for the Elks. Mackenzie got one and White two for the Rooters.

High School Notes

The first play-off game of the high school league was played last Saturday morning between English and Canon. The game resulted in a victory for Canon, the score being 8 to 1. The next game will probably be played Wednesday or Thursday. To all goals are to count.

The High School party last Friday night was a complete success. A number of students from the [illegible] attended and everyone seemed to have a very fine time.

The [illegible] staff challenged [illegible] to a rugby game which is coming off on Wednesday. We will announce the result next week. If the staff get out and play in their new square gray dungarees their opponents' attention will probably be effectively detracted from [illegible].

Reform Of The Calendar

The subject of reform of our present calendar is receiving increasing attention throughout the world. What was once regarded as more or less of a rabbit's idea is now seriously regarded by hard-headed business men and Governments as a meritorious suggestion. As a result, the proposal has reached the stage where the League of Nations has set up a commission to deal with the question, and Governments the world over have appointed influential committees to study the merits of the various schemes proposed. We mentioned are many large business corporations of the advantages of a thirteen-month calendar that they have adopted it, temporary is at least, as the basis for their internal accounting and statistical comparisons.

Hundreds of different plans were submitted to the League of Nations commission. These have been narrowed down to two or three for submission to the Governments of the world for consideration. The plan which seems to find the larger measure of approval is that having been endorsed by the United States national committee, in the work of a Canadian. Mr. E. Cotsworth, of Vancouver Briefly the plan is to divide the year into thirteen months of twenty-eight days each; to have each week, each month and each year begin on the same day; to have a new month, "Sol," come between June and July. This provides for 364 days, and it is proposed that the extra day be taken care of by including a holiday, to be known as "Year Day," between Saturday, December 28, and Sunday, January 1.

Sunday	Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday	Friday	Saturday
1	2	3	4	5	6	7
8	9	10	11	12	13	14
15	16	17	18	19	20	21

Among the advantages claimed for this simplified calendar are, from a business point of view, that it will afford a more accurate comparison between one year and another and between the months, weeks, and even days of one year and those of another, that it will simplify the computation of interest, each month being the same length, and it will also simplify other business calculations, payrolls, for example.

All holidays will fall on the same day each year for all a person's birthday, or wedding anniversary. Christmas would always be on Wednesday. "Year Day" would be a holiday between the old year and the new, and the new year would always begin, appropriately, we feel, on a Sunday.

Opposition to the proposed change comes chiefly from the churches and religious organizations, notwithstanding the historical fact that our present calendar was a change from previous calendars sanctioned by the head of a religious organization. The churches do not wish to have their feast-days, fast-days, and holy-Days disturbed, even though new they are irregular and as varying as other days in the present calendar.

Our present calendar is the outgrowth of centuries of disputes and jealousies. It is as illogical as were those old differences. For example, the early months of February have only 28 days as compared with 30 and 31 in the other months, is the jealousy of one Roman Emperor of another because the month named after the former had one day less than the month named after the latter, so he took a day from February and added it to month named after himself, thus giving it the same number of days as the month named after his rival.

The Bible records that the Creator made the world in six days and rested on the seventh, or Sabbath day, and in the Ten Commandments we are enjoined to "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." In later centuries, the church ordered that the first day of the week and not the seventh should be observed as the holy day, hence our present Sunday. But Jews and Seventh Day Adventists adhere to the seventh day. Christmas day was a matter of bitter dispute among the churches for nearly 2,000 years before December 25 was finally accepted. But it is not so recognized in some countries even yet. The new year begins at varying times in Russia and China, as compared with other countries.

The fact is, and in consideration of the present subject of reform it should not be overlooked, that the calendar is wholly man-made. There is nothing sacred about it. It is a convenience in the regulation of our everyday affairs. That it should add to its convenience if it were more uniform and logical goes without saying.

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because many times its volume is required. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physician everywhere.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—say druggists.

Wage War Against Cancer

Province Of Saskatchewan Taking the Lead In Combatting Scourge

With Saskatchewan about to take the lead in all Canada in the fight being waged against cancer, setting up two main clinics, one in Regina and one in Saskatoon, and pandemic radium to the value of $130,000, just a few statistics on the disease may be of interest.

In Saskatchewan cancer ranks fourth in the list of diseases that causes the most deaths. Tuberculosis far up in the list, is now far down and Saskatchewan is credited with having the lowest mortality rate from tuberculosis of any part of America.

The under as the cause of deaths is heart disease. Still births come second. Pneumonia ranks third and cancer fourth. The fifth on the list is accidents at birth and accidental deaths of all kinds are placed sixth.

SUFFERED FOR YEARS FROM RHEUMATISM

Regained Health Through the Use Of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Rheumatism is a disorder of the blood, caused by poisonous acids in the blood—and must be treated through the blood. Rubbing the skin may relieve the pain, but the vitality is low, then setting up inflammation in the muscles and joints. The end result may be the tortures of rheumatism. But there is hope. The cause is the blood—bad blood. Enrich and purify the blood and rheumatism will disappear. If you are a sufferer from this painful trouble, make use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and the healing influence of medicine will commence. These pills enrich and purify the blood and good blood drives out rheumatism.

Mrs. John C. McPherson, St. Mary's, Ont., who has had rheumatism for years and writes as follows: "I suffered from rheumatism for many years. My sister urged me to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after using a few boxes I was entirely relieved. I can now do my housework and am free from pain. I cannot say too much in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and would advise all sufferers to give them a trial."

You can get these pills through any druggist or by writing direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Overseas Trade

Western Canada Has Had Large Share In Increase In Trade With Old Country

Trade between Canada and the Port of Liverpool increased very much in volume during 1929, said C. M. Le Conteur, Canadian representative at that port, while on a visit to this city last week.

Western Canada has had her share in this increase, he said. Large quantities of grain from this province are shipped through Winnipeg to Liverpool, in the ordinary course, and machinery and dry goods are returned.

Cause Of Asthma.

No one can say with certainty what is the cause of the establishing of asthmatic conditions. They may be from dust, from flowers, from grain, and various other things. They may set up a trouble impossible to irradicate except through a sure preparation such as Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. Uniformity may exist as to cause, but as to cure, no one thing has proved a remedy which has freed a generation of asthmatic victims from the scourge of the bronchial tubes. It is said everywhere.

A Doubtful Apology

A youth from the city was walking across a country field when an enraged bull rushed at him and tossed him over the fence.

Painfully picking himself up, the young man looked through the fence and saw the bull pawing the ground. He shook his fist at the angry animal and said:

"If it were not for your horning and scraping and apologies, you brute, I should think you'd picked me over the fence on purpose."

The Chinese peanut crop, which now exceeds the American production, had its beginning in four quarts of American peanuts taken to China about forty years ago by a missionary.

Activity in Land Sales

Land and Townsite Department Of the C.N.R. Reports Satisfactory Year

Satisfactory reports concerning last year's business were submitted at the annual meeting of field men and other representatives of the Land and Townsite Department of the Canadian National Railways, and which was presided over by Mr. E. A. Field, Land Commissioner. Representatives were present from the three prairie provinces.

Land sales last year, in spite of prevailing conditions, were reported to be fairly good in comparison with previous years and due payments, both capital and interest, were well met on the whole, so that there was reason to be well pleased with the general situation.

The majority of those who bought land were resident farmers who were extending their operations or making provision for their sons.

Last year ten new townsites were opened, principally in Central Saskatchewan, and thirty-one others have been surveyed and will be opened during the current year. The building of new lines has attracted numerous farm settlers and a large proportion of their land is being brought under cultivation.

Britain Serves Its Public

Londoner's Experience Proves People Have No Cause For Complaint

The British Postoffice Department is one of the biggest businesses in the world. In addition to the gigantic postal work, it handles savings bank deposits, and has a complete monopoly of all the internal telephone and telegraph services in the country. Many billions of dollars' worth of transactions pass through its hands each year, and one hardly ever hears a word of complaint. That such an undertaking would be conducted with more courtesy and efficiency than a similar one in the United States, for instance, is the opinion of a Londoner who has had experience of both countries.

But a Londoner had an experience the other day which commends the reserve of the Britisher who is apt to grouse about the public services.

A man called up a friend from a public telephone booth, and after paying his two pennies in the box was unable to obtain contact. He then went into a store near by and sought the use of the telephone. He prefaced his call by telling the operator what had occurred at the booth. She apologized profusely and said she would take the matter up.

A little later the proprietor of the store received a ring from the operator asking if he knew the name and address of the party who had raped on her as she had forgotten to ask. The occupier did know, and furnished the information.

Two or three days later the telephone customer received a letter from the head office saying: "Enclosed please find stamps value 2d. as refundment of the amount expended by you in an effort to inspect the ineffective call to——on the. Any inconvenience occasioned you in the matter is regretted."

Whatever faults the telephone branch of the British Postoffice Department may have, it is scrupulously

Name Of Historic Street Is Changed In Honor

The name of a great German military victory has been erased from the street map of Berlin to make room for a tribute to the memory of a peacemaker of modern Germany—the late Foreign Minister, Dr. Gustav Stresemann.

Konigsratzer Street, which for more than half a century has reminded Germans of the defeat of Austria in the battle of Konigsratz, has been changed by official decree to Stresemann Street.

The thoroughfare is familiar to many travellers as the street on which two of Berlin's principal railway stations face.

LABOR PARTY IS SUSTAINED ON CENSURE VOTE

London, England.—The MacDonald Labor Government was sustained in the House of Commons in face of a vote of censure on the Government's tariff policy moved by the Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Conservative and opposition leader. The government was given a new lease of office, but the feeling is still general that the reverse on the Coal Mines Bill was the handwriting on the wall. The vote was 308 to 235.

The Liberals had announced they would support the government; Sir Herbert Samuel complimented Mr. Snowden, the chancellor of the exchequer, on his fiscal policy, and Mr. Baldwin was reconciled, in advance, to the result.

"The government will win tonight," he said, "but ruin washed away the corn laws and so will unemployment wash away this government."

Had the Conservatives changed the wording of their motion the issue might have been in doubt. As it was the Liberals were also bound to vote with the administration when the safeguarding and McKenna duties and the government's supposed colleagues to them were made the gauge of battle.

The Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden blamed the opposition directly in the matter of unemployment. The gloomy propagands, he charged, had done much to aggravate conditions.

Mr. Baldwin declared the Empire aspect of the tariff. It was by tariffs only that economic unity could be attained, he said. The motion he declared Mr. Baldwin, "to see any other way. Certain of the Dominions are now following his lead themselves as soon as possible, Canada will do it probably faster than the others, and she will be one of the greatest countries of the world."

The general opinion of economists, said Mr. Churchill, was not in favor of sweeping tariffs. He himself was favored sensible additions to their number and the regulating and systematizing of their character.

All these duties had, in the first place, been valuable and brilliant experiments, but the Conservatives were emboldened to go forward in this direction by an ever-growing mass of opinion in favor of safeguarding their trades. They did not wish these matters to be treated as party questions or "as stunts to be played with by newspapers."

The Rt. Hon. Wedgwood Benn wound up the debate. The secretary of state for India twitted Mr. Churchill with having abandoned his early free-trade views.

Mr. Benn emphasized there were millions of unemployed in protectionist countries. He said that the effect of the safeguarding duties would be to increase the cost of living and to raise the price of food stuffs.

A number of Conservatives left the House before the end of the Benn speech amid the ironical cheers of the Labor members.

Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, who acted in behalf of Premier Ramsay MacDonald, replied to Mr. Baldwin's criticism, said:

"It is a fact that ever since this government came into office there has been an organized conspiracy. It has been the deliberate policy of certain interests to prevent employment in order to discredit the government."

Found In Ruins Of Home By Mounted Police Officers

Moosejaw, Sask.—While their parents were away in the bush cutting wood, the two infant children of Mr. and Mrs. William Hutyra, homesteaders, were burned to death when fire destroyed their little dwelling.

The charred remains of the children—the youngest six months and the oldest two years old—were discovered among the smouldering ruins of the home when the parents returned from the woods.

COL. BARKER, V.C. LOSES HIS LIFE IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Ottawa, Ont.—A national hero, whose fame in the air was known throughout the world during the Great War, is dead. Lieut.-Col. William George Barker, V.C., D.S.O., M.C., Canada's greatest, war ace, nine pilots, was killed when a new commercial biplane he had taken "up for a test" crashed to earth.

Scarcely 10 minutes after he took off from the Rockliffe aerodrome in the machine, a Fairchild "Husky," bought here for inspection by government officials of the Department of National Defence, civil aviation branch, the body of the gallant birdman lay in the shore slush of the Ottawa River, almost every bone shattered. The plane was a tangled wreckage.

Official board of inquiry, composed of three members of the civil aviation branch, has been set up to investigate the accident and attempt to determine its cause. To some among the many persons who were witnesses to the ground the colonel's last flight, it appeared the engine stalled as he pulled the machine into a climb.

Colonel Barker was flying at an altitude of 200 feet when the engine gave its last roaring gasp. The pilot pulled the throttle wide open and swooped upward.

Then, at about 150 feet, the plane faltered, hung suspended momentarily and then like a wounded bird plunged headlong to earth.

Life was extinct when horror-stricken eye witnesses reached the wreckage. The man who came through scores and acres of hostile war combat; with his life, although terribly battered, had apparently been killed instantly.

While Col. Barker was president of the Fairchild Aviation Corporation of Canada, manufacturers of the plane in which he met death, he was not putting the glistening new machine through its last paces when the tragedy occurred.

R. Campbell Shaw, Fairchild test pilot, was here for the demonstration. He said that while Col. Barker had been flying recently, he did not take him to go up. One of the Colonel's arms was almost useless owing to his war injuries.

The machine was in perfect shape and the controls responded readily, said Shaw, who flew the plane here from Montreal. Previously Capt. Shaw had flown the plane from New York City to Montreal and a half hour before the Fairchild Corporation president took the two-seater aloft, Capt. Shaw had put it through the paces of varied aerobatics.

It was the first time Col. Barker had sat at the controls of a machine of the type and other Fairchild officials suggested he might have miscalculated the power of the engine to drive the machine in a climb.

The war record of the dead aviator, which included the shooting down of 52 enemy planes and possibly others unlisted officially, was exceeded only among Canadian fliers by Col. W. C. Bishop, another Victoria Cross winner.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Miss A Smith, of Toronto, and their seven-year-old daughter, Angela.

Start Campaign For Indian Independence

Ghandi and His Followers Begin March To Salapur

Ahmadabad, India. — Inaugurating their campaign for complete Indian independence from Great Britain, Mahatma Ghandi, 61-year-old Nationalist, and 79 of his disciples have started their march to Salapur, where the British Crown will be enacted.

Twenty thousand persons gathered to watch what was the first step of the long-heralded "civil disobedience" opposed by the all-Indian National Congress at Lahore in January.

Ghandi himself, despite his increasing age, walked with firm step. His disciples, who walked reserving reports that he had been arrested by order of Lord Irwin, Viceroy of India. It was reported he was to Salapur, however, that he would not be taken into custody, in which case the 16 students of the Tetakul Ashram setting as an advance guard were expected to take up his program and continue the march ahead as propagandists

Funds For Investment

Americans Are Anxious To Invest In Canadian Oil and Mining Ventures

Toronto. —"If this stock brokerage muddle was cleaned up at once, Canada would develop more prosperity in mush and oil projects this summer than was or invested during the height of the activity last summer."

This is the view expressed by John M. Edwards, the Boston banking expert in the Toronto new-papers on the occasion of his visit here to investigate certain prospects in the Lakehead. He will not leave for Edmonton for this spring

"A great deal of Portland and New York funds had been earmarked for investment in oil and mining ventures to be started in different parts of Canada this year," Mr. Edwards pointed as saying, "and with greater security for the public in the new stock exchange rules and amendments

In the new legislation governing mining, business should be on a very sound basis for those Canadian projects this year

Seeking Tariff Changes

Liberal-Progressives Of Manitoba To Interview Minister Of Finance

Ottawa, Ont.—In view of the fact that the federal budget is expected to be brought down before the close of the month, the Liberal-Progressives of Manitoba have appointed a delegation to interview Hon Charles A. Dunning, Minister of Finance and investigate tariff reduction.

It is believed that they will ask that the duties be cut on motor trucks, kitchen utensils, paints and varnishes and several other commodities

DISCUSS THE COST OF LIVESTOCK PRODUCTION

Ottawa. Investigation of the cost of producing livestock in Canada and the cause of wide price fluctuations were recommended by the committee of deputy ministers of agricultural departments, officers of co-operative societies and producers' associations.

A proposal for a Royal commission to inquire into problems affecting the agricultural industry was dropped after prolonged discussion.

The conference re-affirmed the conference of its members in the principles of co-operative marketing.

Organization of a committee to consider the problem of handling feeds of the western livestock areas was recommended.

The matter has been up gleanly battle, two-day meeting, during which time the conference heard reports of co-operative marketing activities in the provinces represented. The greatest handicap to the livestock industry at the present time is the high cost of production, the conference authorities it was pointed out, and improvement in breeding, care, management and marketing was necessary to put the industry on a profitable basis.

Co-operative marketing of the products of the livestock farmer was the primary objective of the conference, it was pointed out, and the attitude of delegates to what handles in dumping the product on the market at any time.

There is general recognition that agriculture everywhere is in a serious condition, it was emphasized Mr McPhail, Pool in England, where agriculture probably plays a smaller part in the national life than it does in other countries, there is a general feeling that the United Kingdom is "going to the dogs" and that the agricultural industry must be saved. Similar conditions exist in Australia and New Zealand, he said, but the feeling is not so pronounced there as in the old country.

Mr McPhail referred to the part of the Pool movement in the United States, and pointed out that the co-operative movement there is not yet on a sound basis. Until the organization is put on a proper footing it is useless to think of possible and participate in such pools of production as well as the marketing of the product. Equally as important as the marketing of the product. Equally as important as the marketing of the product. Equally as important

BATHURST, TOWN OF VERMILION:

In the interest of the Town, I wish to give you a brief outline of our municipal affairs, and invite your co-operation. Although collections are far below previous years, and from the fact that the school demand is exceedingly higher, it has been a very difficult matter to prevent a raise in the general mill rate. The increase in the business tax is due to an amendment to the Town Act, and not having sufficient time to amend the business tax by-law, we had no alternative but to allow it to stand as it is. This, however, will be remedied before the next assessment.

The Council has taken this attitude, feeling that a raise in the mill rate would work a hardship on those who always spent their obligations. The Council is also aware that pressure must be brought to bear on those who make little or no effort to meet their payments. Under present circumstances no expenditure will be made except in keeping our services, streets and sidewalks, etc. in repair. If we receive the whole-hearted support of the citizens at this time of depression, we can pull through without difficulty. May I ask for the same spirit of co-operation which has been manifested by the people of Vermilion on other occasions.

The trend in business today is towards increased volume. A larger output means a reduction in the cost of production. Chain stores, mergers and business consolidations are proving this fact to be true. The buying public is being benefitted by greater purchasing power and a wider spread of overhead expense. There are times of keen competition, when selling prices are keen and profits small. Increased profits can often be found in purchasing economies, by taking advantage of cheaper prices, by buying in larger quantities, and other considerations. There are many few people to do but respond to an opportunity to save money—Blackstock.

Typhoid Carriers A Health Menace

Unfortunate People Carry Typhoid Germs and Start Epidemics

Severe, years ago a woman in New York City became known as "Typhoid Mary."

"Typhoid Mary" is one of those people who have become infected with the health of typhoid, and although she is herself immune to the disease, she has passed on the germs to other people wherever she went. What made her all the more dangerous was the fact that "Typhoid Mary" was a cook, and therefore engaged in the profession, regardless of the fact that the authorities told her that she was a menace to the health of every community with which she came in contact.

"Typhoid Mary"—whose real name is Mary Mallon—was discovered by Dr. George A. Soper, whose job as a sanitary engineer made him a doctor of a sk cities rather than sick individuals. He was called in to investigate a mysterious epidemic that broke out in a summer home at Oyster Bay. Six people out of a household of eleven were stricken. In order to discover the cause, the water supply was tested, the plumbing inspected, the milk supply investigated, and all vegetables and fruits were examined, but no clue to the cause of the outbreak was found at any of these obvious sources. Then Dr. Soper went to work and followed up the health record of every person who had entered the house that summer. He finally lit upon the information that for a time that year the former cook of the household had been away and a new one had been engaged in the interval. The cook, of course, was Mary Mallon.

The doctor started on the trail of the new cook. It led him along the route of the most amazing chain of typhoid epidemics that has ever occured in years—in view of the fact that not one of the outbreaks had been from a single source. And in all In one of the households where everyone but Mary, the cook, and the head of the house, had taken Mr. Mary's employer thought so highly of the manner in which she had helped nurse the sick that he was reluctantly that he gave her $80 as a present.

It took Dr. Soper some time to locate Mary, and when he did find her, she was very little help to him on his mission, which was to protect the public from further exposure to the germs of which she was a breeding ground. She refused to give him any information, she refused to submit to bacteriological tests. She denied that she could have caused typhoid to anybody, although in the house in which she was working at the time, the daughter of the family had just died of typhoid.

"Typhoid Mary" would not cooperate in any way with the authorities, so that they had no choice but to put her away for three years on North Brother Islands. Examinations proved that when the doctors suspected, that there would likely be typhoid epidemic wherever she went. Mary used the city of New York for $50,000 for putting her away, but she lost her case. It was shown that she had caused an unusually large number of people to contract typhoid. She even worked in such a fertile field as a maternity hospital—giving twenty-five people the disease there.

There are typhoid carriers like Mary Mallon—thousands of them, who constitute just as great a danger to your health and mine as this woman did to those people with whom she came in contact. Some of them have had typhoid, and the germs are still with them and found in their excretions. Other people, like Mary, have been attacked by the germs, and although they are in no danger of getting typhoid themselves, they pass it on to other people. And the worst of it is, that a percentage of the carriers in Canada are in regular contact with our food sources.

Typhoid carriers are apt to disbelieve that they spread the disease, and they are difficult for the authorities to handle. In the case of Mary Mallon, for they feel under a great injustice if they are restricted in any way. For that you can hardly blame them They should be willing and

Canadian Hogs Improving

General Improvement As Result Of Application Of Hog Grading Policy

While it is generally understood that the hogs raised in Canada have been generally improved during the past five years, the extent of the improvement may not be fully appreciated. In the report of the Minister of Agriculture, at Ottawa, for the past fiscal year it is shown that the production of hogs in Canada, classed as "select," has increased from 11.97 per cent. in 1923 to 18.89 per cent. in 1929. Some of the western provinces have shown the most rapid improvement. Alberta going from 3.32 per cent. to 6.83 per cent; and Manitoba from 6.69 per cent. to 11.15 per cent. In the province of Ontario where hog production in Canada has increased by most for many years "selects" increased from 20.35 per cent. in 1923, to more than 25 per cent. in "select bacon" in 1929.

The general improvement in quality of Canadian hogs is the result of the application of the hog grading policy of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, which has made it necessary to consider the matter of quality in relation to the value of carcasses from the standpoint of wholesaling and retailing meats and meat products.

The principles of grading from the beginning have been the same, that is to separate the market stock into classes according to the market values. The changes in the classes made from time to time, it is pointed out by the Minister, have been approved by the Live Stock Committee which has represented the producers, packers, and the dealers. The latest modification which distinguishes between "select bacon" and "bacon" was prompted by the recognition that there was a demand for bacon of breeding to permit of theme two

Cleaning Up Canadian Herds

Great Strides Have Been Made In Eradication of Tuberculosis In Herds

In Commissioner of Health, Ottawa, Report, which is Canada's annual report on the progress of the campaign against tuberculosis in cattle. Fifteen years ago the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, began the testing of cattle as the beginning of a policy which has so developed as to have removed bovi survive without the cow. Talk of the farms throughout the country.

A booklet recently issued by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, bearing the title "Bovine Tuberculosis" describes the two main plans that are pursued by the Health of Animals Branch.

By the "Accredited Herd" plan, when a herd has passed two annual or three semi-annual tests without a reactor, the herd is designated a "Tuberculosis Free Accredited Herd." This plan is confined to herds that are wholly or in part purebred animals.

In defining the "Accredited Area" plan, the leaflet states that' when twothirds of the cattle owners of a definite area signed a petition for the establishment of a restricted area, and the petition has reached the Minister of Agriculture, at Ottawa, through the Minister of Agriculture, of the provinces interested, testing and clearing will undertaken.

Under the various policies administered by the Department of Tuberculosis Eradication, one million four hundred and sixty-nine thousand, seven hundred and sixty-nine cattle had been tuberculin tested up to the eighth of October last.

For Poultry Keepers

New Invention In Water Heater For Fowls

An invention which will be of interest to every chicken fancier throughout Western Canada has recently been completed by B. Moscovitch, Regina. The apparatus is an improved water heater for chicken troughs or fountains.

The water heater works on a new principle, according to the inventor who has applied for patents on it. It can be operated either by electricity, gas, oil or charcoal lamps and keeps the water always from freezing though not hot. The main feature is a conical centre section which heats the water from the top, down.

Has Created Good Market

Demand in Britain and Europe For Graded Foodstuffs From Canada

Grading of food products exported from Canada has had the effect, during the past ten years, of greatly increasing the demand for foodstuffs from the Dominion throughout the British Isles, and in foreign countries, Dr. J. H. Grisdale, deputy minister of agriculture, broadcasting from Ottawa, told a radio audience

Dr. Grisdale's address, delivered under the auspices of the Professional Institute of the Civil Service of Canada was the first of this year's series.

The speaker stressed the case of Canadian cheese as an example of what grading had done. In 1922, he said, and for some time prior to that, Canadian cheese had been selling in England at a price one or two cents per pound less than cheese from New Zealand. Subsequently, with the advent of grad ng, the price had risen until now the Canadian product commands the highest price on the British market for imported cheese. two cents higher than the price paid for New Zealand cheese

Dr. Grisdale sketched briefly the progress of other food products from the Domin on on the mnarkets of the world subsequent to the adoption of grading regulations. Canadian products had gained a reputation of being as good as they purported to be, he said.

Earthquake Menace

Scientist Says Danger Of Repetition Of "Quakes On Atlantic Coast Is Lessening

"The chances of our having another earthquake of the severity of last year's are considerably lessened than we can feel more now than before," it was stated at Halifax by Dr. J. H. L. Johnstone, professor of physics at Dalhousie University.

Terming "sensational" statements by New England scientists that a succession of earthquakes could be expected in this section of the earth, Dr. Johnstone pointed to opinions voiced by eminent authorities that the recent settling off the Atlantic coast has made it more stable.

Preparations for future shocks should be made, however, by constructing buildings, especially larger types, so that they will withstand them if disturbances do come, Dr. Johnstone said. Types of buildings which would not shake down before earth waves had been experimented with in Japan, he said, and had stood through recent severe quakes.

Similar work was being carried on in California as a precautionary measure. No such danger is considered to exist there.

Ability to predict when and where earthquakes threaten and so reduce their terrors would probably be gained by scientists through study of earthquakes, states Dr. Johnstone, adding that it was the only way they had of studying the inside of the earth.

Havoc was wrought by earthquakes mainly in centres of population where people were massed under the menace of falling buildings and waves, he pointed out. There were sixty major shocks, "which make the whole earth tremble" and a total of 3,000 earth movements annually.

The earthquake of November 18 was caused by a drop in the sea bed in the St. Lawrence Gulf, Dr. Johnstone stated.

Oddities In Etiquette

People Have To Be Very Formal In Scandinavia

Etiquette in Scandinavia is a thing to be dreaded, especially in Sweden. Even the former should address a person by his full diplomatic, official, professional or commercial title. Thus one meets Mr. the Assistant to the Bank Manager Wirsen, or Mr. the former Manufacturer of Blood Sausage Olsson. Denmark is far less formal, both in speech and dress, and there at the end of the dinner party the hostess will stand in the doorway and shake hands with every guest while she murmurs, "Thank you for the food," to which she answers, "I hope it will become you well."

Mrs. De Smyth: "We had a box at the theatre."

Mrs. De Browne: "Yes' Chocolates, weren't they? We saw you in the gallery eating something."

Lady (meeting an old acquaintance): "I'm just off to the cemetery, Mr. O'Brien. What sort of place is it?"

Pat: "Sure, it's a lovely place — people are dying to be buried there."

The big trouble today is that many automobile drivers believe that the right-of-way belongs to the one who gets there first.

Utilizing The Empty Spaces

World Still Has Lots Of Land Suitable For Cultivation

What seems waste land today may not be waste land tomorrow. Prairie lands that were once considered part of a "great American desert" are now the rich heart of our inland empire. The dreams of utilizing the vast empty spaces of the Sahara may not be mere dreams in another such short period as has elapsed since the first railroad linked the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. The jungles of Brazil may be made fertile for food lands, and even the poles wastes may cease to be neglected territory.

The new Hudson Bay railway which Canada has just opened does not lead into latitudes which in Europe would seem high, but it opens vast possibilities in our American Arctic. Already a reindeer herd has been started on a three-year trek from Alaska, where reindeer breeding is already profitable, to the lumber region at Hudson Bay, within reach of the new railway, and the meaning of the new railway to Canada's Far North is wrapped in as rosy clouds as hovered over the early meetings of the iron horses from our own Canada. Men are thinking of the Arctic in commercial terms as never before in history.

So the discovery of new coal seams in the Antarctic by the Byrd expedition offers something more than food for fantasy. The Antarctic explorers discovered a bit of poor quality and inaccessible today; but let us not forget that Spitsbergen, which lies far to the north of Byrd's camp in south, has been producing commercial coal—half a million tons of it annually—ever since the great war gave capital the courage to develop its mines.

Northern Siberia is another region of unknown possibilities. When John Muir and his associate planted the American elm on Vancouver Island nearly half a century ago the idea that such remote Arctic territory could ever have a meaning for human civilization seemed fantastic; it still seemed so to most of us when, a decade ago, Vilhjalmur Stefansson sought to colonize it as a base for polar exploration. But today it is one of the centers of the search for Eielson, with a Russian colony firmly established there, reporting on the weather for the world today.

The current "Geographical Review" reports that in the Lena Delta, more than 1,000 square miles which today an all but continuous night wraps the country, watermelons shake hands with every guest while the sun is at the zenith. And this is an Arctic region as far north as that in which Eielson is lost!

We have only begun to explore the possibilities of our planet.—New York Herald-Tribune.

Scratch Grain For Hens

Amount Given Should Be Varied According To Weather

The amount of scratch grain to feed layers varies with the different seasons of the year. In the winter when the nights are long and cold, hens need more of the heat-forming energy producing foods than they do when the nights are short and warm.

Scratch grain should be fed an hour before the birds go to roost, so they will have time to clean it up before dark. If hens have any grain in the morning as the hens are apt to fill up on it and then will wait for it to digest before they eat any mash and obtain the egg building materials.

English Potato Growers Decide To Launch Publicity Campaign

As the result of a consultation with the Ministry of Agriculture, English potato growers have decided to launch a publicity campaign to popularize their products.

We are to be urged to "Eat more potatoes," just as we have been implored to consume vast quantities of fruit and to stay ourselves with flagons of milk. And why not? The potato is an admirable article of food and its largely increased consumption would be of immense benefit to British agriculture.

It is 400 years since Raleigh brought the potato and tobacco to England. But while our consumption of the latter—thanks to the huge advertising camps gun of the tobacco industry—has grown to an extent that Sir Walter could not have dimly imagined, the potato has been allowed to languish in obscurity. — London Daily Sketch.

Board of Trade Changes Name

Officers Elected at Annual Meeting Monday Evening

The Vermilion board of trade which has been functioning here for the past twenty years, passed out of existence Monday night and there emerged in its stead the Vermilion chamber of commerce with H. W. Harper as president, C. W. Robinson as vice-president, and J. W. G. Morrison as secretary-treasurer.

Mayor Fallow is honorary president. The change in name was made to bring the organization in line with similar bodies throughout Canada.

The following were elected as members of the executive: Col. H. Watson, F. C. Long, W. H. Scott, A. E. Kaiser and C. L. Whitby. It was decided to continue the holding of the meeting luncheons on the same lines as last year. The chairman of the first of these gatherings will be Mr. Whitby, place and date to be announced later.

Considerable discussion took place with regard to local matters and the dairy industry in the district in particular. It was felt that straight wheat growing had on the whole proved more or less of a failure and that this district was pre-eminently suited for mixed farming, and anything that could foster this idea should be done. The financial statement as submitted by the secretary-treasurer, P. J. Richard-son, showed receipts for the year to tailing about $380.00 with a balance credit of about $13.00. The president in his report referred to the different matters taken up by the executive during the year and in concluding suggested that possibly it might be well to change the name of the board to that of the Vermilion chamber of commerce so as to bring it in line with similar organizations throughout the country. A motion to this effect was carried unanimously.

The large and enthusiastic attendance indicated increased interest in the activities of the new body

J.W.G. Morrison, K.C. Heads R. A. M.

According to the Edmonton papers J. W. G. Morrison, K.C. of Vermilion was elected last week to the office of Grand First Principal of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons the highest office in the gift of that branch of the Masonic order in the province of Alberta. This is the first time the honor has come to the local Chapter indeed, it is said that very few of the local officers have ever had the distinction of having a Grand First Principal selected from its membership.

Among the delegates in attendance at the convention from this Chapter were Messrs E. Corbey R. H. Norton L. G. Gunderson, W. W. Bell, E. Davies, M. Hill, T. Watts, J. W. G. Morrison, Percy Fielding and George Mellroyer of Mirabern

School of Agriculture Closes April 2nd

The School of Agriculture at Vermilion which, in spite of adverse crop conditions in some districts, has enjoyed another record attendance during the past year, will draw its winter session to a close on the evening of April 2nd, 1930

There was a total of 177 students enrolled, and the parents of those boys and girls are being especially invited to attend the closing exercises, and at the same time a very cordial invitation is extended to all to come and see the work that the students have done during the term.

The proceedings will begin with a Fashion Parade at 2:30 when the girls of the first and second year will display the dresses, gowns, suits, hats, etc., that have been made during the year. Men of the sewing will be displayed in the library. There will also be displays from the cooking, laundry and household administration department rooms. Last year some 300 women were present to see these features, and it is expected that the large gymnasium will again be filled to capacity.

At 6 p.m. a banquet will be given to the students, and a concert with the presentation of the diplomas and prizes will begin at 8 p.m. It is expected that the Hon. R. G. Reid, Provincial Treasurer, will give the address of the evening. It is also expected that Mrs. Warr, President of the U.F.W.A. will be present.

The school is exceedingly fortunate in having a considerable list of school supplies and prizes. These have been donated by local merchants and other public-spirited men and organizations. A full list of these, with the winners will be acknowledged in the press as soon as results are known.

The staff and students will be very pleased to welcome all who wish to attend the closing exercises.

Children Cry for it

Children hate to take medicine as a rule, but every child loves the taste of Castoria. And this pure vegetable preparation is just as good as it tastes; just as bland and harmless as the recipe reads. (The wrapper tells you just what Castoria contains.)

When Baby's cry warns of colic, a few drops of Castoria has them soothed, asleep again in a jiffy. Nothing is more valuable in diarrhea. When coated tongue or bad breath tell of constipation, stroke its gentle aid to cleanse and regulate a child's bowels. In colds or children's diseases, use it to keep the system from clogging. Your doctor will tell you Castoria deserves a place in the family medicine cabinet and your child will grown. He knows it is safe for the tiniest baby; effective for a boy in his teens. With this special children's remedy handy, you need never risk giving a boy or girl medicine meant for grown-ups.

What Do You Get Out Of Life?

Among the many publications which come regularly to the writer's desk is a little monthly magazine called "The Valve World," published as the house organ of a great manufacturing company having offices branches and agencies in all parts of the world, including every Canadian city. Its Printer, except Prince Edward Island. One of the regular departments in this magazine is headed "From an Old Fogy's Inglenook," and consists of informal, personal chats of a most interesting, informative, and inspirational character. They are thought-provoking without being in the least boresome, comfort to the reader. They are a spur to one's ambition, a ray of sunshine on a cloudy day as well as an incentive to be up and doing, and to endeavor to find and appreciate true values in life.

Thoroughly enjoying "Old Fogy" as we do, we are this week passing on through the medium of this column one of the "gems" appearing in a recent issue. We quote it in full as it appeared under the heading, "One Recipe For Happiness."

A short story I was reading recently pictured a woman who had just been her husband through an operation for appendicitis. As she stood by his bed, he said: "It's odd he had to go so soon." To which the widow replied, "I am thankful for having had him so long."

I ask me in this one respect, perhaps, we stay toward the possession of a tranquil and grateful soul. Instead of letting sadness over the bereavement depress her because it had come so soon, she was thankful because it had been delayed so long. She counted it a blessing that she had been to her than it might have been, and that gratefulness for this was much better than sadness over the reflection that it might have given her more.

Life brings us much or little largely as we take it. We get much or little out of life chiefly through our point of view as to what is much and what is little. It may seem little to us that we wakened this morning ready for another day of activity, or it may seem much that another day with its possibilities is before us. It is quite within ourselves to say "Another day in which anything may happen, another day of opportunity; another day to be alive and useful and helpful, and to do a bit more cheering, another day to grow in gentleness, to add to knowledge, to spread cheerfulness, to develop character, to stretch out the helping hand, to hold up the wearied brother, to forgive the unkind stride. Another day to hope and to love and to add to our store of happiness."

It's all in the point of view. How infinitely better it is to be thankful that life has been given us with all that it has to be and become than to cannot have more. To say "Good night, friend, I am glad to have had you so long" rather than "I am sorry you have to go so soon."

It was the writer's first intention to add some comment of his own on the above, but we refrain. It is complete in itself We, therefore, merely say to you: Read it again, clip it out for future reading on some day when you are short of a text for a talk, or inconvenient, and unsatisfying, and developing you as little Remember it is chiefly your own point of view of what is much and what is little You can make it much if you will.

Electric Bulbs Present Into Ice At New York Skating Club

Skating on ice illuminated from immeasurable depth, however, is the novelty about to thrill to many at the Rockefeller Center Plaza Rink this season. An 18-foot star outlined with the 10-watt yellow rock bulbs and the initials of the club in four-foot letters of red and green 25-watt bulbs in the center has been frozen into the huge rink of ice by floating the club-team experiment. The lights reflect through the five hundred of ice covering the bulbs much the same as through glass and present a most spectacular appearance.

First Typewriter In England

Honor Of Owning Machine Claimed By Sir Alfred Yarrow

Who used the first typewriter in Britain? Sir Alfred Yarrow, the veteran shipbuilder of eighty-eight, claims the honor. "In the year 1874," he says, "Remington's sent over the first consignment of typewriters from America. A dozen of these machines were packed in a case, and when it was being lifted out of the ship it was dropped to the bottom of the hold and remained in the mud for some time The case was eventually raised and, thinking that the machines would have suffered by their immersion, a friend and I bought them for a few shillings as no one knew anything about them. I took one to my work, had it cleaned and oiled, and then the difficulty was to find someone to use it. Realizing that it required a person with active fingers I advertised for a shorthand-writer who could play the piano. A very clever young man applied for the job; I engaged him, and he remained in my employ until his death."

British Not So Slow

There is nothing slow about the British railways, as is evidenced by the rabbit news that the Southern road has secured stock in and made arrangements with the Imperial Airways by which an air service may be maintained, which will avoid wasteful and unnecessary competition between the two companies in air transportation."

Britain's Playgrounds

Many Of World's Largest Parks Are Within the Empire

Within the confines of the British Empire are some of the biggest playgrounds in the world. Canada heads the list with no fewer than eight national parks, with recreation areas of over 12,000 square miles, mostly situated in the Rocky Mountains of eminence of grandeur and beauty unsurpassed anywhere in the world. Jasper Park, in Northern Alberta, with an area of 4,317 square miles—two-thirds as big as Wales—is the largest of them. National playgrounds on a grand scale, they contain quite a feature in New Zealand. The two largest are the Tongariro National Park in the middle of the North Island, and the Fiordland National Park in the South Island. Fiordland Park, besides being one of the two largest in the world, includes within its borders sounds, lakes, rivers, waterfalls, and mountain scenery of remarkable beauty and grandeur. One outstanding feature is "The World's Wonder Walk," winding through a series of mountain passes and majestic gorges from Lake Te Anau to Milford Sound.

Health Restored Through the Use Of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Mrs Leo. Bedard, Quebec City, tells how her health and strength were restored through the use of that great blood-building tonic, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. Bedard says: "Some three years I was, without a doubt of my little boy, I was left very weak and run down. I used to have any strength, and at times I was so dizzy I could scarcely walk. One of a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I did so. In a few weeks I was surprised to notice the difference in my strength—I felt like a new woman I continued taking the pills until I had used ten boxes. Some three years I do, without

Glowing Future For Canada

Prediction Made By Official Of French Steamship Line

A glowing future for Canada is foreseen by Maurice Tiller, of Paris, France, managing director of the French Steamship Line. "Our belief in the future of the country is so substantial that we have just inaugurated a new north Pacific service with Vancouver as the head port," he said on a visit to Ottawa after a month's tour of this continent.

The new Pacific service, running via Los Angeles and the Panama Canal to Havre, France, involves expenditure of a great many millions of dollars, Mr. Tiller said. The flagship of the fleet of eleven vessels will be the S.S. Winnipeg, largest ship of its type to enter Vancouver harbor, which Mr. Tiller described as "a wonderful harbor."

"France needs a strong navy to protect her shipping and her far flung colonies," he declared in briefly discussing the London naval parley. France, economically speaking, is today not far from being back to pre-war status Mr. Tiller declared, with there being little or no unemployment in the country. The attitude of the commercial people in France toward England is as warm today, he said as on the day of the armistice.

Cost Of Raising Calves

Experimental Station At Lethbridge Figures the Cost At $62.16

The cost of raising a calf into a well grown thrifty heifer is found to be $62.72 by the experimental station of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, at Lethbridge, Alberta.

This figure is arrived at from the cost record of nine calves from an average of thirty-eight days to an average age of thirteen months.

The total feed cost for the nine head of dairy calves was $294.60. They were fed 6,750 pounds of whole milk priced at $1.40 per cwt., 894.50 11,988 pounds of skim milk at 25 per cwt. $29.97, 2,751 pounds of Experimental Farm calf mixture at $2.50 per cwt., $68.78, 2,651 pounds of oats at $1.65 per cwt., $43.74; 3,290 pounds of eastings at $4.00 per ton, $6.56, 4,900 pounds of alfalfa hay at $10 per ton, $24.50; 30 pounds of salt, .30; they were kept 102 days on pasture at 2.5 per head, per day, $22.95; and on stubble pasture 14 days at 2.5 cents per head, per day, $3.15.

Has Become Important

Gdynia Is Poland's New and Only Modern Seaport

"What, never heard of Gdynia, in the Baltic?" said the insurance man rather haughtily at the club luncheon table. Four of us admitted we never had, writes "Lookers-On" in the London Daily Chronicle. Indeed, we threw doubt upon the existence of such a port. Yet he declared he had been in it, feeling insurance an elegance to it for some time past. We looked it up in an atlas. No mention of it. We must have seen the Polish name for Danzig, which is Gdansk, and got confused," we said. Yet next day he turned up with cutting about Gdynia from a shipping paper. Five years ago it was a fishing village with 300 inhabitants. Now it is a fully equipped modern seaport. It is Poland's only one. That is why they have been so much quick about making it.

Not Liable To Change

"What's the idea?" bellowed the policeman to the stalled motorists. "You've been parked here more than an hour."

"What's the idea yourself," rejoined the motorist. "I can't go ahead until the traffic signal turns green."

"Well, make yourself comfortable for a long wait," said the policeman. "That red light's on a fire box."

Mother: Why are you so unkind to Sister? Don't you like her?

Child: No, I hate her. I'd like to pinch her cheek, like daddy does

"Then why don't you go a day earlier?"—Gutierrez, Madrid.

Building Up Bee Colonies

Transportation Of Bees By Package Proving Satisfactory

One of the most effective ways of building bee colonies up to full production strength is the importation of package bees. C. H. Gooderham, B.S.A., the Dominion Apiarist, in a pamphlet on package bees, now available at the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture, states that the transportation of bees by package is proving quite satisfactory and may be done safely anywhere in Canada. With proper care and management they will build up into strong producing colonies the first season.

In the prairie provinces and other areas where the main honey flow comes late, there is a longer building up period and package bees will often equal overwintered colonies in production. In regions where the main flow comes early package bees are unable to build up to full strength before the flow starts and cannot be expected to store such large crops.

A development of importance in this connection is the establishment of the fact that it is now possible to ship package bees without comb. The advantage of the new method being that it prohibits the possibility of the introduction of diseases While the beginner may have a little more trouble with package bees than he had with bees already established on comb, he is at least certain that his bees will be free from disease.

When purchasing package bees it is extremely important that the hives should be ready to receive them when they arrive, and also that there is a sufficient continuous supply of food for them until they can gather enough for themselves

Frozen-Pack Strawberries

Frozen Berries Can Be Used As Fresh Fruit In the Winter Months

Some rather interesting and apparently satisfactory results are reported in connection with recent experiments relating to the cold storage handling of strawberries

A feature at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair last year, was the fine appearance and quality of apparently fresh Canadian-grown strawberries as an item on the menu of the All Canadian Products Dinner. These berries had been grown in British Columbia in June, and had been kept in a frozen condition in cold storage.

An Ontario jam factory recently received a consignment of the same pack of berries, which they report were received in good condition.

The surplus crop of strawberries was sent by the British Columbia growers to the Government Experimental Plant, where the fruit was washed and graded under government supervision, packed in barrels with dry sugar, sealed and then put in cold storage where they have since been kept at a temperature of 15 degrees Fahrenheit above zero. Last year's pack amounted to 2,100 barrels.

The result of this experiment indicates that the berries kept sufficiently well to be used as fresh fruit and reported as a really first class article.

New Land Map

Crown Land Still Available In Each Township Is Shown

The Department of the Interior has issued a new edition of a land map which shows at a glance the total number of quarter sections of Crown land still available in each township. The map also indicates Dominion Land Offices, existing railway facilities in each district and provides the customary information regarding cities, towns and villages.

A copy of this map together with other material of interest to the prospective settler may be obtained free of charge on application to the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior, at Ottawa.

Needed the Time

Johnnie: "Mother, will you get my watch fixed today, sure?"

Mother: "Why are you in such a hurry?"

Johnnie "Because I am secretary of the Safety Council and the teacher says I will have to keep the minutes tomorrow."

Gave Her Credit

A girl met an old flame and decided to begin at him.

"Sorry," she murmured, when the hostess introduced him to her, "I didn't get your name."

"I know you didn't," rejoined the old flame, "but you tried hard enough."

The Story Of Mike

Little Crippled Indian Boy Who Is Being Helped By the Red Cross

One of the inmates of the Junior Red Cross Hospital, in the capital city of Edmonton, Alberta, is a little Indian lad of the name of Mike. He has an interesting story to tell of how he came to be in the wards of the hospital, for his own home is in the wilds of the hinterlands of the North. His people are of the wandering tribes that make their living with trapping and fishing. One day their tents were pitched in a little town by the banks of a wide river, where people kept in touch with the world outside by means of radio. One observed with wonder the many aerials that hung above woodland cabins, like spiders webs strung across the trees.

One of the listeners heard a weekly feature program of the Red Cross, with special references to the work in Alberta of the Crippled Children's Hospitals. The lad who had never walked, and lay in a tepee in the woods came to her mind at once, and she resolved to see what could be done.

Not only had Mike lain helpless on the ground, but his mind had never been trained to read or write, and he never had set foot inside a school-room at any time. The Providence which moves in a mysterious way then took part in the program of Mike's young life, and soon he was transported to the city.

You will find him in a clean white cot, looking bright and alert, and he will tell you that he is learning to read and write, and that his body is getting better day by day, and soon, when he gets his plaster jacket on, he will perhaps be able to get quite well and strong again like other lads, for in the wards of the Junior Red Cross Hospital hope springs eternal.

Plays Organ in Notre Dame

Sixteen-Year-Old Girl First Woman To Touch Instrument

A woman, for the first time, has played the great organ of Notre Dame Cathedral, an instrument two centuries old, and played by Napoleon's coronation.

The woman, a really is a girl, Rose Nimm, 16 years old, but already a noted organist, often applauded at concerts.

Even during the days of the Revolution, when Notre Dame was sacked and turned into a "Temple of Reason," with a ballet dancer receiving there as "Liberty," and later during the Commune, no woman, so far as recorded, ever touched the old organ.

A Prayer For Motorists

The Christian Register prints the Harry McCreary:

"Teach us to drive through life without skidding into deep ruts of pessimism. Preserve our brake lining, that we may stop before we go too far. Help us to bear the knocks of our own motors and close our ears to the clashing of other people's gears. Keep alcohol in our radiators and out of stomachs. Absolve us from the mania of trying to pass the other automobile on a narrow road. Open our eyes to the traffic signs, and keep our feet on the brakes."

"How did your article on perpetual motion turn out?"

"It's a success. Every time I send it out it comes back."

Fun is like insurance; the older you get the more it costs you.

MR. HAROLD F. RITCHIE

Pompeian Company Bought By Well Known Group

Group Headed By Harold F. Ritchie and F. M. Shoemaker, Purchases The Famous Pompeian Line From Colgate Palmolive-Peet Company

Definite announcement has been made that the Pompeian Company has been purchased from the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company by a group of individuals well known in the Drug, Department Store and Toilet Goods Trade, consisting of: Mr. Harold F. Ritchie, of New York and Toronto, Canada, (President of Harold F. Ritchie and Company, Inc., New York, Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., Toronto, Canada, and the British Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., of London, England; Toronto, Canada; Sydney, Australia; and Wellington, New Zealand, and also President of International Proprietaries, Ltd., owners of Eno's Fruit Salt and Thermogene), and Messrs. F. M. Shoemaker, Guy S. Shoemaker, Clayton S. Shoemaker and M. Holmes Shoemaker of Elmira, New York (executives of the Prostilla Company).

Negotiations have been going on steadily for the last several months and the new owners took over the management of the company on March 1, 1930. The plans are now completed and the development of the Pompeian business on a greatly enlarged scale will be the immediate aim. Further announcements will shortly be made concerning the new moves and increased selling and advertising program.

The Pompeian Company was originally a Cleveland Company, headed by Mr. Blecher, Mr. Otto P. Leopold and Mr. W. W. Wheeler. Operations were carried on from Cleveland for a great many years, and the Pompeian Company became one of the largest in the Toilet Goods Field, with an outstanding reputation and an enviable following. The original item on which the business received its great impetus was the famous Pompeian Massage Cream. This item developed to a point where it dominated the entire field of Massage Creams — and even today is considered to be alone in its class. Pompeian Massage Cream spread to every corner of the world — and carried with it the other Pompeian toiletries, among which are the Pompeian Beauty Powder, Pompeian Bloom (a metal box rouge), Pompeian Day Cream and Pompeian Night Cream.

Early in 1927, the Pompeian business was purchased by Colgate & Company, and the factory moved to Jersey City, Later, after the merger of Colgate and Palmolive-Peet, this business was approached and negotiations started which finally were consummated in the sale of the Pompeian Company to the mentioned group.

The line is well known to Mr. Harold F. Ritchie, as the Harold F. Ritchie and Company in Canada acted as sales agents for Pompeian products in Canada and several countries in the foreign field up until the time that Colgate and Company purchased it.

"The Shoemaker family have enjoyed their reputation as expert manufacturers over a period of fifty years. They have every facility to produce the highest quality merchandise, in their factories and laboratories in Elmira, N.Y., and Toronto, Canada, where Pompeian Products will hereafter be made.

The sales of Pompeian Products in all countries will be handled by the Ritchie Organizations. Pompeian Products already enjoy distribution in over 40 countries, and the concentrated efforts of these two groups should greatly increase distribution, and result in increased volume throughout the world.

The offices of the Pompeian Company in the future will be at New York, N.Y. (Madison Avenue and 45th Street), Elmira, N.Y., and Toronto, Canada. There will be branch offices in Paris, London, Berlin, Sydney, Australia; Wellington, N.Z.; Shanghai, China; Tokio, Japan, and Cape Town, Africa.

The officers of the New Company are as follows:—Chairman of the Board, F. M. Shoemaker; President, Harold F. Ritchie; Vice-President and Treasurer, James H. Anderson; Executive Vice-President, C. S. Shoemaker; Secretary and Asst. Treasurer, Guy S. Shoemaker; Controller, Chas. M. Henning. Directors: Harold Schmidt, Jr., Edward H. Letchworth, Herbert H. Klein, H. Holmes Shoemaker will be Production Manager.

Pompeian Products have been known to the public for over thirty years as high-grade, quality toiletries at popular prices. Their position in the industry and their reputation with the public have been maintained through consistent advertising of a dominant nature—with copy appeals that have kept pace with the times and have been in keeping with the worthiness of the products.

Has Important Knowledge

Family Doctor In Position To Know Medical History Of Patients

In considering the possible scope of the service that a general practitioner or family doctor can perform, it is well to bear in mind the results of modern study of diseases. It has been shown that early diagnosis and treatment of infantile paralysis will almost surely cure the ailment and will also save the patient from being crippled for life. It has been shown, too, that early diagnosis and treatment of tuberculosis will effect a cure in most cases, and that preventive measures can be taken against certain maladies. Such thoroughly up knowledge of diseases would suggest that a family physician, in a position to learn thoroughly acquainted with the medical histories of his patients and to learn their physical condition from time to time, might be more useful now to his patients than he could have been at any time in the past.

Took Three-Mile Train Ride

Woman Aged 102 Was Tired Of Staying At Home

"Granny" Humphries, aged 102, got the wanderlust the other day, took a three-mile ride on a railroad and then went home contented.

Granny came to Australia from Ireland in her youth, and with her pioneering husband went into the wilderness, where she never emerged until curiosity got the better of her and she insisted upon taking a train ride. Her three children, sons, aged 72, 76 and 77 deplored their mother's escapade.

Hadn't Dollar To Invest

If Methuselah had invested $1 at 6 per cent. compound interest it is estimated that he would have had $77,157,900,000,000,000,000 when he died. The fact that he didn't do so, however, proves that finding a dollar to invest in these days was just about as hard as it is now.

Preparing For Taking Census

Most Economical Census Will Be Taken In 1931

Preparations are being made for taking another decennial census in Canada. It is to be taken in 1931.

Credit for taking the first modern and scientific census is claimed by Canada. This was taken of the County of New France, in Canada, in 1666. It was a systematic "nominal" enumeration of the people, taken on what was known as the "de jure" principle, of a fixed date, showing age, sex, occupation and conjugal and family condition. That census recorded 3,215 souls.

The census to be taken in Canada next year will give employment to 15,000 persons, or about five times as many people as the entire population of Canada when the first census was taken. They will cover the expansive area of Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the International Boundary to the Arctic. The actual work of enumeration will begin in June, 1931, under the direction of the Canadian Government Bureau of Statistics.

The first classification in the census is the population of the country. The next is births and deaths. Then the migrations of the people, sex, age, nationality, occupation, etc., are recorded. Social statistics form a third classification. This includes production in all its forms, mines, transportation, marketing, finance. Altogether there are 36 main headings and 97 subsection headings.

The big problem is to co-ordinate; that is, to get all the statistics to fit in with each other and make a whole. Some of the significant uses of statistics enable various trends of modern life to be observed. For example, statistics show that the average expectation of life in the United States had gone up eight years during the 30th century.

The first census of the Dominion was taken in 1871, and similar censuses have followed in every tenth year.

Two Thousand Years Old

Footprints Of Dog Found On Bricks From Roman Wall

A great deal of interest has been caused in London by the discovery of a dog's footprints on a huge brick taken from the wall of an ancient Roman building. When excavators came upon this old wall, some of the bricks of which it was constructed, were taken as specimens to the museum, at the Guildhall, and when the mortar had been scraped from one of them—a huge brick, 17 inches in length, and 12 inches across, and two inches thick.—the imprints of the feet of a dog were found. They must have been made nearly two thousand years ago.

As the bricks, after moulding, lay on the ground to toughen, before being fired, the dog must have run over them. Two of the footprints are close together, suggesting that the dog was chasing something, or being chased. It might have been a Roman cat. It was certainly not a rat, for there were no rats in London at the time of the Romans.

Many dogs have chased many cats since London first rose above the Thames, and many more will doubtless do so, but few will leave a record of the chase to be read 2,000 years later.

Pern Accepts First

The first acceptance of the invitation to participate in the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference to be held in Regina, Sask., in 1932, comes from the minister of foreign affairs, Lima, Peru, on behalf of the Peruvian government. Mailers of detail as to the manner in which this country will take part have been referred to the department of works and communications.

NEWBERRY

Consignments of spring and summer goods of all kinds are pouring into Dewberry by every train from Edmonton for the past week. Fri day's freight was the biggest here for a long time. It took two days to deliver it to the several stores and the draymen had to work overtime at that.

Doug Machen and Joe Tulloch share the honor of having seen the first harbinger of spring this year—a beautifully colored but evasive butterfly. The young men chased it for over a mile without success. However the hunters, to prove that spring was in the offing, brought home a newly shot gopher and a large fly.

Another indisputable sign of spring is the procession of tractors to and from J. S. McKay's engine hospital. Some of these tractors present a pitiful appearance as they limp and wheeze and groan as they wobble in or are hauled in by healthier brothers; but you see them rearing to go after Dr. McKay gives them a spring tonic.

Newspapers say that Swanson-Fryvertug is to have a bridge across the Saskatchewan. They had a Board of Trade meeting and a chicken supper three weeks ago and they say there is oil beneath the surface.

If Dewberry had a Board of Trade and a chicken supper and oil and a bridge at Lac Park, the oil may be here too. Who knows?

"Believe it or not" as Ripley says, March 16th was the hottest and coldest day in this month. At 2 p.m. the thermometer registered 57 degrees above; at 5 p.m. 16 below—a drop of one of 57 degrees in a few hours. No need to climb the Himalayas for experience in climatic variations; you Alberta first.

Seniors Take Second Game But Lose on the Round

The Elks' entry in the Civic League walked off with the Wicbe Cup, memorial of the league championship for the season 1929 and 1930. The first game ended 6-2 for the Elks, while the Seniors grabbed off the final of the season 3-2, thus the Elks won the round and the cup by 2 goals to 1 in a homestover of a game last Friday night the Seniors scored and the Elks 3-2 but couldn't overcome the 5 goal lead the antlered boys had piled up in the previous game. The first period ended with the score reading Elks 1, Seniors 0, Geo Rennbeck having weaved his way around the Maroon's defence and scored. The second period was different, Jack Mollenaar and Ken Cugnon succeeding for three goals for the Seniors and putting their team right into the running for the Cup, only one goal down. A nip and tuck third period ensued, Cooper taking a pass and getting the Elks' second goal which proved to be the last of the game.

Makes Museum Thief-Proof

Super Burglar Alarm System Protects Metropolitan In New York

Installation of a super burglar alarm system in the New York Metropolitan Museum of Arts with its priceless treasures has made this famous institution thief-proof, it is believed by the museum trustees and the engineers who perfected the system.

Not only is the museum protected against actual theft, but any attempt to molest the treasured objects would result automatically in imprisoning the vandal within the walls of the museum.

According to authentic information, the system recently installed works like the nervous system of a human body. The instant anyone disturbs any of the protected objects, the electric "nerves" records in the "brain centre" the exact point of trouble and also automatically rounds the alarm.

This alarm is given through the medium of a galvanometer on the switchboard in the "watch room," where attendants are on a 24-hour day vigil The galvanometer tells exactly where the attempted theft is taking place

This is followed simultaneously by the signals of an automatic system which moved secretly in various wings throughout the museum. They in turn notify a trained staff of about 30 guards kept on duty at strategic points.

Unknown History Makers

Hundreds Whose Words Live, Have Always Been Nameless

There are hundreds of people whose names we do not know, though their words have passed into history.

There is the nameless, well-dressed woman, who, meeting Wordsworth, walking by Loch Katrine one fine evening, observed, "What, you are stepping westward?" She gave the poet the idea for his poem, "Stepping Westward."

There is the watchman who passed under Pepy's window crying, "Past six of the clock, and a cold, frosty morning!"

There is the man who first invented the Bruton Knife, whose petition as he put out to sea, "Oh, God, do Thou help and guard me; the sea is so wide and my boat is so small."

And who was the poor dame who, when questioned by a kindly bishop, held up her dry crust and said, "I have all this, and faith!"

And there are, of course, all the unknown whose words are sung and said around the world and will not pass away.

Sensible People Do Not Envy Millionaires

Money Is Useful But No One Needs Excessive Amount

Statistics show that the United States has 4000 millionaires, or one man in the billion-dollar class. It is not likely that any other country in the world can show so many millionaires, and it is just as well that such should be the case. No man living and in his right mind needs a million dollars. That may strike some readers as an exaggerated statement, but it is not. He can't take a copper of it with him when he is through with this world, and the chance are that he will leave vast sums to his children, and money secured in that way has done more to spoil young folks than poverty ever did.

HE WENT ABOUT DOING GOOD

Golden Text: "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon His shoulder: and His name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace." —Isaiah 9:6.

Devotional Reading: John 10:7-16.

A Summary Of Christ's Ministry

Perhaps this, on the whole is the best summary of our Lord's earthly ministry: He went about doing good (Acts 10:38). In the three years of His public ministry He was so busy that He had no time to take His food.

Some great artists have almost flood in our imagination the type of consistence which we now associate with Jesus; the central face of the Last Supper at Milan, for example, or Hoffman's Jesus in the hundred guilder print, "Healing the Sick," or Hoffman's Jesus in the Temple, that exquisite face. But we t've no assurance that any of these pictures all artists ev ir giving to Him a physical appearance answering to their ideals. His countenance must have been the mirror of His mind and soul. For, as a man of genius said, almost two hundred years ago, "When Christ only thinly[illegible] those who see Him look Him to be a man of divinity" "Thou art not yet fifty" (John 8.57)—so much had life taken out of Him.

No great work is ever done easily. There are places where, we think, He could do no work because of something wanting in the circumstances, something wanting in the hearts of the people, wanting in the heart of the man for whom He was ready to do the great work. We read again and again that Jesus was grieved and in His spirit as though He were wrestling with some condition force which was pitting itself against His power. Nothing was done easily that Jesus did. It were Him out, so that He might be returned to a mountain apart, there to lay open His soul to the energy of God.

He went about doing good. He looked about to do see where good might be done. We sometimes excuse ourselves because we think we have not the gifts that is necessary or necessary in the little place where we are.

He went about doing good by His life, by His hands, by His heart. The biggest thing a man can do for his age or for the world is himself to be a good man and to give himself away for some great thought or dream of faith. Illustrated from an Address by John A. Hutton.

He went about, they said,
In doing good;
His challenged men to follow,
If they would.

He knew no creed, nor system,
But to live
A life of loving service,
And to give.

To give of cheer and faith,
Was his appeal;
To help the weak inspire;
The hurt to heal.

Give thou of life and love:
Meet thou thy need;
Bid them that love and serve,
To join the quest.

Some Interesting Exhibits

Remarkable Things Shown By Royal Society In London

One of the most interesting of the exhibits arranged by the Royal Society for its conversaziones, in London, clerty for its conversaziones in London, recently, was the Fahrey-Perot Interferometer, lent by the National Physical Laboratory. By means of this apparatus measurements up to a millionth part of an inch can be obtained with accuracy, says an overseer paper.

Another instrument shown was the Brown arithmometer, named after its inventor, Mr. S. G. Brown. The principal feature of this invention is a gyroscope fitted with a mirror, which, turning at the rate of six thousand revolutions a minute, remains in a horizontal position irrespective of any external movement. The instrument is especially intended for taking altitudes of the sun at sea by wireless, so far obtaining the true horizontal when the weather conditions prevent the natural horizon being visible.

A most ambitious was the musicbrosse, an instrument with a wide range of use in decorative trades. A design, in outline, is first projected on a screen of any desired size, by means of colored lenses in the apparatus each separate element in the pattern can be colored, and the design is then retired to a mountain apart, there to lay open His soul to the energy of God.

He went about doing good. He looked about to do see where good might be done. We sometimes excuse ourselves because we think we have not the gifts that is necessary or necessary in the little place where we are.

When Food Sours

Almost two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been overstimulated. There is enough acid. The thing to prevent it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times as much acid.

The best way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a teaspoon does it. It is pleasant, efficient, and harmless. It has remained the standard and with physicians in the 50 years since its introduction.

It is the quick method. Running cases almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use anything else when you know.

"There's nothing to be scared of," declared Grandma, "unless it's Sarah Bennett. Like as not she'll discover something about you. She says it's the Wickfield girls are all "provincial." Jim told me so himself. I looked in the dictionary and it says provincial means countrified and rude. Well! If Charmian looks countrified I wish you'd tell me so; but she's not rude. Her manners come from the Davines, and they all had a way with 'em even when they were poorer than Job's turkey. Some day I'll tell Sarah Bennett what I think of her."

"I'll do it for you if ever I have the chance," replied the doctor with heart-warming sympathy. "And you needn't worry about your grandchild. I assure you there's nothing provincial in her make-up."

"Well, you ought to know," responded Grandma, "coming from a big place like Boston. I guess my girl's all right now."

Charmian had been an amused spectator of the scene, but now she interrupted with a laugh.

"Come, Grandma, you've talked me over thoroughly enough; and we must start along if I'm to be any use to Mrs. Merry. Your supper's all laid out on the kitchen table; and don't you dare to wash a single dish. Just leave them in the sink. I sh'n't be late; and if you need anything you can call up Doctor Howe, and he'll let me know."

"I sim't need anything," replied the old lady promptly. "You run along and have a real good time. And don't you be too an ppy to come home. I'll be all right."

"Scrap!" echoed J m, puzzled, as he led down his motor car. "What are you talking about? What's been boiled under Miss Lizzie's hide? You needn't be so reserved not to be interested. Tighty. You'd better it. I guess I know a country bumpkin when I see one, even if I haven't been out of Wickfield for five years. Charmian's a right move stylish, and stands up straight. Them three Indian plates in the mail order catchpaper from Chicago; and she never did a rude thing in her life. She's Luther Davis all over when it comes to manners. Why, she even thanks Tommy Goosney when he takes away the gurgle. Them two coodness knows is not a favor. He and that Eldridge boy had as awful fight one Saturday to see who should get it."

CHAPTER VII.

"Well," exclaimed Grandma, as her self-invited guest drew up a chair and proceeded to pour tea, "that is a real cosy! It's not often that I have company when Charmian's away. She'll be surprised enough when I tell her I had the handsomest young man in town to supper with me. Give me a drop more cream, Jimmy. This isn't so hot I can't drink it. Maybe you'd have had a better supper at the church; but you can commune yourself remembering that it's a kind deed to keep an old woman company."

"I didn't hint for that invitation in order to do any k'nd deed," replied Jim zealously, "but because I wanted to stay. You don't know how I enjoy Grandma. Some ways you seem younger than Charmian.

The big surprise Grandma's face softened.

"Sometimes I think I feel younger," she admitted, "when Charmian takes so much responsibility on her shoulders.

has had, ever since she was born. One thing, she never has to mind and there are times when she gets discouraged though she doesn't say so. The Davines never were fuths to whine about things They take life as it comes and make the best of it. I've sometimes thought that if Charmian only had the chance she'd be a poet, like her grandfather. When she was a little girl she wrote some real pretty verses about the first robin. But she's never had time to give to it as her grandpa had."

Jim looked up at an ugly crack in the ceiling, it struck this practical young man that if Grandpa Davis had given more time to the farm and less to poetry, his granddaughter wouldn't have to worry about finances. Still trying to voice this thought he took a mouthful of bread and butter that made speech impossible. Grandma, misunderstanding, turned the conversation.

There were those summer folks from over Bluff Wickfield way? Do you suppose they're going to the church? Last time they came the woman gave two dollars for a loaf of Emmy's spice cake, though all they were asking for it was one-fifty. She wouldn't take the change; and she bought all Charmian's fudge and your mother's ginger cookies. It's a wonder her face wasn't green with all that sweet stuff in the house at once. Is it true that they're going to set off Wickfield every summer after supper? Mrs. Merry told us they were thinking of it. I'd admire to see 'em, but we're seen all the fireworks I'd like to see."

What's In An Initial

Employment Bureau Official At Montreal Has Answer Experience

What is the psychological difference between the people whose surnames begin with an initial in the first half of the alphabet and those whose initials come in the second half? This is a question on indigestion. "And talk of hats! Why, Charmian could trim one herself that would make that Eldridge girl's hat look like a fright. Mrs. Merry, Your supper's all laid out Sarah Bennett's nat'ly such a fuss about, look like the tail feathers to a rooster; but I'll bet Sarah now. She's got on her brown taffeta, and if she helps in the kitchen like she usually does, it's a dead sure get spotted. I declare, I almost hope she spoils it!"

"I'm afraid I'm getting real spiteful in my old age," she murmured. "I ought to be ashamed; but for Sarah Bennett to put on airs to a Davis, is a drop mow'n I can swallow. There was Emmy Bascomb and the twins. I wish Emmy'd stop and let me mend her new shirtwaist but I suppose she's got to get back. She's worrying, and so are the children. They look terribly cute in their new dresses, one pink—one blue, same as usual.

"Dear me! I don't see how anybody stands living on a side street where there's not much passing. I wish I'd had Charmian put my supper on a tray in here. I don't want to miss anything while I'm eating. If only somebody'd stop in on an errand or to get 'em to fix it for me. There goes Cass Garfield, but he's reading his paper and won't look up. Here comes an auto. I do b'lieve it's Jimmy Bennett, and—"

Grandma rapped sha..ply on the window, and Jim, who was looking at the house almost against his will, now her summons and stepped his car She beckoned, and he came in

"You want something, Grandma? I saw you wave."

"And it's lucky for me you did," an.wered the old lady. "I want you should bring my supper in from the kitchen. Charmian left it all set out on the table, but I don't want to miss the passing just as every one's going to the church. You take that big tin tray in the battery, and put everything on it. The tea's in the teapot, and all you've got to do is to pour some hot water from the kettle. I don't mind eating a little early, and maybe no one else would be coming by that I could ask."

"You want it on the card table, Grandma?" asked Jim Lillily. "I'll move it over before I get the tray."

"That's right, sonny. It's plain to see you're handy about the house. That's goes Linda Baker, hurrying as usual. For a wonder she hasn't got on her apron, but she's carrying it in her hand. It's real fun setting here by the window, Jimmy. Sort of like having a front seat at the opera."

Jim steadied the little table, and peered for a moment into the quiet street.

"Can't say that I see any—well, similarity," he remarked. "I guess there's no one, Grandma. She's forever seeing things that I can't see at all.

Proves Ability To Drive Car

But Parts Authorities Reluctant To Grant License To Armless Man

The authorities of Paris have before them an unusual request — that a man both of whose forearms have been amputated as a result of wounds received in the war may be granted his license to drive a motor car.

M. Lautus, a school teacher in the centre of France, has brought his skill in using his artificial forearms to such a pitch that, having made certain adaptations to his car, he is perfectly able to drive it. Recently he presented himself for his test before the Paris authorities, and the examiner had to admit that he was a perfectly capable driver.

Nevertheless, he refused to grant a driving license without reference to higher officials. Friends having taken up his case, M. Lautus had proved his capacity, not only of driving along the open roads, but in the crowded streets of the French capital. Having shown what he could do in this way, he then took off his coat, jacked his car up, and changed the wheel as easily as any able-bodied man.

The police apparently regarded his case sympathetically, but, nevertheless demanded further tests.

Present-Day Insecurity

The Merchant, the Farmer and the Laborer All Affected By Present Conditions

The most marked feature of present civilization is insecurity. This affects the small merchant and the farmer as well as the day laborer Fear of loss of employment, of economic damage, of old age, for oneself and one's family, is so general that we all live in a state of present insecurity. The orgy of the recent stock market is a natural product of a blind hope of finding some way of escape from a hemmed-in life. Where all is uncertain, why not take a chance of turning uncertainty into gain? And, I dwell upon the element of insecurity in modern life, it is because, in spite of all that is written about unemployment, its emotional and mental effect does not seem to me to have begun to have the attention it deserves. It is hopeless to look for mental stability and integration when the economic base of life are unsettled.—John Dewey.

Little Helps For This Week

"By works a man is justified, and not by fa th only."—James ii 24.

No answer comes to those that pray
And idly stand,
And wait for stones to roll away
At God's command.
He will not break the binding cords
Upon us laid,
If we depend on pleading words,
And will not aid.

But when human duties are prayer and work,—prayer for every needed blessing, and work to realize it,—prayer for deeds God must do for us, and work, as though we must do it ourselves. These are the two poles of the great prinz e battery.
—Roswell Dwight Hitchcock.

A SIMPLE TREATMENT FOR CHILDREN'S COLDS

Cold in the head is very common at this time of the year, especially in the very young. Neglect of a cold is liable to lead to serious consequence. To relieve all congestion of the throat is the first step in treating a cold, whether in infants or grown-ups. For the very young, Baby's Own Tablets are the ideal means of doing this. Containing no narcotics or other harmful drugs they soothe the child's restfulness, relieve its suffering and cause refreshing sleep.

Baby's Own Tablets are without an equal for relieving indigestion, constipation and colic. They clear away chronic bronk up colds and simple fevers, promote healthy-giving sleep and make the dreaded teething period easy. The Tablets are the one medicine that a mother can give her little ones with perfect safety as they are guaranteed to be free from injurious drugs. They are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Needless Pain!

Some folks take pain for granted.
They let a cold "run its course."
They wait for their headaches to "wear off."
If suffering from neuralgia or neuritis, they rely on feeling better in the morning.
Meantime, they suffer unnecessary pain. Unnecessary, because there is an antidote. Aspirin tablets always offer immediate relief from various aches and pains we once had to endure. If pain persists, consult your doctor as to its cause.
Save yourself a lot of pain and discomfort through the many proven uses of Aspirin. Aspirin is safe. Always the same. All directions with complete directions.

Still On the Increase

Figures Show Motor Traffic Taking Heavier Toll Each Year

And still the casualties due to automobile traffic go up! Figures compiled by the Travelers' Insurance Company from thirty-seven States show that approximately 31,000 people were killed in motor accidents last year — an increase of more than eleven per cent over the previous year.

"On the basis of last year's total number of motor vehicle deaths," says a bulletin issued by the company, "at least two persons out of each 10 000 of the country's population were killed by motor vehicles. Two hundred persons out of each 10,000 of a ration of 1 out of each 50 persons were injured. 60 of the 200 being fatal seriously."

High School Notes

At an executive meeting last Thursday we decided to hold a Lit meeting on Friday, April 11. Each grade is to put on two items (and perhaps the Glee Club will help). It will take the form of a competition and we expect it to be unusually good.

The girls say they would play basket ball is they had some standards. Such a little thing to stop us too!

We expect to put on a tea shortly after Easter. Watch for further notice.

We are wondering if Frank and Henry will find any new blood for tailored coats and the latest style of socks at the Fashion Show.

Easter holidays are approaching but so far it only means

BOY SCOUT NOTES

The Troop met in the Armories on Tuesday night, April 1st, the attendance being up in the usual standard We commend three new recruits into the Troop. Competition is very keen for the Patrol Proficiency cup which is now up for competition, and but a few marks separate the first and last patrols in the standing. We had some physical drill but it must be admitted that some of the Scouts proved that there is room for improvement in this line. Critical drill by the Scouts was very well done. The Junior First Aid team are making very good progress. The next meeting of the Troop will be on Sunday, April 6th when the Troop will take part in a hike under the Assistant Scoutmasters.

The next regular weekly meeting of the Troop will be on Monday April 7th instead of Tuesday, at the Armories. The co-operation of the parents is asked in helping us to have 100 p.c attendance at our meetings, and we will be pleased to welcome any new boys to the Troop.

Back To Civilization

Deprived Of Its Comforts People Similar Here Wondered In Ice

"The men of the Byrd Antarctic expedition scattered all over Dunedin," writes Russell Owen, staff correspondent of the New York Times "revelling in the shops, walking the hard pavements with joy at the anonymous crowds, eating enormous meals and generally having the time of their lives. It seems too good to be true to be ashore again and dodging automobiles." And lolling in barber's chairs, no doubt, and luxuriating in hot baths, and commanding hell bent to do itty-ni errands, and declining all drinks made with ice, and watching the sun go down at night It is somewhat pathetic indeed to read of the delight which can be caused by these prosaic things that have become so commonplace to the rest of us; somewhat cheering too, for it serves as a reminder that we should not take our civilized on too much for granted. Even at Thanksgiving time, we are somewhat mechanical with our gratitude for the blessings we have fallen heir to; but it is some turn of events were to deprive us of these blessings, as the men of the Byrd expedition have been deprived of them for the last year, we should realize pretty quickly that even food clothing and water are things that have been wrested from the earth by painful labor and that it is only mechanical ingenuity that put them. The main objects of the expedition, of course, have already been attained; the game has been won, the goal posts torn up, and witness merely the return of the players to its own home campaign. So far as many of us are concerned this return trip may provide more food for thought than the scientific itself.

Saskatchewan Will Fight Cancer Scourge

Legislation Provides For Commission To Administer Act And For Diagnostic Clinics

Saskatchewan, first of Canadian provinces, has taken organized steps to tackle the grievous menace of cancer on a province wide scale.

The necessary machinery is provided in a Bill to establish a provincial Cancer Commission in the province, which has just been introduced in the Saskatchewan Legislature. In this advanced legislation, Hon. P. D. Munroe, M.C., Minister of Public Health in the Dominion Government, has followed the lead already presented by Saskatchewan in matters pertaining to the public health. Incidentally, he has, thus early in his ministerial career, established himself of a permanent niche in Canada's hall of fame.

In piloting his first major legislation through the House, Hon. Mr. Munroe emphasized the necessity of co-ordinating efforts and providing for the means to combat this scourge. Backing his arguments with a wealth of statistical information, the Minister emphasized the fact that a comprehensive campaign of propaganda must provide three main features: The education of the people, the need for diagnosis and the means for treatment. All these factors are provided for in the new Act.

Stressing the importance of the educational factor, Hon. Dr. Munroe declared that "the one great handicap under which we have been labouring at the present time is the delay on the part of the patient in consulting them." Early diagnosis and treatment were responsible for improvements of a successful campaign, he added.

Provision is made in the Act for the establishment of consultative diagnostic clinics at the hospitals wherein facilities will be provided for early diagnosis of the disease. Then in order to overcome the prohibitive cost of radium required for treatment, statistics relative to the efficacy of which were cited, the Act provides for the purchase of a supply of radium by the Government.

In discussing this phase of the matter, Dr. Munroe stated that "radium is used in the treatment of cancer in two ways. In the great majority of cases the radium salt is used in various types and forms of containers and applied to the affected area, a field for its use in the form of gas. The gas is collected from a quantity of the radium salt and is used in the very minute tubes of gold, called 'seeds'. A recognized therapeutic agent also is required to generate and purify this gas and, as well, to collect it and regulate the dosage in each seed.

The Minister then stated that it was proposed to establish an emanation plant of this nature at the University of Saskatchewan, whenever there was assurance of a sufficient demand for the gold seeds to keep the plant in operation Dr. Munroe stated in this connection that medical men in Neighboring provinces and in Alberta already had informed him they would welcome the opportunity of procuring these seeds. The Act also makes provision for the regulation of the sale of radium emanations and derivatives.

Opening of the Act will be assented to a permanent Cancer Commission.

One and one-half premises of radium will be procured according to present informations, at a cost of $105,000 to $110,000. It is not, however, the intention that the diagnosis and treatment of cancer will be a free service. Such assistance however was given by the Min ster that the charge would be reasonable and that provision would be made so that "everyone may receive the necessary service able to pay for it or not."

B.C. Fishing Regulations

Complete revision of the fishery regulations for British Columbia has been effected as the result of the work of the Dominion Government, and a number of important changes in the regulations have been promulgated, it says a statement issued by the fisheries branch. Under the constitution the right of making fisheries regulations for all the provinces rests with the Dominion authorities.

Would Save Millions

Many Simple Forms Of Waste Could Be Stopped

How much water is wasted by a dripping tap? An answer was provided when New York decided to charge a flat rate of two dollars for every tap found leaking. In two years 60,000 million gallons of water were saved. It seems Madison to every about the amount of steam wasted when a locomotive blows a whistle. But Dr. Peter of Indiana University, has calculated that 2 634,626 tons of coal are consumed annually in generating steam to blow that thing of the locomotive whistles, and that if the whistles were moved slightly forward and adapted to a single high-pitched note, more than a million pounds a year could be saved. But the loss in steam and compressed air involved in throwing into the dustbin cinders that would still give a lot of heat. It is estimated that a third of the cinders thrown away retain from fifty to seventy per cent. of their heating value.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE LAW OF THE CROSS

Golden Text: "If any man would come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow Me."—Matthew 16.24.

Lesson: Matthew 16.13 to 17.27.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 58 7-12.

Explanations and Comments

The Law Of the Cross, verse 21.—Before this Peter had referred to the approaching death (Matthew 9.15; John 2.19-22; 3.14), but from now on He spoke plainly about it, declaring that He must go to Jerusalem, there to be ill-treated by the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be put to death. "He must die because He would save. The great "must" which ruled His life was a cable of two strands—obedience to the Father, and love of men. Those baked Him to the cross, and fastened Him there. Then verse crown an Indomitable Will.

Kitscoty Girl Writes Winning Essay

MOUTH HEALTH CAMPAIGN

The committee of committees, consisting of Mrs. J. W. G. Morrison, Mrs. C. L. Whitby, Miss Reid of the School of Agriculture, and Dr. M. J. Clarke, have completed their work in connection with the essay contest, open to all students in the Inspectorate from Grade VII up. Fifteen essays were received, and the committee gave the award to Miss Mary Serytza, Grade X, Kitscoty. A prize of $10 donated by the Canadian Dental Hygiene Council, goes with this award, and Miss Serytza has also a chance of receiving the $25 prize for the best essay in the Province. This has not yet been awarded.

The examiners spoke very highly of the almost uniform excellence of the essays, and wish to congratulate all the pupils who took in such a praiseworthy manner. Special mention is deserved of the work of Ada Violet Young, Grade X, Vermilion Centre S.D., Doris Haskell, Grade IX, Riverton S.D., and Cicely Welchman, Grade IX, Kitscoty S. D.

"MOUTH HEALTH"

Sound teeth are essential to good health, happiness and beauty. Their work is to masticate the food which we eat improperly masticated food injures the digestive organs, causing the stomach. Diseased teeth and gums may cause serious systematic diseases. They cause foul breath and many times spoil

In order to understand more thoroughly why teeth decay and how the various diseases attack them, we should study the structure of the tooth. The tooth has a hard, white protective covering known as the enamel, under this is the dentine, a softer substance. It has canals, through which passes the pulp, a soft tissue composed of blood vessels, nerves and lymphatics, which carry nutriment to the root structure. Sugar and starch collect between the teeth, into and at the gum margins, and the bacteria found in an unbrushed dry mouth grow very rapidly in this food. During their growth they give off an acid which dissolves the lime salts in the enamel and finally breaks it. It then destroys the dentine, and if the cavity is not filled, it soon reaches the pulp which becomes inflamed. Finally dies and an abscess is formed at the end of the root.

There are twenty teeth in the first or baby set, which are known as deciduous teeth. They break forth from the fourth month to the third year. They are naturally shed from the sixth to the twelfth years. They should be given special care, as care teeth one the child to swallow his food whole. This injures the digestive organs and may cause heart lesions or other diseases.

In order to keep the teeth in a healthy condition, plenty of dairy products, green vegetables and fruits should be eaten to supply mineral salts. Coarse, hard foods are necessary to exercise the teeth and should be included in the diet

Irregular teeth make clear and distinct speaking, proper mastication of food, and normal breathing quite difficult. They may be reamed by improper feeding, thumb-sucking and other various reasons. They should be straightened and sharp edges smoothed.

Until the years of age the first permanent molar appears just back of the first tooth. It should not be allowed to decay.

Dental decay and pyorrhea are the two great scourges of the human mouth. Pyorrhea involves the gums and the bone holding the teeth in place, destroying the bone and the tissues. The teeth become loose and pus forms in the pits where the bone has been lost. It is swallowed or absorbed into the tissues and acts as a slow poison. It is caused by low resistance of the gums and done due to the weakness of the mouth poor circulation in the gums and other reasons. The mouth should be kept clean, irregular teeth straightened and the gums massaged. Pyorrhea may be cured during its early stages by removing the tartare and the dead mouth around the teeth. An overfed mouth with is a long-breeding of not into perosbale in a quarter of a glass of water

Treach mouth is another disease of the mouth. It may involve a single spot on the gums or all the teeth may be affected The gums become very sore and a greyish, discover membrane inflames the affected parts. The mouth should be cleaned with a solution permanate potation and a dentist should be seen immediately

The dental X-ray is very valuable It enables the dentist to see the roots of the teeth and their conditions, so it enables the dentist to see the roots

The village of Meintzburg is having a well dug. So far the well-diggers have gone 150 feet and haven't struck water yet.

The district was greatly shocked at the sudden death of Mr. L. P. Mason on last week. He was a highly respected old timer of the Brownlow district.

DEWBERRY

A large number of people went from this village to Marvaine on Friday evening to see once more the threeact play "The Deacon Hips" played by the Dewberry Ladies' Aid dramatic society.

L. Ketchen, the rural mail carrier who died suddenly on the return trip from here to Edgerton, was buried at Dewberry cemetery on Friday last. Deceased, who was 71 years of age, came to this district some time in the latter of years. Mr. Ketchen was highly respected in the district and his sudden passing is deeply regretted.

A meeting of the committee of the Dewberry school fair association was held in the Community hall on Saturday, Mr. Wm. Anderson, chairman, presided and Mrs. Craigs, secretary, read the correspondence. Several business and a few representatives from co-operating school districts were present.

They emailed men of Dewberry leave here for the Edersdale of Section there Alberta on Tuesday morning; the train will not reach Vermilion until late brother Chapple, six feet three, and their brother-in-law, Fred Battle, also six feet three. Lloyd Chapple, the six-foot-two baby, stays at home to "mind the house."

Mr. and Mrs. Mackamitte are busy then these days, sharpening plowshares and doing this, that and the other thing in connection with plows and wagon wheels. The farmers are cleaning and treating their seed grain and of course the prophets are getting their forecasts of an early or late spring, and of meagre or bumper crops, ready for broadcasting. The seed potato, too, are rushing their vocal chords, and one of the schoolboy Chatsers rouse up the weather situation thus:

The skies are clear,
The roads are bad;
But Spring is near
And we are glad.

BROWNIE NOTES

At our last meeting, after we had had the Fairy Ring and the Fox Wee Ones, we played a hangman hunting game. Several of the Brownies have their uniforms and nearly all the others are under way. While Mrs. Lamb's Guide Tenderfoots went on with their own work the rest of the Pack went to their Hoome and Brownies learned to darn, one of the Hoome in their second class badge.

Don't forget to bring balls and skipping ropes next day.

Taking the School to the Scholar

Providing schooling for children in the isolated settlements of Northern Ontario has baffled the Ontario Department of Education. The little pupil pictured—if it had been half-round—would have stood about six feet high if brought indoors for personal use, if fifteen years of age. They come on snowshoes, this family had been a few hundred feet, the end of journey by dog team, from their home in a few months' time. So the Canadian Pacific Railway was called upon for consultation and the result is the travelling school car which has been operated during the winter months with outstanding success for the past few years.

Every child loves a train, but when that train comes especially to him and becomes his school for a time—if Northern Ontario boys and girls are typical—then the joy of learning is unbounded. Pictured here, from left to right, are Ronald English-Canadian—all races and ages from five to fifteen years of age. They come on snowshoes, this by dog team, from near and far. They get the three R's and they get personality among themselves. Difference of speech makes little difference in these and their companionship and the result is the travelling school car which has been operated during the winter months with outstanding success for the past few years.

Prairie Province Home Makers Making Greater Use of Trees and Shrubbery To Adorn Abodes

Of increasing interest are the steps taken by thousands of farm and town home makers in the Prairie Provinces of Canada to adorn the landscape around their abodes. The Dominion Experimental Station at Morden, Manitoba, whose horticultural projects are the major feature, has paid considerable attention to landscape treatment.

Nature is a reliable guide. She gives many trees, shrubs, vines and herbs of charm, and in considerable variety. These are suitable, being aborigines, and are, therefore, hardy and adaptable. Some of them, such as willows and elms, thrive in low, damp places; others, such as junipers, silverberry, buffalo-berry and aspen poplar, do well in dry, exposed situations; and most of them live and thrive on normal level prairie land, especially when they have been given a start early in bluffs or small islands, and understrowth is and about these tree patches has been cultivative throughout the changing year.

The shrubs forming the accompaniment of grass, willow, elm, ash, green ash, oak and elm areas, make a considerable list. Some have their greatest beauty in the spring, when the bloom is on them; others are prominent in summer because of their foliage or fruit. Even the winter has its attractions, for many of this description. To attain an harmonious effect, it is well to employ as much as possible material that carries out local requirements of soil, etc. Some people bemoan the fact that Lombardy poplar, with its narrow, cylindrical pole-like contour, is not generally hardy. Its unadaptability, however, may be a blessing, as such figures on the flat, open plains are certainly foreign to the scene. On the other hand, trees with spreading, horizontal branches, such as many of the haws, thorns, viburnums, native plum, and cherry, red cider, rural willows, smooth manitoba and common poplar are of suitable prairie form. Shrubs with flat, umbel-like blooms, such as pin cherry, dogwood, some good and mountain ash, are of merit in accentuating local contours and scenes.

Nature shows the trees tender material in sheltered spots. Native plums, which would be badly wrecked by winds when heavily laden with fruit, are found in ravines, along the banks of streams, and in moist woods. A family of blackberry, probably developed from seeds brought by birds from 400 or 500 miles south, are doing well at Delia, Manitoba, and include some large and beautiful trees. It should be remembered, however, that this little convey is in a favoured spot on the southern shore of Lake Manitoba. The sugar maple at Port William is also found on sheltered hillsides.

The Morden Experimental Station has, since 1924, developed some interesting views and attempted to retain a prairie style of landscape. The belief that land idea is maintained, and an attempt made to have each patch distinctive from its neighbors. The absence of color, so evident on much of the prairie landscape from October until May, is overcome by planting on copses and bays of the tree islands material with bright colored bark, and shrubs, such as Russian and thorn, buffalo-berry, red cotoneaster, Siberian crab, red elder, sumach, mountain ash and roses, which support brightly colored fruits well on towards the spring. Evergreen conifers are used generously to supply greenery and to give life to their surroundings. The result is attractive and pleasing "winter gardens."

Shrubs are used in patches rather than as individuals. Willows with vivid bark are grown in copples form, being cut back to stubs each May. This gives vigour of young growth which has the greatest intensity of early color in winter. The next willow so treated adds a purple touch and is distinctive. Herbaceous plants may be used to good effect in bays of shrubbery, and an abundant assortment of adapted perennials is available. The Siberian squill is in bloom in April and sequence is maintained until late native New England asters finish blooming in October.

The history of the development of tree planting in the Prairie Provinces is interesting. In 1901, when settlers were taking their appearance in considerable numbers, the Federal Government introduced its policy of tree planting. A nursery was started on the Indian Head, in Saskatchewan, with the object of providing farmers with the best material for their home. Soon afterwards the Canadian Pacific Railway started another nursery at Wolseley for the same purpose. Those in charge of the two nurseries then set out on the formidable task of persuading settlers how to beautify the prairie landscape. Maple, ash, caragana, poplar and willow were grown in large numbers and given away to settlers who would undertake to plant and cultivate them. Some people will be amused to learn that all farmers making application were not entitled to trees. Each response was slow, only 30 farmers being supplied during the first year or two of the experiment.

As settlement increased, however, both the Government and the Canadian Pacific Railway began to realize the full possibilities of their enterprise, and the establishment of the nurseries was followed up by an active campaign of propaganda. Demonstration cars with lecturers were sent out to preach the benefits of tree planting. Thus the movement gained impetus.

The Price Of Progress

Machine Age Has Brought Many Conveniences In Industry

Many people will be aghast at the casualty list in industry. Nearly half a million persons were killed and injured in a year, and nearly 50,000, 000 was paid in compensation in several industries. This is the price exacted by the machine in return for great advantages which it has brought. The comfort and variety of life for the average man and woman have enormously increased with the coming of the machine age. In addition, every insurance company testifies that the machine which in some instances maims and kills actually prolongs life as a general rule. The average person lives several years longer than his grandfather lived, and the "expectation of life" was never so high as today.—London Sunday Express.

A Matter Of Comparison

Exacting Positions Seems To Command Inadequate Salary

That the prime minister of Canada should be getting $10,000 a year less than the chairman of the Ontario Liquor Board, $60,000 a year less than the presidents of our railway companies, and about $40,000 less than the mayor of New York, is little short of ridiculous. Add so with our minister of finance.

The finance minister of Canada holds, without exception, the most exacting and responsible position on this half of the North American continent. Yet for this post, a post where so far as brains and integrity are concerned, the sky should be the limit, we pay $17,000 a year. Pay less than is received by many subordinates in the direction of scores of our industries.—Ottawa Journal.

An Interesting Exhibit

Model Farm At Stockholm Fair To Be Run By Electricity

The most electrified farm in existence will be one of unique attractions at the exhibition of the agricultural meeting, to be held in Stockholm, during the week June 13-24, in connection with the Stockholm Exhibition of Arts, Crafts and Home Industries, this year. In this "demonstration farm," the cows are to be milked by electricity, not only in the stables, but also in the field, the cattle will be fed by an automatic feeding apparatus, and the corn is thrashed by an electric threshing machine, of entirely new construction.

The modern storing and drying installations for cereals and straw, will be shown, and dairy machinery in the latest description and of partly new type, is to be installed. The floor of the pig-sty is electrically heated from below, the eggs are hatched in an electric incubator, which functions entirely automatically, and the light in the chicken house is switched on automatically every morning.

In the carpenter's shop and laundry room, the work will be performed by electricity.

Of great interest to farmers will be the new system for artificial irrigation, to be demonstrated in the pasture grounds of the farm, and which has recently been successfully tried out on a large estate, not far from Stockholm. It consists of a movable system of very light aluminum pipes, combined with patented rotating water sprayers, which can be easily moved from one place to another. This system, when practically tested, has served to increase the crops by about 33 per cent., and will no doubt be of considerable interest to agricultural experts expected from many countries.

Grading Helps Canadian Wools

Has Had Excellent Effect On Improving Annual Clippings

Canadian wools are now recognized both at home and in outside importing countries as possessing highly desirable qualities. Since wool grading became a general policy several years ago, buyers have learned to look to Canada for supplies of the various declared grades which they have learned to accept with confidence.

Hon. Dr. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, in his report for the past fiscal year states that a little less than three god one-half million pounds were graded that year, which puts slightly more than in the previous twelve months.

Wool grading has had a very good effect on improving the annual wool clip and its preparation for market. The fleeces as they are now received at the storages are said to be well rolled, dried, and show a very small percentage of rejects or low grade wools. During the year reviewed by the report the average range wools were stronger of fibre and lighter of shrink than usual. Domestic wools when graded, give excellent satisfaction to the Canadian and United States, and continental F. spoon buyers.

Finds it Good Business

California Oil Company Employs Elderly Men In Filling Stations

An oil company in California employs almost exclusively men above 60 to run its filling stations. The management is reported to consider the employment of older men good business and not philanthropy. It finds them "more courteous to customers, more careful in their care of the stations, with more pride in their work, and more reliable than younger men." This is a report of interest at a day when men past 50 find employment hard to get, and it may be a hint for other owners of gas stations—many of which are run by boys.

Owing To Wide Areas Few Countries Better Adapted To Benefit By Air Mail Than Canada

Good Advice To Follow

People Should Care For Teeth In Same Way They Care For Health

The dentists of the land held a convention in Chicago a few weeks ago to discuss their mutual interest and the progress of the dental science in general, and their spokesman pointed to the fact that by far the greater percentage of the population had eternal trouble with its teeth and continually neglects their care. Interesting if true, but what of it in connection with a church page sermonette?

Merely this: the man with physical disease can hardly be morally whole, happy, a pleasant, useful and efficient member of society; and the man with teeth in need of attention is among the worst of sufferers. Even one painful tooth is enough to make most of us forget every moral concept and every virtue and code of ethics ever written since the time of Cheops

A semi-annual visit with a good dentist will be of value to you; it will save you some money, it will preserve your health and thus your morals; it will make you a better citizen and a better and more useful neighbor.

Additional air mail service was inaugurated between Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton, on March 3rd, 1930, by the Canadian Post Office Department. This leaves only the territories between the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific Coast, and from Western Ontario to Winnipeg, unserved by air mail. It is anticipated that at least a portion of the latter territory will be linked up during the coming summer, and the remaining portions will be covered as soon as the necessary survey and ground-work can be carried out. This will take some time as the equipment of flying fields and the installation of lighting arrangements must be done to the last degree of thoroughness. Air mail routes already in operation in Canada extend from Moncton, New Brunswick, to Windsor, Ontario

During 1929, the spectacular and entirely successful inauguration was made of the world's Farthest North Air Mail Service extending seventeen hundred miles from Fort McMurray, near Edmonton, Alberta, down the Athabasca and Mackenzie Rivers to Aklavik, more than three hundred miles beyond the Arctic Circle. The value of such service in remote areas can readily be imagined.

To the settlements along the North Shore of the Gulf of Saint Lawrence and on the Island of Anticosti and the Magdalen group, the mail planes have flown during the present winter with such regularity, once more demonstrating the special value to Canada of this form of mail transportation.

The Canadian Air Mail service was started in December, 1927, with a total mileage of 267 and three scheduled trips per month. The mileage has since grown to nearly 6,000, and the monthly trips to over four hundred and thirty The efficiency maintained is well over ninety per cent

Few countries are better adapted to benefit by air mail services than Canada. Widely separated cities, scattered populations, and climatic-making areas difficult of access, are calling into existence more and more services of this nature

Although the rapid development of the western provinces has been such as to have seem remote the pioneer days before the "laying of steel," actually it is only fifty years since mail transportation west of Winnipeg was of a very primitive nature, in keeping with other conditions in what was then a frontier land.

In 1880 the mail service between Winnipeg and Edmonton was carried out almost once in three weeks by horse or dog team. About twenty-one days were required for the trip in each direction. The service between Winnipeg and Calgary was carried [illegible] and [illegible] by the same person, and there are still many living, who can recall those early days of fifty years ago, the new air mail service is a revelation of Canada's progress. The new schedule calls for a nine hour service between Winnipeg and Calgary, and 5½ hours from Regina to Edmonton, this latter route connecting with the Winnipeg-Calgary one. Both of these new routes, totalling in all 1,126 miles, are lighted and are the first in Canada to be so equipped.

Savings in time of delivery over the present fast train service of from six to 42 hours, depending on the destination of the mails, are promised.

Says Sweet Clover A Very Profitable Crop

A. B. Rankin of Vermilion Milks Jersey Cows and Grows Sweet Clover for Feed

FORESAW SWEET CLOVER VERY PROFITABLE CROP

And Two Years Ago Decided To Go in For Mixed Farming and Escape Losses Which Come to Grain Growers.

(From "The Cream Producer")

"It was very evident two years ago that a crisis was coming in the grain business—I cut down my acreage and turned to dairying at that time," said A. B. Rankin of Vermilion, when asked why he now had such a fine little dairy herd while so many of his neighbors were short of cows. Mr. Rankin pointed out that the whole world had gone in for power farming and that the farmers of the Vermilion district had been swept along on the current. Many of them sold their livestock and bought tractors.

Mr. Rankin showed his good judgment at that time and he cut down on his wheat acreage and purchased a few young pure-bred Jersey cows. He also sowed some of his wheat land to sweet clover and finds that he gets more return per acre from this crop than wheat will average even in good times.

He advises farmers who have made the mistake or going in for grain farming to the exclusion of all other kinds of farm industry to get a few Jersey cows. He states that in his opinion the grain market will take many years to recover from the recent era of blind over production. Grain prices may go even lower in the future but the man who is milking a few head of cows will be able to withstand the low market. He will have a cash income every month in the year which will more than keep him out of debt.

Jersey cows are the best for the average Alberta farmer, thinks Mr. Rankin. They are, according to him, very easy to feed and will do better under ordinary farm conditions. They do not give a large flow of milk at a time but it is very high testing. They do harvest the pasture and also the separating is done in half an hour. This all counts when a man has chores to do twice a day for 365 days a year. Mr. Rankin hopes no help, doing all his work himself.

Recommends Sweet Clover This Spring

There is probably going to be a shortage of pasture in many parts of the province. Mr. Rankin is no exception to this rule but he has solved the problem. He plants sweet clover each spring along with a nurse crop of green feed oats. He cuts it with the binder in the fall and puts them threw in four tons to the acre. Next year the sweet clover grows up by itself and makes a fine hay crop. During a good year two crops can be harvested and all pasture supplied for the cows. Not only is sweet clover a fine hay crop but it is a tonic for the land. The roots are very thin and strong and run down deep into the subsoil, breaking it up. Being a legume the clover also improves the land. Mr. Rankin says he harvested two crops of clover on one small field in 1927. Next year he threshed 42 bushels of wheat to the acre off this same piece. Last year when all grain crops in the Vermilion district were entire failures, Mr. Rankin says he got a crop of hay off his sweet clover land.

He advises all farmers to put in some of this seed this spring and says to sow 12 pounds to the acre along with green feed or some other nurse crop. Farmers who are not now milking some well known dairy breed and who have not high quality dairy cows are advised to get into Jerseys and make more money out of the dairy business. "I expect to get a cash return directly and indirectly of at least $1 for from my six Jersey cows this year," says Mr. Rankin.

Temperance Workers Convene Here

Want Beer Parlors Abolished — Desire Liquor Referendum

Calling upon the provincial government to submit a referendum to the people of the province for the abolition of beer parlors in hotels, clubs and canteens was the tenor of a resolution unanimously passed at a convention of temperance workers held in the United Church Monday.

The resolution follows that passed at the recent U.F.A. convention at Calgary. Another resolution regarding local prohibition by authorization of such a referendum. The convention was fairly well attended.

In the evening a public meeting was held in the United church at which addresses were given by Rev. J. W. Churchill, president of the Alberta Prohibition Association and H. H. Hall its secretary. The latter pointed out that if the sixteen million dollars spent last year in the purchase of intoxicating liquors in this province had been diverted into legitimate avenues of trade and industry the problem of unemployment would be solved and relief work eliminated. He submitted it as a business proposition.

He regarded government control as a big step toward the ultimate goal of prohibition.

As to March 15th there has been moved 952 carloads of oats and 490 of barley subject to the freight allowance by the Provincial government and the railway companies.

EARLY SPRING — IF PRESENT WEATHER LASTS

If the weather at present prevailing in this portion of Alberta doesn't get a rudge set back, we are in for an exceptionally early spring. Several farmers have done light work on their land as far several moths now there has been no frost. Cars are moving freely and roads are rapidly drying up. Some break in the weather is practically certain, and will probably take the form of a snowstorm about the middle of April

OBITUARY

LOFTON FREDERICK KETCHUM

Mr. Ketchum suddenly passed away on the 26th of March while on the way to his home in Greenfield. The cause of his death was heart failure.

Mr. Ketchum was born in Wisconsin on October 14th, 1856 and at the time of his death was consequently aged 73 years, 5 months and 12 days. Untiring in his efforts and always cheerful in spite of many difficulties and hardships, he was respected by all who knew him. He was a life-long member of the Methodist church; a kind, loving husband and father, and a God-fearing neighbour of sterling qualities.

There are left to mourn his passing his wife Martha Hilden Ketchum, and six children: Ashley Gordon of Chicago; Ruby Ketchum Wetmore of Cayuse, Alta.; Clarence Wilbur of Rose Bay, B. C. and Kenneth Elmer and Lorne Herbert of Greenfield. He is also survived by 25 grandchildren and also three brothers: Charles Hopson, Adelbert Hart, and Raymond Elmer, who reside in the old home in Wisconsin.

The funeral service was held in the Greenfield hall on Friday, 30th at 13:30 p.m. It was conducted by Rev. J. A. Rankin of Dewberry and many friends gathered from the surrounding districts to pay their last respects to one of the old timers. Interment was in the Dewberry cemetery.

By a vote of 77 to 33 the Saskatchewan Legislature endorsed the first budget presented by the government led by Premier J. T. M. Anderson. Premier Bracken of Manitoba recently condemned it as "an orgy of extravagance" which he said would add $14,000,000 to the Public Debt without providing one cent for the relief of unemployment of the Natural Resources department of the proposed Research Council

Canadian Pacific Railway Priority night broadcasts are now being sent out across the Dominion from coast to coast. Letters are being received from all parts of Canada in appreciation of the programmes and of the radio reception in all centres. Arrangements have been made with the National Broadcasting Company of the United States to place special C. P. R. programmes on the air early in April, over WJZ in thirty-3 populated sections of the United States.

Veteran of 65 years railway service and one of Canada's earliest telegraph operators, William Phillip Martin, formerly assistant superintendent of the Calgary Pacific Railway, died in Vancouver recently. He learned telegraphy from his father when a boy and became a chief despatcher at the age of 18.

Discovery of a new species of whitefish in Lake Winnipeg, Manitoba, is announced by A. Bajkov of Manitoba University. The new species has been named Coregonus Donaldsoni, in honor of Dr. W. H. Donaldson, formerly of the faculty of Manitoba University. The newly-discovered fish is common in Gull Lake It lives at a great depth during the summer, coming to the surface only in the spawning season.

Sixty head of pedigreed cattle and sheep from the Royal estates in England is the object of Prof. Brewer W. L. Carlyle's trip to the Old Country aboard S.S. Minnedosa recently. They are destined for the Prince of Wales ranch at Hick River Alberta, and are a further proof of His Royal Highness' interest in improving Canadian live stock.

"As far as the army is concerned the horse will be a museum piece within the next 20 years," said Brig.-General W. B. M. King, recent arrival on S.S. Duchess of York, after a trip during which he inspected regiments of the British Army. General King added that the mechanization of the army was taking rapid strides and, though a costly operation, would pay for itself by decreased maintenance charges within a period of five years.

New Brunswick has an estimated population of 419,000, according to the twelfth annual report of the chief medical officer of the provincial department of health tabled in the Legislature recently. An interesting detail of the report was the statement that during the past year more than 12,000 parents had been permanently immunized against diphtheria.

Surest sign of spring in Eastern Canada is the running of the sap in the maple trees. This annual harvest is now on and last year the total value of maple sugar and maple syrup produced in Canada was $6,118,554. This money accrues mostly to farmers and the province of Quebec is the leader of the industry in Canada.

Ten years ago capital investment in electric power in Canada was about $100,000,000. To-day it is over a billion dollars and total power available from present installations is nearly 4,000,000 hp. This is about one fifth of possible development.

Alberta Government Travelling Clinic

Accomplishing Much Good in Rural Areas

(BY EDNA HELLS)

Tired of the dentist's chair—that fear that hangs over most people like a pall, is being dispelled by the Alberta Government Travelling Clinic in the course of its peregrinations through the province. Few of the children who come to the clinic have visited the dentist before, and their fear is quickly overcome when attention down to work. There is not even a sound of mumbling from the dentist's corner. The children are keenly interested in his work and ask numerous questions which are painstakingly answered. Sometimes two or three other children are peeping in between the curtains to see how their playmates are getting along, or perhaps holder some venture right in.

The work of the travelling clinic is encouraging the people as well as educating them, says Dr. H. A. Gilchrist, who with Dr. Hargrave across panied the clinic last summer and did the dental work. Many of the people had not realized the importance of keeping their teeth in good shape, but when they realized that the government thought it worth while to send a clinic around to examine teeth they felt there must be some real need. They also realized that the government which was being criticized for something far away and shadowy, was giving thoughts to their needs, and they were given fresh encouragement.

Often some local condition accounts for the poor teeth. Children invariably have poor teeth where the water is bad. This is due to lack of calcium in the water. In one district visited in the irrigation country, the children had very poor teeth. People were using ditch water and water from shallow wells—a very risk procedure from many points of view, and their teeth showed the results.

The general health of the children affects the teeth as well. Many of the children are undernourished. They have not getting enough of the right kind of food milk, vegetables, whole wheat bread, and fruit. Perhaps in a few years more country people do not keep cows. Children have condensed milk but it is not as good as the pure milk, consequently their general health suffers. Dentists, as well as doctors, noise every opportunity to stress the importance of proper diet in safeguarding the children's health.

Medical and dental inspection of schools would help the health situation considerably. One dentist who in part cooperated with the ethic, has since made a practice of visit his schools in his district and examining the children's teeth free of charge. As a result many of them have had their teeth saved from decay. This dentist's practise has greatly increased The scheme worked well both ways

The people were educated, and the dentist was repaid for his effort

Evidence that the good work of the clinic goes on after it leaves a community was found in the places revisited last summer. In these districts, the dentists were able to keep up with the demands made upon their time. Since the visit of the clinic two years ago, people had been paying greater attention to their teeth, and had been seeking the nearest dentist for treatment.

There's "Gold" In The Golden Rule

A heading in a business magazine reads: "There's Gold in the Golden Rule," and the accompanying article proves it. There is no doubt that following the Golden Rule in business as well as out of it, in the long run will be more profitable than otherwise, and by this we mean materially profitable. There is a principle recognized by modern business that the business man, to be permanently successful, must contribute to the profit and welfare of those who deal with him, those from whom he buys as well as those to whom he sells. And in a measure, this is recognition of the Golden Rule.

But here comes the rub. In the Golden Rule observed, even to such a limited extent for itself or for the "gold" which may be mined from it. Is it observed because it is the right thing to do or because it is to be done for expedient, the more profitable thing." Are we to "do unto others" from pure delight in the doing, or because we wish to have them do the same to us? The real sincerity and force and advantage of the Golden Rule lie in one's attitude toward it. Its efficacy is in itself and in what prompts us to practice it.

Just to follow the Golden Rule because there is "gold in it," would be much the same as being honest because it is the "best policy." No liberalities would rule high among the things considered admirable. To follow the Golden Rule because it checks the inherently right course in our dealings with our fellows and because we wish to be and to do right, is in the highest degree commendable. But to follow it merely or chiefly because "there's gold in it"—well, not something we would care to boast about. The greatest profit which comes from living the Golden Rule cannot be set down in dollars and cents.

Throughout Western Canada our people have very largely accepted and adopted the principle of co-operation in connection with their economic relations and business. Unfortunately, it is not quite so generally accepted and acted upon in other community relations. The question, therefore, naturally arises: Has this acceptance of one of the principles found in the Golden Rule resulted from a belief that "there's gold in it," rather than from a conviction that co-operation is the best way for all concerned? Have we established and are we maintaining our great co-operative enterprises solely on a dollar and cents basis, or are a majority of our people earnestly striving to in this way, make some contribution to the welfare of others?

Many few and lofty sentiments—the sentiments of the Golden Rule—have been actively advanced by co-operation and we are convinced that a score of men and women have joined co-operative organizations, not because they felt that they themselves would reap any particular benefit, but because they felt such organizations would be the means of benefitting their fellows and the country as a whole. They are practising the Golden Rule because they believe it to be right, not because there may be some "gold" in it for themselves.

And if co-operation is to live and continue as a vital force in the life and activities of this country, if it is to grow and develop as a great compelling influence and force, not only in an economic sense but in all our community life, it must be through a general acceptance of the view, and its practice in everyday life, that selfishness is wrong and unselfishness is right; that the welfare and happiness of others is as much to be sought as theirs, that the Golden Rule is to be practiced not because there is "gold" in it for us, but because it is the only correct rule by which to measure our lives and acts; that we must be honest with each other, not because it is "the best policy" but because it is right. If we expect others to accord honesty to us in our convictions, we must likewise recognize and believe in the honesty of conviction entertained by others.

True co-operation is founded on the Golden Rule. It is its underlying principle. It is the only foundation upon which our great co-operative organizations can safely build, not because there is "gold" in it for anybody, but because it is the only safe rule for human conduct and intercourse.

Eating Habits Of Those Who Desire Sturdiness, Is Held Responsible

The modern feminine desire for slenderness according to Professor James L. Boyle, of Cornell University, has altered market standards of long standing, cut the consumption of bread by 30 per cent and considerably affected the wheat sales of the world.

Doctors nurses, schools and even beauty parlors have helped to bring about these changes, the professor said in an address recently. Meat consumption also has declined, due to our less naval vessels to learn the rudiments of British navy practice.

Apple Trees For Prairie Farms

Thirteen Varieties Of Apples Found Suitable For the West

After fifteen years of seed planting the experimental work of the Dominion Department of Agriculture has developed thirteen varieties of apple trees suited to the climatic conditions of the Prairie Provinces. Of these varieties the grower has produced "very good" and four "good." Horticultural experts point out, however, that it will take several more tree generations to evolve the ideal species. Prairie farmers can help in this work by getting seed from the Experimental Station at Morden, Man., for planting in their own gardens.

Town Planning Advantage Shown

An Attractive Country Depends Greatly Upon the Appearance Of Its Towns

The following advantages that accrue from a systematic effort at town planning are given by Mr. Stewart Young, of the Town Planning Department of the Saskatchewan Government:

The general appearance of any community is most important, and if towns and villages, for which, more agreeable surround ngs can be produced are analysed, it will be found that an attractive community depends greatly upon the appearance of its streets.

The appearance of a business street may be marred by the use of the sidewalks for storage or advertising purposes. Curb gasoline pumps do not add to the appearance of any street and should be prohibited. Electric light and telephone wires, when placed on a street tend to give it a ragged appearance. They should be placed underground in conduits or on lanes.

The appearance of the residential streets of any community reflects the mental attitude of the citizens. Every householder has a definite duty to perform in respect of tree planting on residential streets. The boulevard portion should be used.

Usually a sidewalk four and a half feet in width placed at a distance of about five feet from the curb, lines with a graded roadway about twenty-four feet in width is sufficient to accommodate all traffic on residential streets. The boulevard space between the sidewalk and the roadway, that traffic way should be planted with trees and grass about twenty feet apart.

Several advantages are to be gained by this plan of treeing. First, growing trees mature in a period of from twenty to twenty-five years, at the end of which time the slow growing tree has reached a stage where it becomes useful. Moreover, insects seldom attack more than one variety of tree in a season. The result is obvious where a street is planted entirely with one variety of trees.

Camel Travels Seem To Serve No Useful Purpose

It has been said that "actresses may happen in the best of families." Another saying is: "Why the guest loves?" Every family may not have an actress, but nearly every family has a set of guest towels. Why? Nobody uses them not even the guests.

We all know the lineup of towels on the rack near the bathtub. There are the ones for the family and those for the guests. No matter whether there are any guests or not, there must be guest towels.

The family dare not use them, and the guests, usually trained in the same manner in their own home, also refrain for no other reason than "What is good enough for the host is good enough for me."

Amendment Is Lost

House Of Commons Defeat Amendment To Bill Providing For Divorce Courts

Ottawa, Ont.—The House of Commons defeated the amendment of Thomas McMillan, Liberal member for South Huron, to the Woodsworth bill providing for divorce courts in Ontario, by twenty votes. The vote stood: for 84, against 104.

The amendment expressed regret at the spread of divorce in Canada, and advised a campaign to foster the sanctity of the family of the home in the Dominion.

After the vote on the amendment, there were calls for a vote on the main motion. Mr. Speaker Lemieux ruled that as the private members' hour had expired, it would not be possible to take this vote if any one objected. George Spotton, Conservative, North Huron, objected, so the vote was put over until another sitting.

RESEARCH WORK FOR THE BENEFIT OF AGRICULTURE

Regina.—Recommendation will be made by the Agricultural Committee of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, following a session here, that research work in Canada be extended in all the provinces of the Dominion, and that further methods be adopted by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce to bring the results of such research to the knowledge of individual farmers as far as can be done.

A second resolution was passed that "the conference suggests to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce that a national bureau of agriculture be established in the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, which bureau should be completely detached from any more recent and practical experts, whose duties it would be to survey the whole question of agricultural production, marketing, research, education, grading, standardization and so forth; and to co-ordinate all work in agriculturists and to business, findings and recommendations which because of their importance, impartial and thorough nature will command themselves as sound national procedure and will receive confidence on the part of our producers, middlemen and consumers."

In this connection the Regina conference will recommend to the Agricultural Committee of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce that the committee recommend in turn to the Dominion Government that a committee be set up to study agricultural problems in Canada, and report. The committee would be composed of the body to be men familiar with the economics of agriculture.

"What's Ahead for Agriculture in Canada?" was the question upon which the National Agricultural Committee of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce based its discussion at the opening session of a meeting at the Hotel Saskatchewan. Col. Robert McEwen, London, Ont., presided.

Representatives attending the meeting were welcomed by Col. J. H. Woods, Calgary, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce; and by George H. Barr, K.C., Regina, Saskatchewan vice-president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Hon. J. D. MacGregor, Lieutenant-governor of Manitoba, told the meeting that, in his opinion, the day of $1.75 wheat had passed, and emphasized his opinion that the farmers of the prairies must enter diversified farming. The climate and the various soils of the prairie provinces lend itself for the growing of forage crops and thus the possibilities for live stock were great.

"Pay your taxes with your stock and have the returns from your grain crop as profit," he said.

Hon. Mr. MacGregor was winner of the grand championship at the Chicago International Exhibition for the years 1912 and 1913, and is known across the continent as one of the leading men of Canada and the United States.

George H. Barr, K.C., spoke of the opportunity for service provided through the medium of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Saskatchewan Government Has Ambitious Programme For The Season

Regina, Sask.—Nearly seven millions will be spent on Saskatchewan roads this season, it was announced in the legislature by Hon. A. C. Stewart, K.C., Minister of Highways, during the course of the debate on the budget.

Mr. Stewart assured the members that there was no intention on the part of the government to revive a highways commission, or of abandoning the present department of highways. Roads of the province, their construction and maintenance, would remain as they had always done, under the direct control of the minister.

London, Eng.—Very considerable orders for British anthracite and soft coal have been obtained in Canada, said Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, lord privy seal and minister of employment, in the House of Commons. The minister was questioned by Sir Kingsley Wood, Conservative member for Newcastle-on-Tyne, on behalf of anything had been done to secure westbound cargoes for the grain boats returning from the Dominion. Sir Kingsley suggested coal as the most natural article of cargo exchange.

Mr. Thomas replied Mr. Thomas quickly, "my information is that very considerable orders for British anthracite and soft coal have been obtained in the Dominion and I am able to announce that a substantial number of tonnage has been chartered for this trade to commence with the opening of the St. Lawrence in navigation."

British Medical Association

More Funds Required To Finance Big Meeting To Be Held In Winnipeg

The committee of medical men in Winnipeg who are in charge of the arrangements for the meeting of the British Medical Association in that city next summer, have requested Manitoba members of parliament, particularly Dr. J. P. Howden, of St. Boniface, to interview the Federal Government for many financial assistance.

The meeting of the British Medical Association will be an event of historic importance. It is 24 years since the association met in Canada, the last occasion being in 1906 when the meeting took place in Toronto.

It is estimated that the cost of looking after the delegates, providing entertainment for them and suitable accommodation for their sessions, will be $60,000. It is understood here that this does not cover the expenses of the delegates in any way, shape or form. Each delegate will come from Great Britain at his own expense.

So far the Federal Government has agreed to give $30,000 to the committee. It is believed that the provincial government of Manitoba is giving $20,000. And the city of Winnipeg $10,000. This still leaves $20,000 to be found. The Canadian Medical fraternity are subscribing privately to a fund to be used for the meeting, but it is thought that in order to make the event certain of success a further Federal grant is desirable. It is possible, probably will ask for a supplementary vote of from $5,000 to $10,000.

Summer Tours

National Railways Makes Ready For the Holiday Season

As the sun gains in strength and the days begin gradually, almost imperceptibly, to grow longer, the instinctive, to put on length, thoughts of summer crop up. With many they are thoughts of golf, with others they mean the seaside, the mountains, the woods, the lakes—travel. Essential hours that relate to the invariable call of the irksome responsibility of detail to become more and more popular, according to W. Johnston, general passenger traffic manager, Canadian National Railways, who was discussing the system's plans for the coming summer.

Seven personally-conducted all-expense tours have already been arranged, he stated, and they will take in all parts of Canada.

Two will explore the Maritimes; four will cross Canada from either Montreal or Toronto, and one from Winnipeg.

The first to get under way will be the Pitman Maritime tour, which will leave Montreal on June 27th. Occupying 17 days, the Itinerary will take in Quebec, Ste. Anne de Beaupre, Montmorency Falls, as well as all the principal cities and towns of the province by the Atlantic. There will be a visit to Prince Edward Island and the Lakes to Cape Breton, a motor trip of 150 miles through the land of Evangeline, and a visit to historic Grand Pre and the famous Land of Acadia.

On July 15th and July 16th, respectively, the Adams and Pitman "Across-Canada" tours will leave Montreal, on the way to Minaki, Jasper National Park, Wainwright and Pacific Coast. The first will be for 24 days and the second 32. Western Canada will also be visited by the Mac-Brien-Smith annual tour, which is due to leave Toronto on July 9th. All the above features of the Maritimes will come before those who become members of the Adams Maritime tour, leaving Toronto on August 5th and Montreal, August 7th.

APRIL 13

THE CHILD AND THE KINGDOM

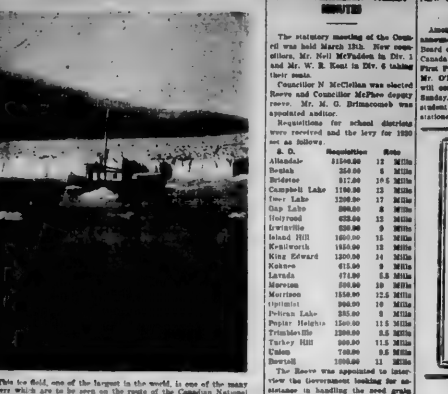
Golden Text: "Suffer the little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me; for to such belongeth the Kingdom of heaven."—Matthew 19. 14.

Lesson: Matthew 18.1-14; 19.13-15.
Devotional Reading: Psalm 24.1-6.

Explanations and Comments

The Kingdom Of Heaven Is Entered By the Childlike, 18.1-4 In answer to the disciples question, "Who then, is greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven?" Jesus called to him a little child (possibly Peter's, if they were in Peter's house at Capernaum at the time), and putting Him in the midst of the disciples said: "Except ye turn, and become as little children, ye shall in no wise enter into the Kingdom of Heaven." The Child-like Are Greatest, 18.4 In last clause is most emphatic: far from being the greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven, they were in danger of never entering it. They must turn, lay down their wrong ambition and envy, and become unpretentious, humble as little children. A child has no thought about greatness. Jesus does not say that the child-like spirit is inherently better than the spirit of the man. He does not promise that it shall possess or govern the Kingdom. He knows however that it is the condition of entering the Kingdom. The child-like spirit is better than the man, but that man shall stand at the gate of the Kingdom and refuse to step toward the Christian character. Docility, receptivity, open-mindedness, the child-like attitude, are the first steps in the Christian life—the opposite of the unteachable, satisfied, closed heart of the Pharisee, and as the latter blocks the way to the Kingdom, so the child-like spirit in Christ's followers

THE TAKU GLACIER



This ice field, one of the largest in the world, is one of the many wonders which are to be seen on the route of the Canadian National Steamships between Vancouver and Skagway, Alaska. All of the three boats in this service, the Prince George, Prince Rupert, and the new Prince Henry, pass within a stone's throw of this glacier, the height of which can be judged by the fishing smack in the foreground. The glacier is 90 miles long and only about one-quarter of its width is shown in the photograph.

DEWBERRY

Hope springs eternal in the human breast," wrote Alexander Pope. The hope that fills the farmer's breast at this season of the year is perhaps one of the highest mental pleasures of the year to the soil. The hope of a bountiful harvest beguiles the toilsomeness of the long working hours and makes the seemingly hard task a labor of love.

Practically every farmer in this district turned out on Monday with horses, tractors, plows, discs and other implements to prepare the ground for the seed drill which will, barring weather interruptions, follow next week

Mr Hayward, president of the Hayward Lumber Co of Edmonton, and Mr Cook, supervisor, visited Dewberry last Saturday and left for the metropolis in the afternoon Though the state of the roads north of the river necessitated much shovelling and many forced partings in mud and slush both gentlemen arrived here in the pink of condition and were well pleased with everything in Dewberry

Jo Fong proprietor of the Canada Cafe, turned down a most offer for the equity in his restaurant here on Saturday last when a fellow country man who drove from Vermilion made several unsuccessful attempts to purchase

Another very successful dance was held in the community hall on Friday night The Orange hall has certainly had some splendid entertainments since the opening night last January

The first meeting of the Dewberry baseball club was held on Saturday night when Bob Braithwaite was elected president by acclamation Big things are expected from the hot boys this season The latter baseball team is also well organized with Jos Armstrong as president and Winston Braithwaite secretary George Armstrong and Neil Cuthbertson were appointed joint managers. Mr J S. McKay has presented the boys with a ball and other equipment

The townsfolk are busy these days cleaning up their yards and shipping the winter accumulation of empty cans and broken delph and discarded articles of clothing to the dump pile.

Each farm contains in itself instructions for filling out.

By making your return by April 30th you gain in two ways!

First, you avoid penalties for delay.

Second, you qualify yourself for the privilege of paying in instalments.

INCOME TAX INSPECTOR WILL HELP YOU MAKE OUT YOUR RETURNS

While we were in the Pee Wee Circle at our last meeting several of us received our bobs. One Brownie came in her uniform and we were all very pleased with it. Several others are almost completed and the rest will soon be started. This was our musical day, but as Miss Lipsey, our pianist, was unable to come, Brown Owl had to be both instructor and pianist. We learned a new marching step and another new song. There were three visitors and two new Brownies.

The Stumbling Block

Whatever may be the outcome of the naval conference in session in London, and at the time of writing it is still problematical and obscure, the fact that leading statesmen of the world, engrossed, as they are, with many domestic and other problems, and carrying heavy responsibilities, have for months doggedly persevered in their efforts to find common ground upon which a reduction of armaments can be brought about, is, in itself, one of the most hopeful signs for world peace

Not many years ago such a conference would have, long ere this, broken up in an open confession of failure, with national feelings more embittered than ever, and a still more feverish renewal of warlike preparations on the part of all nations. Even if the present conference does not succeed in reaching a formal and unanimous agreement, the prevailing spirit, the intensity with which these participating have sought for a solution is encouraging and full of hope for ultimate future success.

The proceedings of the conference, which has dragged along week after week, have proven the sincerity of the statements made by the various representatives at the opening session, namely, that they and the governments they represent are keenly desirous of reaching an agreement, that they are anxious to make future wars impossible, that they believe in the letter and spirit of the Kellogg peace pact, and to that end are willing to make what they consider sacrifices to achieve a reduction in armaments and a consequent lessening of the possibilities of war and of the burden of taxation imposed upon their people.

This sincerity of purpose has been demonstrated over and over again. When any particular formula or plan was found to be unacceptable in any particular to any one nation, the others sought for amendments that would meet the objections raised. When the objections urged were found to be insurmountable, that formula or plan was discarded, and something different brought forward. Step by step, in sub-conferences innumerable, by direct negotiations between those countries which were farthest apart in their views, difficulties were gradually overcome.

Just how much has been accomplished, the world does not yet know; perhaps little of a really definite nature. But the whole effect has been beneficial. It is beyond all question that the nations now understand and appreciate each other's viewpoints and difficulties better than ever before, because it is quite evident that the negotiations have been conducted with great frankness and good will, and that all misunderstanding and ill-feeling which existed in past years. Whatever the present outcome, the way, we repeat, has been paved to ultimate success.

And what is the object to be attained—success assuming that it cannot at this time be achieved? It is that the centuries-old racial clashes, suspicions, superiority complexes, and religious differences still prevalent throughout the world, and even in this twentieth century of the Christian era. Each and every nation indignantly denies and rejects the idea that they entertain, desire or propose any policy or act of aggression against any other nation. But each and every nation is nevertheless demanding security against other nations. In a word, while professing their own honesty of purpose, they remain doubtful and suspicious of their neighbors.

Here in Canada we may find it extremely difficult to understand this attitude, and be inclined to question the sincerity of those who adopt it. But if we pause for a moment and ponder over the problem a bit, we may perhaps come to appreciate that European viewpoint somewhat better. And to do so, we, too, may learn a lesson of importance to ourselves, our communities, and our Dominion.

After all, what is the chief cause of friction, ill-will, bitterness and suspicion right here in Canada, and in our own community? Does it not arise out of differences in racial origin, different languages employed, differing forms by and through which we worship the same God? Are we not suspicious and distrustful of our neighbors simply because their racial origin differs from our own, because their mother tongue is not ours, because their religious thought and church observances differ from ours? We feel that they should conform to our ideas and ways of thought, and because we feel this, we imagine that they, in turn, are trying to impose their ways upon us.

It is the same European nightmare in a somewhat milder form. We want and demand security from aggression and move navies, we place reliance in laws, regulations, prohibitions. France would bring all Europe to her way of thinking; Germany to her way. We, in Canada, seem to demand complete nonintervention, absolute neutrality. It is the same principle. It is a principle if persisted in, and carried to its logical conclusion, results in ill-feeling, bitterness and strife, and makes peace impossible of attainment.

A broader education, a truer appreciation of the fact that all men are brothers, that a man's a man for a' that, a nearer approach to the spirit of the Christ, is an essential of world contentment and peace, just as it is essential to community betterment and national peace and progress. Demands for security will only be met by security and die when we no longer entertain suspicions and fears of those against whom we would arm in our form or another.

War Restrictions Raised

One of the last remaining relics of the Great War has been abolished by the League of Nations. This is the series of import and export restrictions which were enacted by the various nations during the war to prevent exportation of raw materials and manufactured articles necessary for them to carry on the conflict. As the years rolled by and the regular times were not repeated world trade was seriously hampered.

Retired Fleet Air Arm Officer Is Killed In Flying Accident

Australian Ace Passes Another To Rest In Normal Crashing

Captain Charles Kingsford D. Smith, the Australian ace who flew from the United States to Australia in 1928, has just performed one of the most thrilling exploits of his career.

He is now the director of an air line. Recently when one of the company's triple-engined machines made a forced landing in a forest clearing near Benalla, Northern New South Wales, it seemed that the plane could be termed only by being dismantled.

Smith went to the scene, repaired the damaged under-carriage, had the plane's tail to a tree and set his engines going full speed. When the machine lifted from the ground the farmer cut the rope and the plane flashed away like a rocket.

Then it was the straining plane, bucking like a broncho, could barely rise above the towering forest trees.

Smith circled the trees, but when from underneath the fuselage and the machine trembled like a wounded bird, but it kept up and Smith got it safely to the airdrome.

The Soldiers Were Right

Mons Angels Were Motion Pictures Thrown on Sky, Says German Officer

The Angels of Mons really existed, but they were motion pictures thrown upon the screen of foggy, white cloud-banks in Flanders, by cinematographic projecting machines mounted in German airplanes which hovered above the British lines.

This is the rational, though startling explanation offered by Colonel Friedrich Hermenwith, formerly of the Imperial German Intelligence Service in a matter that has been the object of considerable research and puzzling during the past sixteen years.

Some of the most eminent psychologists in Europe had settled the question as one of mass-hypnotism and hallucination while admitting that the visions had been as real and solid to the soldiers as their own rifles and bayonets.

British Tommies in the historic Mons retreat of Aug. 24, 1914, reported the appearance of Angels the size of men, who seemed to form the rear-guard of the harassed army. Contemptibles Superstition and wartime propaganda quickly seized upon these reports and interpreted the visions as divine intervention.

The Colonel admits that the German mancuvred in this respect, for the primary object of the motion pictures had been to create a superstitious terror in the enemy's ranks, which was calculated to produce a panic and a refusal on the part of the Allied soldiers to fight upon the enemy which by all appearances enjoyed special supernatural protection.

"What we had not figured on was that the English should turn the illusion to their own benefit. This was a magnificent but not counter-propaganda, for none of the English must have been fully aware of the mechanism of our trick. Their method of interpreting our angels as protectors of their own troops turned the scales completely upon us. Had the British command considered that it was simply issuing an army order unmasking our trickery it would not have been held so effective.

Colonel Hermenwith, however explains that the Germans were more successful with their cloud motion pictures on the Russ an front in 1915, when the Czar's army was sweeping forward through the Carpathians and threatened to engulf Austria. Instead of Angels, the German phantoms resembled pictures of the Virgin and Child.

The Virgin was shown with uplifted hand, as if endeavoring to stop the murderous Russian night attacks As had been the case in Flanders,the German planes carrying the magic-lanterns with enormously powerful Zeiss lenses flew above the enemy lines. A dense snowbank in the air above the German Army was used as a screen The airplanes themselves were unseen in the night, and the prearranged uninterrupted drumfire in the trenches prevented the Russians from hearing the whir of the motors

The picture was allowed to appear only the fraction of a minute from then on another part of the front The effect in the Russian ranks nearly composed of primitive and superstitious peasants was overwhelming Entire regiments who had beheld the vision fell upon their knees and sang away their rifles Colonel Hermenwith says If a panic did not seize the entire Russian army it was because atmospheric conditions interrupted flying

With the French in Picardy and the Champagne region, the Germans made another miscalculation, however. Instead of taking the figure of a woman that we three upon the clouds one night as that of the Virgin or a saint performing the same for French propaganda re-gained Joan of Arc he was There interpretation was that Joan was in the lead and the trick of the upturned hand which we had thought so clever, came near bringing our joining The French thought that Joan of Arc had beckoned them to come along and finish the Boche right then and there," the Colonel explained.

"My son is very diligent, and the image of his father! Only yesterday he snatched a pocketbook from his grandfather. —Gutierrez, Madrid.

W. N. U. 1828

The German aviators also could only project their pictures for a brief moment, just when their machines were at the correct angle from the cloud banks. A moment too early or too late and the picture was blurred or distorted.

The psychologists who advanced the geographical theme of large masses of men having become hypnotised simultaneously were correct in one thing, they admitted that the vision had been real and solid to the soldiers. The testimony of the large number of troops who talked seriously about the vision, they had seen could not be doubted, although there was a great deal of incredulous scoffing and jeering on the subject in France afterward.

The soldiers were right after all.

Learned From Experience

Orchestra Leader Taken In By Boston Taxi Driver

Phil Spitalny, Pennsylvania Grill Orchestra leader, was playing at a Boston theatre some time ago, and after finishing up with his band appearances one Saturday night, hurried from the theatre to catch a train for Manhattan. He had only a few minutes to spare when he reached Back Bay station, and to make sure of things the was entirely unfamiliar with Boston, he asked the station starter if he was in the right place, and in time for his train. The station master shook his head and told Spitalny that he couldn't be more wrong if he had tried "You just picked out the wrong station, that's all" said the attendant. "You want the Huntingdon station; if you hurry you can get there in time for your train." Spitalny lost no time. He signaled a taxi, ordered the driver to rush him to Huntingdon station, adding that there wasn't a fraction of a second to spare. The cab driver just laughed, but took the orchestra leader on a wild trip through a dozen side streets, nearly turning over a couple of times Finally, they landed at Huntingdon station. Spitalny paid the fare and just caught his train. As the train was pulling out of the station he looked out of the window, nearly collapsing in his seat. The two stations were right next to each other

His Real Reason

Man Walked Forty Miles To Escape Taking Job

A man who lives in a little town not far from Springdale Ont. recently walked from there to Palmer a distance of about forty miles His reason for not riding he stated was that he had gone there in an automobile and a trotley car and on a bicycle, and that he wanted to see how long it would take him to walk it.

But the real reason, it later developed, was that the man, who is more or less inclined to shirk work, believed that he might have a job offered him if he remained at home

He arrived in Palmer in eight hours, and by the time he returned home again the job had been filled.

Bonding Early Chicks

Early Hatched Chicks Require Comfortable Quarters and Artificial Heat.

Raising pullets to start laying early in the winter is one ideal the poultryman has always with him. The most effective way of doing this is through the early hatched chicks, and not the least important angle of the problem is the provision of comfortable quarters and artificial heating.

At the Kapuskasing Experimental Farm of the Canadian Department of Agriculture, it is found that it takes on an average of 15.5 pounds of coal per day to operate a brooder stove suitable for use in a house ten by twelve feet in size, which would adequately care for 600 chicks until they are three or four weeks of age.

While the actual number that can be housed is around 500 chicks, best results are obtained when not more than 300 are accommodated in this space On the basis the cost of brooding during the early part of the season about $1.35 per 100 chicks.

Pasture Crops For Pigs

Thirty To Forty Per Cent. More Rapid Gains Are Shown When Pasture Crops Used

Getting pigs out on pasture as soon as possible after weaning accomplishes two things —(1) provides more sanitary conditions than usually prevail in the pens and yards, and thus reduces the possibility of disease and worm infestation; (2) allows the pigs the opportunity of securing some of the protein, minerals and vitamins which may be lacking, especially when skim-milk is not available. Experiments at the University of Alberta in recent years indicate that one may expect from 30 to 50 per cent. more rapid gains and a decrease of from 20 to 30 per cent. in the cost of making gains, when pasture crops are used as compared with dry lot feeding When there is an abundant supply of skim-milk with the dry lot feeding the difference will not be so marked.

Hid His Revenge

Young Mainwaring was refused by a woman somewhat past her prime, but still charming enough to attract him.

"Mo, Mr. Mainwaring," she said, "it is impossible. The only man I love, and ever shall love, was killed in the battle of—the battle of—"

"Of Waterloo," said Mainwaring, bitterly, as he brushed the knees of his trousers and said good-bye forever.

"Harold is awfully obstinate."
"In what way?"
"It's the hardest thing in the world to make him admit I'm right when he knows I'm wrong."

Pleasant Remedy For Fatigue

Sugar Revives Physical Energy, Says New York Doctor

The problem of how to refresh the tired business man without sending him to the Hospital Fullies has been partly solved by Dr. Donald A. Laird, director of the Colgate University psychological laboratory, who reported of a series of experiments to determine the best means of counteracting mental and physical fatigue.

Laird's recommendation is that the weary business man, when asked at tea, "how many lumps please?" shall reply:

"Three, instead of the usual two, I'm pretty tired today."

The secret of recovering mental poise and physical energy, according to Laird's experiments, is to eat more sugar. He does not recommend that everybody should carry lump sugar in his wet pocket and cheer it when ever possible, but that more sugar should be taken in tea or coffee. He pointed out that Hanna Pochne, the Notre Dame football coach, feeds sugar to his team before an important game.

For months now Laird has been working on Colgate students. He found 13 healthy undergraduates and given them each a glass of water. Six of the glasses have sugar dissolved in the water. The others then go through a series of tests They stand, with their knees together and their arms outstretched, and the sway of their bodies is measured on a machine called an ataxiograph. Laird then makes the students climb three flights of stairs and brings them back again to see how the fatigue affected them. The six students who had the sugar were 9.6 per cent. more steady; those who had had no sugar wobbled 121 per cent more than they did before.

Women As Air Travellers

Are Better Than Men Say Officials At Croydon Airport

According to officials at the London Airport, at Croydon, women are much better air travellers than men. Even when they are over the channel they do not lose their ability for small talk. Many men passengers seem stricken almost speechless by the strange feeling of being borne aloft with certainty though on a motionless ship as the air. Women do not permit the sensation to strike them speechless or incoherent. They are not a bit less for words, even high up in the sky. They are more self-possessed air travellers than men, and are often frequently step aboard the waiting air liner at Croydon with much greater confidence than do their men escorts.

"Now that you are married I suppose you have no secrets from your wife."

"Oh, I didn't before. She was my stenographer."

Largely a Riddle

Progress Of World In Future Cannot Be Foretold

Dr. R. K. Young, a vice-president of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, mentioned at the annual meeting of the Society the other day, that the sun is slowly but surely growing cooler and the earth about five thousand million years. The human mind is unable to fully comprehend such a space of time; yet if the earth is five thousand million years old, it may also be assumed that it will last five thousand million years more—and then some. For it is incredible that there ever will be a "last day" for the cosmic system; that the earth and hundreds of millions of people will be destroyed, either at once, or by a process of gradual extinction extending over a period of a million years or so

And yet, mankind only came into existence yesterday so it were. Bones have been found in what is today England, which was at one time joined to the European continent, that anthropologists say are the remains of men who lived there 300,000 years ago. And in Asia, skulls have been discovered of human beings who lived 50,000 years before them.

The Christian era began not two thousand years ago. Life, even then, was primitive. It was even primitive two or three hundred years ago. In a sense, it was primitive in Canada one hundred years before that.

In spite of the age of the earth, man made little progress until the age of steam. Since then the electric age has come, and science has produced new powers, the ultimate development of which is beyond human comprehension. All progress until then had been made within the past century.

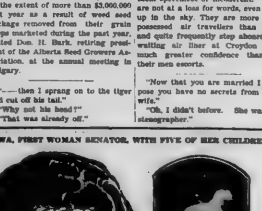
Bearing in mind what has happened since the nineteenth century began, what may not the next century bring forth. Or the next thousand years, the next million years, and so on ad infinitum.

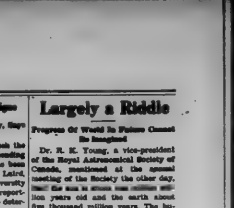
It is all a fascinating study, and we are more in the dark, with all our scientific knowledge of what the next hundred years will bring than we are about what the previous million years were like. The men of the future will look back upon the wireless-ridden world in which our modern civilization has existed with such certainty though as much unconcern as the air. Women do not permit the sensation to strike them speechless or incoherent. They are not a bit less for words, even high up in the sky. They are more self-possessed air travellers than men, and are often frequently step aboard the waiting air liner at Croydon with much greater confidence than do their men escorts.

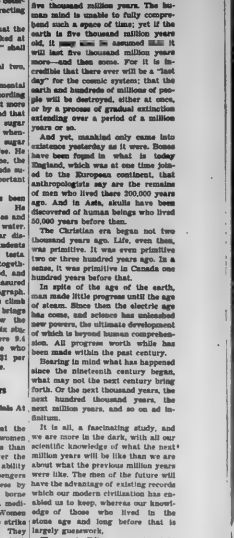
"Now that you are married I suppose you have no secrets from your wife."

"Oh, I didn't before. She was my stenographer."

"——then I sprang on to the tiger and cut off his tail."
"Why not his head?"
"That was already off."







Major James E. Hahn, M.C., D.S.O., soldier, industrialist, author, whose book "The Intelligence Service Within the Canadian Corps" will be published shortly by MacMillan's. It deals in an interesting fashion with the activities of this important department of the C.E.F. in which so many thrilling romances of war were enacted. Major Hahn is now an international figure in the radio industry, being president of one of the largest radio manufacturers in the British Empire.

Had Prejudice Against Them

Britain In Consequence Takes Low Place Among Users

Among the telephone-using nations Britain takes a low place. They began late. There was an absurd prejudice against the telephone. Even business men clung to it at first, whereas in the other countries they jumped at it as a very present aid to their affairs. Thus, whereas Denmark has a telephone installation for every eleven Danes, and Sweden one for every twelve Swedes, and Switzerland one for every seventeen Swiss, and Germany one for every twenty-two Germans, Great Britain has only one for every twenty-six Britons Of course, America tops the list with one for almost every five people, Canada coming next with one for every seven. Australia and New Zealand are not far behind.

Penalty Was Heavy

Farmers of Canada were penalized to the extent of more than $3,000,000 last year as a result of weed seed dockage removed from their grain crops marketed during the past year, stated Don. H. Bark, retiring president of the Alberta Seed Growers Association, at the annual meeting in Calgary.

Old Play is Shelved

No Company Is Playing "Uncle Tom's Cabin" This Year

"Uncle Tom's Cabin," melodrama of slavery long on tears since its first production in 1852, has been relegated to the attic of the has-been dramas, there to gather dust beside the wooden cigar store Indian, the Free Lunch and the bustle.

For the first time since 1852, when Simon Legree's blackmake whip made its initial crack at Uncle Tom's back, and Little Eva went to heaven, the Actors' Equity Association announces not a single company anywhere in the country is playing "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

But No Official Statement Is Issued For Press

While no official statement was issued at the conclusion of the meeting, it is understood Premier Mackenzie King stated that he was no more decided whether to hold an election this year or in 1931, than he was three months ago. But, at the same time, it is said the prime minister warned members they should be in a position and continue to make preparations.

The views of a number of private members were expressed; and, it is understood, that in the course of this discussion a suggestion was made that August 25 next, might possibly be the date for an election.

Menaced By Oil Gusher

Fire Hazard Threatens Lives and Property of Oklahoma

Oklahoma City, Okla.—A great gusher roared like a young volcano in the backyard of Oklahoma City, Okla., when made futile efforts to control a spout of gas and oil unleashed in the race for riches.

The gusher has driven inhabitants from its environs, deluged the section with a thick coat of petroleum, uprooted even trucks and steam pull, filling ravines with gas and threatened lives and property with a fire hazard.

A pebble, driven by the tremendous flow of gas released into the night sky, strikes the spark which would envelop the countryside in flames

Famine Takes Heavy Toll

Hundred Die Every Day In Chinese Province Of Honan

New York, N.Y.—People are dying at the rate of one hundred a day in the plains of the Honan province in China, famine stricken area of 100,000 according to a report received from Mrs. Phillip E. Dutton, at Tulsa, in North China.

Mrs. Dutton, formerly of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., estimates that by the beginning of summer two-thirds of the population will be dead. The inhabitants, she says, are tearing down their houses and selling the material to obtain money for food. In every yard is a pile of leaves which the owners are eating. When the leaves are gone they will die. Mrs. Dutton says.

Annual Meeting Of Curling Club

Officers for 1930-31 Elected

The annual meeting of the Vermilion Curling Club was held Wednesday evening in the town hall, when the officers for 1930-31 were elected, business for the past year wound up and plans for the next season discussed. The financial statement by the secretary, W. E. Fulton, showed that the standing of the Curling Club had been steadily improving for the past two years and that the curling season had ended with a larger surplus on hand than any other time in its history. The matter of curling fees for the ladies was also discussed, some members of the ladies' curling club thinking that $40 was too high. It was shown by the secretary that the cost of one sheet of ice for the season was $183.00, while fees paid by the ladies amounted to $150.00.

Officers for the ensuing year are:

Hon. President — Mayor Fuller

President — W. H. Duncan

Vice-President — S. R. P. Cooper

Sec'y-Treas. — W. R. Ryan

Executive: J. A. Morison, C. L. Whitby, J. P. McQuarrie, W. P. Badgero, F. C. Long, Rev. J. O'Sullivan, Ed Corley, J. A. M. Craig, W. C. Pallybank, Jr. Scott, E. M. Stewart and Geo. Webb.

Golfers Discuss Outlook For Season

The annual meeting of the Vermilion Golf Club was held in the town hall on Wednesday evening immediately after the curling meeting. The officers of last year were re-elected en bloc and a committee appointed to look over the east end links. The general opinion of the meeting seemed to be that the habit of dumping refuse anywhere and everywhere just east of the highway and in the immediate vicinity of the proposed links would be an insurmountable barrier towards the course materializing to any extent. It is understood that the old west end golf course is now in lease for farming purposes.

Old-Timers Hold Round-Up

The annual round-up of the Vermilion Old Timers' association was held in the Edmonton hall on Thursday evening, April 3rd. There were a good attendance of the Pioneers of the district and a grand good time was had by all. Refreshments were served and all came and many has left behind for the evening and a close comradeship prevailed

Community singing, with M. A. Bimacombe as song leader, was a feature of the evening and right here we will say that W. D. Wood has over looked a bunch of talent for his choice work.

Mrs. A. Pitchfork contributed two solos which were greatly enjoyed Mrs P. G. Pilbie was presented aged for old times sake and debated in gathering with a speech some. Mrs M. G. Brimacombe accompanied all numbers. The singing was interspersed with stories of the old days, always the feature of an Old Timers' gathering One of the hits of the evening was a speech by Harry Bissett which took the form of a song by I. A. Wilberle C. P. Riley was in good form, as was also G. E. Hayward of Edmonton, but both of these speakers came in for some witty and delightful criticism by one of the half speakers later on, to the great delight of all.

After hearing from most of the men and discussing of an excellent lunch, President James Cousmen opened up a new vein by calling on the ladies. Mrs. I. A. Wilberle was most happy in an account of the life of the pioneer women. Long before the ladies had finished, the men had come to the conclusion that the speaking could quite well have been left to them, as usual.

The fun continued till past midnight when the gathering reluctantly broke up after singing Auld Lang Syne and the National Anthem

High School Notes

The Lit meeting last Friday was doubtless the best of the year. Each room put on two items. Grade XII began the program with a scene from "Midsummer Night's Dream." It was very amusing, and chiefly because of the costumes. We did not realize that Gilbert possessed such feminine qualities or that Wilfred was so student. Following this Wilmie Gilbert from Grade XI rendered a delightful solo "Smiling Irish Eyes". Then the Grade X boys gave a comedy sketch of "Material Worries and Litigation." Art and Freddy were truly motherlike in their conversation. We feel for them! Grade IX followed with a Fashion Show of 1960. This proved a very pretty show, but the Editor hopes she will never have to carry all that cloth around. Then Clifford Gates in costume sang "Singing in the Rain" which was certainly enjoyed. The Grade XI scene from "Abraham Lincoln" was very well put on. The actors were well chosen and special praise goes to Homer Sawatzki as the negro minister. It was a difficult role and well done. The skit "Modern Romeo and Juliet Honeymoon a la Talkie" concluded the program and gave a good laugh. As we expect a public meeting we shall not give any further explanations. It was certainly the best Lit we have had yet.

We are closing on Thursday and will not re-open until April 28th.

The Problem Of Unemployment

The nations of the world, and more especially those of the white race, and of these those most highly industrialized, are confronted with a common problem which is becoming increasingly acute, namely, unemployment. resulting from a lack of general employment for hundreds of thousands of people, able, willing and competent to work, but who are unable to secure it.

The present situation is a paradox. No less competent an authority than the United States President's Committee on Economic Changes reaches the conclusion that the rise in unemployment in recent years is not so much the result of recession in industry, closed factories and general depression,—usually advanced as causes of unemployment,—as it is the direct outcome of prosperity itself.

In other words, the intensified activity which has characterized progress in the past decade has likewise intensified, and in a sense created anew, one fundamental economic problem—the problem of unemployment.

The problem of unemployment has been recognized since the war as a serious one in Great Britain, and greater publicity has been given the British situation than in other countries, largely because of the fact that in Britain, with its schemes of unemployment insurance, facilities existed for obtaining a more accurate accounting of the number out of work. It is now becoming more generally known that the percentage of unemployed to population is almost as high in many other countries, and higher in some. And the number of the enforced idle is increasing, until it is now estimated that 30,000,000 or more throughout the world are unemployed. The situation in Canada is decidedly better than it is in the United States, Great Britain, Germany, Italy, and most other countries, but unemployment is a subject of growing concern in this Dominion to all Governments, municipalities, labor organizations and business interests in general.

Of course, in a young and developing country like Canada, and particularly in view of its large area, a certain amount of unemployment is a necessary concomitant of major activities there always has been and, in all probability, always will be seasonal unemployment. That is unavoidable, and those engaged in such occupations which shut down, or lay off many, must look to the winter must. like the farmer, earn a sufficient amount in the months of activity to carry him through the slack period

But why, following one of the most active years in the industrial history of Canada, with building construction records greater than ever before known, with development works of all kinds in progress, unemployment practically unknown, business active and the peak, which was the situation during the first three-quarters of 1929, should the unemployed problem be more acute than ever in the late fall and winter months? The answer cannot be found in any one factor, but is made up of many factors.

Let us consider Western Canada alone. In 1928, with a record crop volume of low grade this country had to import over 30,000 harvesters, thus preventing large temporary employment that would otherwise be made. In 1929 it was not necessary to import any harvest help, partly because of a 30% reduction in grain yield owing to drought conditions but also largely because combined reaper-thresher machines supplied with the use of motor trucks on a large scale, eliminated the work hitherto performed by man-power.

Decreased volume of production resulted in a heavy falling off of railway freight movement, and consequent large decrease in railway employment, which was accentuated by the general lay-up in the wheat industry. All down the line business was affected adversely, and unemployment grew.

Again, take railways. Every new wittesser increased traction power of locomotives. In the United States the tractive power of locomotives per railway employee increased 11 per cent in the seven years between 1913 and 1920 but 25 per cent in the two years between 1925 and 1927. Here in Canada, the C.P.R. and C.N.R. are introducing huge locomotives of great power unthought of ten years ago. Enormous tonnage is now handled in a single train which not many years ago would have called for the operation of two or three trains. Thus the number of train crews is lessened.

These electric energy distributed all over the country, with a multitude of new machines of all kinds electrically operated, is replacing hundreds and thousands of small industries in each work was done by hand.

But, it will be said, great industries have been bu t up as a result of new inventions which now employ hundreds of thousands, as, for example, the automobile industry, radio, aviation. True but each replaces something else. Consider the automobile industry, for instance. It has replaced in the manufacture of carr ages, buggies, farm and other wagons. The making of harness is fast disappearing. The village blacksmith is almost extinct in the one hand the automobile industry provides increased freight traffic for the railways, on the other hand it takes both freight and passenger traffic away from them.

One motor truck does the work of several horse drawn wagons; one combine replaces two binders a threshing outfit, and a score or more teamsters teamsters and other helpers. A motor driven power shovel or ditch digger supersedes a small army of laborers The radio has silenced many a piano and phonograph The moving picture has closed up the theatre with its travelling shows in all but the largest cities and now the "talkies" with their elaborate musical presentations are finishing the work, as well as throwing thousands of more and women engaged in theatre and moving pictures orchestras out of work Each picture is its own orchestra.

Mass production aided by wonderful new machinery turns out products of all kinds in ever increasing volume, employing one man where formerly a score found work. That one man receives greatly increased wages and enjoys a higher standard of living, but his high wages are but a small fraction of the cost of production with cheap power, machinery, and mass product on the main factors of cost. So while he and others prosper, why should many people enjoy things formerly denied to them because of their cost, the unfortunate displaced in this onward march of progress are unemployed and in distress. With no work to be found for which by previous training and experience they are best fitted, they find all other avenues closed to them; because the same process is at work everywhere.

What is the solution? No man yet knows. It will be found, because it must be The continuance of civilization depends upon it In a word, as one writer puts it, something of the same kind of engineering efficiency which has brought about these displacements of man-power will have to be applied to the problem of finding openings for employment into where they are needed.

Situation in Wheat

Trade Trade Not Only One To Shelter From Market Fluctuations

What Canadians need to do is to quit rocking the boat. there have been storms of trouble in stocks of all kinds during the past few months. industry on this continent has suffered, and it is foolish to single out the grain trade as the cause of all our misfortunes. The quoted price of Canadian stock; today is $8,000,000,000 less than it was in July last year. Why, then, all the recriminations because, on some 320,000,000 bushels of export wheat, the price has dropped 60 or 65 cents a bushel, or only some $200,000,000 all told?—Lethbridge Herald.

What we need is a tonic of the blood and nerves at this time will do much to help us through the period when the cheeks and banishing that tired feeling that is so distressing to many people at this season of the year.

That is important for we energetic if your blood is thin and weak, or if your nerves are all on edge you cannot compete with others if you are to be full of energy and vigor, or if your appetite is poor or you are losing weight, you need to take at once steps to add to your efficiency now, as well as to save you from suffering later on. Mrs. L. Hipsman, Summerville Centre, N.B., writes:—"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have given me splendid benefit to me. A few years ago I was in a bad state of health, because I became so weak and nervous that I could scarcely do my work. I tried many homework left me completely used up. Everything seemed to worry me, and I was in a very discouraged condition. I started taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I soon found the pills helped me, and I continued their use I fully regained my health. Since then I always take a few pills in the Spring, as I find it helps me up for the hot weather, and always I find the best results. New Line To Buy Shorten Route

Sturgis Cut-Off Will Be Ready For Operation Early In May C.N.R. Stated

Construction work on the Sturgis-Hudson Bay Junction branch line of the Canadian National Railways will be finished about May 15, and the line will be turned over to the operating department on that date. An announcement to this effect was made recently by A. E. Warren, western vice-president of the company.

A very considerable saving in time and distance between southern Saskatchewan and the Hudson Bay Railway will result with the completion of this line and the opening of it for regular freight and passenger service. Between Regina, Moose Jaw and other southern points in Saskatchewan there will be a haulage of 94.6 miles over the existing route from those centers to The Pas. Intermediate points such as Melville and Yorkton will also be brought considerably nearer to The Pas and the Hudson Bay Railway.

Until the Sturgis-Hudson Bay Junction line goes into operation the route from Regina to Hudson Bay Junction is via Swan River, a distance of 629.3 miles. The distance by way of the new route would be through Melville, Yorkton, and Canora will be 336 miles.

Passenger and freight train services are now under consideration by the departments concerned but it is not expected that any enhancement on train service will be made for a few weeks.

The Sturgis-Hudson Bay Junction line was one of those included in the three-year branch line programme which was inaugurated by the Government in 1927. Although it is practically the last item on that programme to be completed, the date upon which it is to be turned over for operation is more than six months ahead of that set by the act. This was due to unstable record of the engineering forces of the Western Region of the Canadian National Railways in completing all its construction work months ahead of the limit set by parliament. The laying of rails at Churchill and the completion of the Flin Flon and Shereham Railways and the Aberdeen-Melfort branch line are other examples.

Discovery of a new refrigerant which, it is said, will bring about a revolution in refrigerating conditions, has just been announced by the division of industrial and engineering chemistry of the American Chemical Society.

The refrigerant, as yet unnamed, is composed of carbon, chlorine and fluorine and is technically known as fluoro-chloro-methanes. It is a clear liquid which boils at 18 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. A FIVE POWER NAVAL PACT HAS BEEN REACHED

London, Eng.—After many weeks of negotiation the five great navy powers of the world have reached an agreement. There will be a five-power naval limitation agreement and three powers — the United States, Great Britain and Japan — will sign certain additional clauses to which the two Latin nations decline to act at this time, feel they are able to subscribe.

There will be the two understandings, the partial agreement of the five and the complete accord of the three.

Political discussions regarding a security pact and definition of the guarantees provided by article 16 of the League of Nations covenant will be left over for Geneva and the league.

The main provisions of the proposed naval pact are:

1. A five-power agreement on the extension of the Washington capital ship holiday until 1936. This means an extension of five years.

2. A five-power agreement which would bring into force the spirit of the Washington treaty, limitations in aircraft carriers under the 10,000-ton mark. The Washington limitations on this category applied only to those over that tonnage.

3. A treaty among the five powers in the direction of the humanization of submarine warfare.

4. A treaty among the five powers covering special exempt vessels not covered by the Washington treaty.

5. A five-power treaty on methods of limitation. This covers the old problem as presented by the British for limitation by lump tonnage as against limitation by categories.

The London five-power naval pact will be signed by all the powers attending the conference.

The five-power agreement of Great Britain, the United States and Japan goes further. It limits not only the following categories, but it limits all categories of warships. It covers cruisers, in the matter of size and the limit of guns, and Great Britain differed so radically at the Geneva tri-partite conference in June, 1927.

It is understood that the following limitations of tonnage will apply:

Cruisers carrying eight-inch guns: British Empire, 146,800 tons; United States, 180,000 tons; Japan, 108,400 tons.

Six-inch gun cruisers: British Empire, 192,300 tons; United States, 143,500 tons; Japan, 108,400 tons.

Destroyers: British Empire, 150,000 tons; United States, 150,000 tons.

Submarines: Britain, the United States and Japan to have 52,700 tons each.

The only naval restriction affecting France is that in respect to the extension of the Washington battleship holiday and also that concerning aircraft carriers. France, however, never was a party to the battleship holiday and has not signed the Washington treaty.

Legislation On Resources Agreement Will Stand Until After Easter Recess

Ottawa.—Legislation to ratify natural resources agreements with the four western provinces will not be proceeded with until the first of next month.

A misunderstanding was the cause of an unlooked-for delay.

Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, took for granted that it seems that the four bills could now be proceeded with until after the Easter recess as he was not prepared to complete ratification at this time.

Drafts of the agreements have been returned by the governments of Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia.

D. B. Lawley Advocates Aid For Those in Isolated Areas

Ottawa.—Pensions for blind persons living in isolated parts of the country were advocated before the Canadian Parliament by Mr. D. B. Lawley, travelling secretary of the organization.

There are 7,000 sightless persons in Canada, he said, the majority of whom lost their sight after reaching 35 years of age. The handicap, he explained, weighed much heavier on those living in rural areas. He recommended setting up federal and provincial advisory committees to deal with the welfare of these unfortunates.

For Royal Ranch

Shipment Of Thoroughbred Stock Arrives From England

Saint John.—Seventy head of the finest thoroughbred stock arrived here from England destined to go forward by the Canadian Pacific Railway to the Prince of Wales' ranch in High River. This is the first shipment made to the ranch for four years, and great care has been taken by Professor Carlyle in his selection of the animals to secure the very finest types.

"The 40 pedigreed Shorthorn cattle, all of which have passed the extreme tuberculin test, are little the best shipment that has ever been brought to Canada in my experience," Professor Carlyle said. They represent purchases made from some of the most famous Scottish and English breeders as well as a selection of nine two-year-olds and three yearlings, heifers from the home farm at Stoke Climsland, Cornwall, which are of the Prince's own breeding.

These heifers are of certain notable Shorthorn families not at present represented on the ranch.

Included in the contingent are 30 Hampshire Down sheep, three of which were the champions at every agricultural competition in which they have appeared. These are to provide a valuable supplement to the herd on the ranch at present, which has enjoyed such success, rams having been sold and exported as far reached from Texas to the Peace River.

National Fuel Policy

Minister Brought To Its Bloom Of Comments In a Series Of Questions

Ottawa.—The question of a national fuel policy for Canada is being brought up in the House of Commons in a series of questions propounded by T. L. Church, K.C., (Toronto Northwest). Mr. Church enquired:

"1. What steps have been taken to carry out the resolution which passed the House of Commons in 1926-27 for a national coal supply for Canada, and what quantity has been mined and coked under the British flag, whether from Wales, Nova Scotia or Alberta?

"2. Has the attention of the government been called to allegations about "cut-throat labor" regarding coal for Canada from Russia made in the House of Commons, London, on April 19 by Sir Newton Moore, (Richmond)?

"3 What steps does the government propose to take regarding contracts for Russian coal coming into Canada to insure the carrying out of the terms of the aforesaid resolution for a national coal supply, and to prevent Russian coal displacing shipments of coal from Canada?

"4. Is the government aware that 29,000 tons of Russian coal have been delivered in Montreal, Montreal firm, displacing coal mined and coked under the British flag."

New Trade Relations

Germany To Cultivate New Markets With Adjoining Countries

Berlin.—Cultivating by Germany of closer commercial relations with her eastern and south-eastern neighbors, possibly a Danubian customs union, trade relations with Canada and the United States and Argentina, was urged by Dr. Julius Curtius, German minister of economics.

He mentioned that the adverse trade balance with the world was 216,600,000 marks, with the United States, 796,000,000 marks, and with Argentina, 200,000,000 marks.

"They send us their surplus agricultural produce but decline to buy from us to the same extent. Consequently, readjustment of our commercial relations with the border states is perhaps the most important task of Germany's economic policy, and this applies especially to Poland and Rumania," he said.

Might Take Canadian Lumber

Ottawa, Ont.—A party of British Columbia manufacturers, who recently visited Australia and New Zealand, have been in conference with Hon. James Malcolm, Minister of Trade and Commerce, and said a favorable attitude to Canadian products was observed and it is believed that if a revision of the Australian tariff agreement was considered, Australia might be prepared to give a preference to Canadian lumber.

Floods Threaten Manitoba Farms

Winnipeg, Man.—Rising river-levels west of Winnipeg, forced farmers to resort to dynamiting ice jams in an effort to obtain relief from threatening floods. WAR VETERANS ALLOWANCE ACT IS ENDORSED

Ottawa. — Broadly speaking, the ex-soldiers' organizations of Canada endorse the War Veterans' Allowance Act, the principle of granting to unemployable ex-service men a certain monthly allowance at the age of 60 years. Colonel L. P. La Fleche, president of the Canadian Legion, to the special parliamentary committee now considering the problems. The bill provides for considering the "burned out" veteran, who is wholly unemployable, and places the grant before he has reached 60 years of age.

What was anticipated as a contentious matter was the clause which establishes a departmental committee, consisting of the minister to control the operation of the act. The minister of pensions, Dr. J. H. King, chairman. The committee last on the departmental body the veterans would have an honorary member and also honorary members on the various provincial boards.

Col. La Fleche, speaking on behalf of the veterans declared that this new provision would be satisfactory inasmuch as it would enable the ex-service organizations to keep in touch with the decisions of the committee. He said that the veterans felt it to be unfortunate that the bill should not have any bearing on the provisions of the Pensions Act

Large Liquor Cargo Seized At Niagara By U.S. Customs Officials

Niagara Falls, Ont.—A carload of waste paper, billed from Port York, around the suspicions of United States customs officials across the Niagara River. London, England.—Great Britain's war-time first sea lord, Admiral Lord Wemyss, said recently that Great Britain's future as a maritime power was threatened by the present naval policy under the present naval policy and other policies of the government.

Making the presidential address at the institute of naval architects, Lord Wemyss pointed to the reduction of 66 per cent in the British naval estimates as compared to 1914 "concurrent with an enormously increased valuation of money."

"In this backbone of British industry and national defence," he said, "to be sacrificed in order that of our naval requirements may final with the parity not before us, Germany and Russia in 1931 may and material are intentionally lost through a policy of mistaken economy and extravagant expenditure in unprofitable channels."

YOUNG AT HEART

We know a young lady of ninety three who is living a wonderful life. Although sadly crippled by a broken hip, that has not prevented her from making herself to become aged. Her motto is with pasa along. She never has had the feeling of being quite alone. Her meals are all balanced meals—one food that was obviously unsuitable for aging arteries—nor is too large quantities. She always slept well in a well aired room. She always kept her mind at ease, refusing to worry over trifles that age the mind.

She always smiled—nay, she enjoyed a hearty laugh. Her happy, cheerful disposition was indeed a benefit to all with whom she came in contact. Last and best of all, she lived considerably and gave some of her substance to others in misfortune. She was often heard to say that one of her happiest interests in life was being a member of the Red Cross Society. She herself could not be active in the sort of work that the Society was doing, but by being in it she was able, financially, also to stimulate that line of service in others, and gained in happiness and contentment thereby.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

The local Troop took part in a hike last Sunday and had a very enjoyable afternoon. One thing we would like to know: "Who put the leaves and twigs in the coffee pot?"

The regular meeting of the Troop was held on Tuesday last in the Armories when we had a very good attendance. Scoutmaster Ivon Taylor made a presentation of the Patrol Competition Cup to the Buffaloes.

Competition is very keen for possession of the cup, and Patrol Leaders Brimacombe, Brown, Gates, and G Brimacombe are asked to be on their toes to get the best out of their respective patrols.

The funniest thing seen this week in the Scout Troop was Patrol Leader Brown transporting quite a number of the Troop "pick a back" across the river last Sunday.

DUMPING OF REFUSE ON NUISANCE GROUND ONLY SHOULD BE ENFORCED

The fact was stressed at the annual golf meeting Wednesday evening that dumping of refuse just east of town and in full view of the highway was carried on entirely during the winter months, not only providing an all most impassable barrier to the east end golf links and an eye sore to tourists both approaching and leaving the town, but close enough to the town to prove a menace to general health. This wholesale dumping is carried out on town property and only in the general direction of the ground provided for that purpose. Being on town property comes under the jurisdiction of the council and it is the humble opinion of the stand and that a strict edict be passed making it a punishable offence to dump refuse anywhere but on the nuisance ground.

Address An Intellectual Treat

Professor Adam of the University of Alberta gave a most entertaining lecture on George Bernard Shaw on Monday evening, April 14th. Unfortunately many who would have liked to be present were prevented on account of the snow storm raging with a council meeting, a lodge assembly and a banquet. However a representative audience and very appreciative indulgence found the lecture all too short and a keen feeling of disappointment was felt when Professor Adam ended his address.

Many who had previously felt that Bernard Shaw was an egotist given to expressing rather trite and unoriginal sentimentary remarks in season and out of season were delighted to find this assumption was erroneous. When we understand the sterling sincerity of the man, his depth of thought and feeling and his untiring efforts to bring about social and economic reforms we can read his works with greater sympathy and appreciation. This was the atmosphere in which Prof Adam discussed Shaw's works.

In referring to Saint Joan, Prof. Adam compared Shaw's insight into the character of Joan with that of Mark Twain, but where Shakespeare's dramatic Shaw is practical. His clean cut, piercing power of criticism was compared to that of Ivan Swift, with an Hindu touch from the Bhagavad Gita to the Doctor's Dilemma. The lecture ended with a quotation from Shaw, expressing the duty that he felt he owed to his community—an expression entirely unselfish.

Prof Adam paid great tribute to George Bernard Shaw in the statement that now that Arthur Balfour is saying that Shaw possesses the keenest powers of thinking of any living writer.

All who heard Prof Adam on Monday night hope that in the near future he will favor us from the platform.

At the close of the lecture a solo was rendered by Mr Glenville

While in Vermilion Prof Adam was the guest of Mr and Mrs W. S. Cash

Bungalow Camping in Rockies

Spring is here, according to the calendar, though you may not otherwise have noticed it, and with the spring the thought of vacation begins to gather strength. In another month or six weeks the bungalow camps of the Rockies, famous the world over for their beauty, will have opened again for the season. Outstanding among them are the Lake Louise bungalow camps (see illustration, left), just behind Lake Louise; Yoho camp (lower right), under the lee of the Takakkaw Falls; and Emerald Lake Chalet (upper), by many considered to be the gem of the Rockies, although artists and others will often contend that Lake O'Hara is a close rival. Stays at these camps, since they are not very far from one another and are easily accessible. As a by no means unimportant item, the cost of living in the attraction of trail riding on trained, sure-footed mountain caravans over mountain passes through some of the most magnificent scenery in the world. Grazin hours are the famous Twin Falls near the Yoho Camp.

Stops a Cough In One Night

A cough may be Catarrh with a dry tickling in the throat; it may be accompanied by partial stoppage of the nostrils and shortage of breath. Often there is a gagging in the throat, and every cough tears and hurts.

Coughs have a hundred different causes, yours may be due to any of the following:

Asthma	Inflamed Throat
Bronchitis	Bronchial Tubes
Enlarged Tonsils	Pneumonia
Inflammation	Croup
Stomach Disorders	Pleurisy

One remedy upon which physicians are relying today is Catarrhozone. It removes the cause of the cough. It—isn't—another it.

It's simply wonderful to think how quickly a bad throat or catarrh can be helped with Catarrhozone. Its rich balmatic vapor is carried along with the breath to the innermost recesses of the lungs, bronchial tubes and chest, making it impossible for the germs of Catarrh to live. Throughout the chest is at once alleviated — phlegm is loosened and ejected from the throat, all hacking coughs are removed.

REMEMBER THIS, you breathe Catarrhozone and it will alleviate coughs, colds, catarrh, hay fever, throat, Lungs sire, guaranteed, costs $1.00, and lasts two months. Also sizes, 25c and 50c Beware of imitations and insist on "CATARRHOZONE."

Landon Woman Fills Important Position

Made Chairman Of Central Public Health Committee

A woman has been chosen at the head of a vast public undertaking of vital importance to thousands of Londoners.

On April 1, the old Boards of Guardians will have ceased to exist. Their functions so far as the County of London is concerned will be exercised by the London County Council. A new committee called the Central Public Health Committee will be responsible for all the infirmaries, hospitals and institutions previously administered by the Metropolitan Asylums Board, and the care for the public ambulance service now administered by the London Fire Brigade and the M.A.B.

The chairman of this committee, which will have the health and welfare of thousands of Londoners under its control, is Dr. Florence Barrie Lambert, a well-known member of the London County Council, and the chairman of the Public Health Committee, which under the new regime becomes a sub-committee of the Central Committee.

It is a colossal job to place upon the shoulders of a woman. It involves the care of the necessities of a city of millions.

An Exciting Pursuit

Uses Exploration Plus Added Muscle To World Knowledge

An archaeologist says there are numbers of caves yet to be explored in England with good prospects of finds throwing light on prehistoric periods In Derbyshire at least a dozen caves have th s summer been explored for the first time. Here there were human jaws and other bones, remains of cave bears, and antlers of the giant elk a creature from ten to thirteen feet high, which is not to be met with in Derbyshire nowadays. Cave exploration is an exciting pursuit, and its results in various parts of the world have added a great deal to the knowledge of early man and the beasts he had to contend with.

Experiment a Success

Complete Newspaper Page Sent By Radio From San Francisco To New York

The complete front page of a newspaper has been transmitted across the country by radio for the first time.

Giving the present a peep into what may be commonplace in the future, engineers of the General Electric Company at Schenectady, N. Y., reported that successful experimentation had permitted them to send the first page of the San Francisco Call-Bulletin three hours after it had left the press. It was reproduced in full size in the laboratory of a new type automatic carbon receiver, connected to short wave receiving equipment, actuated by signals originating 2 000 miles away.

The engineers did not hesitate to forecast many possibilities for this improvement in facsimile transmission, which, while still in a highly experimental stage, gave an indication that some day radio may be delivering a large part of human mail and may also bring daily newspapers directly into the home.

APRIL 20

JESUS TEACHING FORGIVENESS

Golden Text: "Forgive us our debts, as we also have forgiven our debtors."—Matthew 6:12.

Lesson: Matthew 18:15-35.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 32:1-7.

Explanations and Comments

How To Treat Offenders, verses 15-35.—Jesus' parable about the Good Shepherd, illustrating His care for those who go astray (our last lesson), is followed in Matthew's Gospel by His counsel in regard to man's treatment of offenders. He advised His disciples first to tell the offender of his fault, then to rebuke him in the presence of two or three witnesses and, if he still gave no heed to their words, to tell his offense to the Church. "Then two or three are gathered in My name," he added, "there am I in the midst of them."

Unlimited Forgiveness, verses 22, 22.—Peter's question about forgiveness of offenders naturally followed. "Lord, how often shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? until seven times?" Seven denoted the perfected number. Peter's heart glowed with self-complacency, for was he not ready to go much further in forgiveness of the ordinary man? Did not the Talmud say: "Whoso pardoneth sins against another, that other forgives him once, he forgives him a second time, he forgives him a third time, but the fourth time he does not forgive him?" "No," I tell you, Jesus answered, "not until seven times, but times without number, until seventy times seven." Magnanimity is not calculating. There is no place for arithmetic in the grace of forgiveness, or, as Dr. Jowett beautifully says, "forgive to a number which we strike through with arithmetic retire with wearied wing."

Peter himself was an illustration of the forgiving heart he was describing. He sinned, and sinned, and sinned again. Dr. J. D. Jones fancies Peter after Christ's death saying to himself, "O Lord, I am the greatest debtor, daily I'm constrained to be," and again and again the Saviour forgave as a text and preaching a sermon of comfort and hope to downcast and despairing souls.

O Man! forgive thy mortal foe,
Nor ever strike revengeful blow;
For all the souls on earth that live,
To be forgiven must forgive
Forgive him seventy times and seven,
For all the blessed souls in heaven
Are both forgivers and forgiven."
—Tennyson.

Bishop Geddes Makes Trip From Aklavik To Edmonton

Covering the two thousand miles from Aklavik, on the Arctic ocean, to Edmonton, in 17 hours of actual flying time, His Lordship Bishop W. A. Geddes completed a trip March 30 which would have taken ten weeks by ordinary winter travel. In open water, the journey by steamboat would have lasted three weeks.

The bishop, accompanied by Mrs. Geddes, left Aklavik in a Commercial Airways aeroplane piloted by Capt. W. R. (Wop.) May. It was 35 below zero when the machine left Aklavik. This was ordinary winter weather at that point, although a bad storm was experienced the week before.

On over Fort McPherson, Arctic Red River, Fort Good Hope, the machine passed in completing the last air mail trip to the Arctic before the ice breaks up. When Fort Norman, 700 miles further on, at the end of the first day's flying, it was 40 above zero after a heavy rain had fallen.

On the second day, Fort Simpson, Hay River, and Fort Resolution were reached, while the second night was spent at Fort Chipewyan. Pilot May went on to Fort McMurray and Pilot Glyn Roberts called at Chipewyan and piloted Bishop and Mrs. Geddes whom he brought on to Edmonton.

Romans Constructed Roads Which Are Still In Use After A Lapse of Twenty Centuries

The first builders of roads were the best. The main highways across Europe, many of them still in use after 2,000 years, remain as monuments to the supreme mechanical genius of the old Romans. Not only did they plan their roads on the principle that the straight line is the shortest between two points, but they built them so well that, with minor changes, the modern cities of Europe still depend upon them for their communication by automobile.

The English word "road" probably comes from the Old English rad, compounded from a verb meaning to ride a horse, while our word "street" comes from the Latin strata, a paved way, one of those streets of beautifully matched stones which the modern traveller may still see, with the ruts made by the chariot wheels of the vanished citizens .In Pompeii and Herculaneum.

When the Romans set out to conquer the whole known world for their day, their practical mind cams to their assistance, and they built as the long arms of their commands spread around the shores of the Mediterranean, permanent highways through their empire, primarily for the swift and safe movement of their troops throughout all the countries they conquered.

Their first principle was to draw a straight line between their most important centres. The Appian Way, which was begun in 312 B.C., one of their greatest achievements, extended throughout length of Italy. Its every foundation from the Forum in the Eternal City itself to Brindisi, from which the legions embarked on their journeys to the East. The pillar set up by Pompey to mark the southern extremity of the great road may still be seen in the seaport.

The Romans built their roads by first cutting parallel trenches through to the soil to indicate the width of the roadway, removing loose earth until a solid foundation was reached. Upon this four layers of materials were beaten down, the lowest usually of flat stone sometimes laid in mortar, above which a layer of coarse concrete of smashed stones was superposed. Above this was a layer of finer stones or concrete, on which was laid a surface of fine stones carefully matched. The width of some of their roads was 14 feet, on each side of which were unpaved roadways half as wide again.

They were built with a high arched out fawnies from the great city which gave the empire its name, were built in regular lines as the legions had passed into dust, and influenced, to an important degree, the rise and growth of trade routes and the cities which supplanted the "cratu" of the Roman soldiers.

Any one who has motored in France will be grateful to the genius of these old Romans in planning their military roads—later to be repaired and lined with trees by Napoleon for his legions—remembering the luxurious winding roads of a glass this country which have perpetuated in concrete the wanderings of prehistoric cows of the early Celtic colonists. Wherever the road in Europe straightens and aims for a distant star, the motorist may be certain that his car is following the path of that great empire of Rome.

In Paris, for example, he realizes that the long, straight line of the Boulevard St Michel is the old Roman road to the south, and that the Champs Elysees, its continuation to the Roman cities of the north. And the motorist leaving Calais and the Great North road passes over a highway laid out by the legions who pushed their conquests as far as Great North road passes over a highway laid out by the legions who pushed their conquests as far as Great North road.

Every road map of England shows the old Roman roads, in the course of centuries, in spite of the growth of the villages and the fluctuation in importance of the market towns, the old Roman road still exists, sometimes as a mere cart track, and at others merely a line of hedges still

Advocates Mixed Farming

Only Sound Policy For Canada Says Bank Official

C. A. Bogart, general manager of the Dominion Bank, said at the annual meeting recently:

The tremendous advances in wheat exports have been a leading factor in this country's expansion since the war, but it should be remembered that Russia's disappearance as an exporter left a vacuum for Canada to occupy. Although normal opportunities in the future are not probable; Russia's return to the field is more likely, but in any event there may be a limit to profitable wheat raising. Average individual consumption being more or less constant, the world's requirements will grow only as population increases, and we must always keep in mind the increasing competition from cheaper foods. The Oriental market referred to by the president is important, but does not yet offer a permanent outlet, and while any country's surplus may vary, a poor crop in any part of the globe is usually balanced by a good harvest elsewhere. More acreage in wheat simply keeps in mind the fact that practically in this country, and the tendency is toward constantly greater production. Abandoning wheat growing does bear out what those who should know have many times urged: mixed farming for Canada is the only sound policy.

Will Effect Great Saving

Ten million gallons gained simply by shifting the position of an agricultural knife one and one-half inches—this is the latest discovery of science to national wealth. Dr. Ernest Reed, professor of botany at Syracuse University, has announced the belief that sugar is concentrated principally in the heart of a beet. In accord with this belief a machine in the west has been to send "toppers"through the beet fields, slicing off not only the leaves but the comparatively worthless top section. Through years of work, and by developing a new method of testing for sugar content, Reed says he has proved conclusively that the discarded tops are rich in sugar.

Women's styles undergo drastic changes with amazing rapidity, as their husbands' pocketbooks can testify, but men's fashions have remained much the same throughout the centuries, despite attempts to make them more comfortable and economical. With Greater Interest in Bee Keeping, Demand For Live Bees Is Necessary

With spring just around the corner the beekeeper's busy season is soon to start. In a pamphlet just issued by The Experimental Farm Service, C. B. Gooderham, B.S.A., the Dominion Apiarist, discusses the important problem of bee shipment, both here in package bees and how to handle them. Apiaries are being built up rapidly all over Canada, and the demand for live bees is increasing. Mr. Gooderham finds that the package and shipment of bees presents no substantial difficulty, successful shipments having been made across Canada and from Alabama to Ottawa.

The bee package, including a queen, weighs about two pounds and contains some 10,000 bees. Some reasonable safeguards are necessary to insure good results and Mr. Gooderham deals with these in his pamphlet.

Scientists Enabled To Explore The Interior Of the Earth To a Distance of Many Miles

England Has Wonder Plant

"Broiton" Will Supply New Material For Three Industries

A new plant, which has been very favorably reported on by a number of experts, is now being grown in Devonshire. It is the result of years of experiment by a British plant wizard, and supplies raw material for three industries. Fibre for the manufacture of textiles is obtained from its bark; wood cellulose for making paper from the core; and the seed can be made into cattle cake.

It is claimed that the value of these products will enable farmers to obtain a handsome profit by growing the new plant, which may thus revolutionize British agriculture.

Broiton, however, takes longer than most crops to mature. If all its three products are to be obtained, the farmer must wait about eighteen months before he harvests it.

There are, of course, some other plants — not necessarily hybrids — which yield more than one product of commercial value. The bamboo is one of the classical examples. It provides the walls of many houses in Eastern countries, the thatch for their roofs, and even food. The young shoots are cooked in various soups and stews.

We are also discovering nowadays that parts of plants which were formerly regarded as merely "waste" can be used. Sugar has been made from peanut shells and from the husks of the cotton seed. It can also be extracted from the dahlia—which by the way, was originally brought to Europe as a potato substitute; and it has been found that quite good paper can be manufactured from cornstalks.

But the plants that provide us with the most wonderful variety of products are plants that have been dead for thousands of years. In their present form, as coal, they can be made to yield gas, petrol, lubricating oils, and a great variety of dyes and other by-products.

Germinating Asparagus Seeds

Two To Six Weeks From Time Seed Is Sown Until Plant Appears Above Ground

Asparagus is a garden crop rapidly gaining in popular favour. Its cultivation, however, has peculiar problems, one of which is the length of time it takes for seedlings to sprout. It may take anywhere from two to six weeks from the time asparagus seed is planted until the plants appear above the ground

At the Summerland Experimental Station, of the Canadian Department of Agriculture, good results were obtained where the seed-bed was soaked early in the spring to germinate as many weed seeds as possible, these being killed in the final preparation of the plot for seeding.

The length of time the seed takes to germinate depends very largely on the temperature of the soil, best results being obtained when the temperature is between 75 and 85 degrees Fahrenheit.

Before planting asparagus, seed should be soaked in water for 24 to 4 days at a temperature around 86 to 95 degrees Fahrenheit. They should then be taken out of the water spread on sacks and the surface is dry and then planted immediately. to mix soil

In planting asparagus seed a special upper soil should be made to drop the seeds one in a place. The reason for this being that otherwise the fleshy roots become interwoven and it is difficult to separate the plants for transplanting. It is also suggested that the planting of radish seed at the same time assists in marking the rows and in controlling weeds

Gravity Comparisons

Decidedly Delicate Operation Involved In Connection With Pendulum

Measurements of the force of gravity at various points throughout the country are made by the Dominion Astronomical Observatory. This is the measurement of the period of a pendulum to one ten millionth part of a second and a decidedly delicate operation. Results of these investigations are intended to throw light on the nature of the upper layers of the earth's crust and are closely related to geological formations and such processes as denudation and mountain building

An English pathologist has discovered that bad temper increases the amount of sugar in the blood by 10 to 20 per cent

In the school of experience the course is never completed.

With the aid of the seismograph, the instrument which records the tremors of earthquakes, scientists are able to explore the interior of the earth to a depth of perhaps 2,-000 miles, Dr Bailey Willis of Leland Stanford University said at the meeting of the Geological Society of America in the American Museum of Natural History, New York.

"Thus we know," Dr. Willis said, "that there are two parts of the earth: an envelope 2,000 miles thick which consists of elastic rock, and a core that is 2 000 miles in radius and apparently inelastic. The core is of heavy material, probably largely iron.

"The inelastic condition of the core is characteristic of melted substances. The core is exceedingly hot but may be melted, but even so it must be an excessively sluggish fluid. It must be an excessively sluggish, viscous body because of the pressure of the envelope, which rests upon the core with all its weight, amounting over twenty million pounds a square inch. Thus within is a heavy ball, which may be melted, but which is as envelope of heavy rock, and the outside skin on which we live contents in part of the globe of granite."

The centre of the earth, Dr. Willis explained, is a sort of heat engine, constantly diffusing its heat toward the outside skin. As it escapes from the innermost core the heat is unable to dissipate immediately through the outer envelope of heavy rock. Instead it is diffused sideways and forms a bulb in the earth's surface, an immense blister several hundreds of miles across and twenty or more miles deep. These blisters, technically known as asteroliths, are made up of a relatively light rock, granite or basalt, a heavier rock which contains a high proportion of iron

From time to time one of these blisters burst through to the surface and a new continent is formed. Dr. Willis said lighter floats up to form the continents as we know them. The heavy basalt, which, being heavier, cannot rise so far, makes the ocean bed.

A blister requires perhaps several million years to grow, Dr. Willis said. "A very large number of eruptions, a great many asthenoliths and an enormous lapse of time must have been required to form Africa, Eurasia and the Americas in this way. Thus it is that the same processes are being continued today beneath the earth's surface the human race may yet live to enjoy the same unperturbed, for some millions of years probably will past before Europe or America is submerged beneath the ocean and new continents arise to take their places

J.W.G. Morrison, K.C. Vimy Night Speaker

(Held over from last week)

Vimy night was appropriately commemorated by the local branch of the Service Legion Wednesday evening at the legion hall with a stag song and smoker over which George Maxwell president presided. There were a large fifty present and all had a fine time. The community singing was interspersed with recitations and solos, also instrumental music. The addresses of the evening was made by J. W. G. Morrison, K.C., and was received as one of the best efforts a impressive speaking. Mr. Morrison touched a fact that probably has not been forgotten or was unknown to a great many people today, this being that Vermilion was one of the very few districts in Canada and alone in Western Canada that contributed a machine gun to the government for service overseas with the Canadian troops. The subscription was made up of from fifty cents to a couple of dollars each—from all corners of the district. Another thing he reminded those present was that the town and district by popular subscription made it possible for the Legion to be so comfortably housed as it was today. Many people today did not know this. He did not know of any other district in Western Canada that had made such a splendid contribution to the returned men. He suggested that the Legion make an effort to secure and preserve all data in connection with matters such as these to the end that future generations will not be permitted to forget the part the citizens of Vermilion and district had taken towards the welfare of the returned men. "As the years go on," he said, "our ranks will become thinner and thinner, and as these dark days recede into the past the mind of many will forget and forget. It is therefore our duty to preserve these memories dear to us all at that time that those who come after us will know what our part was in the stage of human activity then, played in that titanic struggle for our King and country."

Mr. Morrison also referred to the pension scheme and urged upon the Legion to use every effort to see that no suffering from what unscientifically were part our disabilities was secured a pension. It had been an unfortunate thing that there was not forget before the picture began to fade and those men had passed before the call of pension boards.

It is understood that the Legion will at once take steps to carry out the suggestions made by Mr. Morrison with regard to the matter of collecting the local records of those war days.

DEWBERRY

Mr Beresford of Maughan passed through here on Thursday with a large quantity of machinery on his way to his new home ten miles north of here. The new-comer who has brought with him cattle, pigs, feed, etc., along with all kinds of farm implements is given a hearty welcome to Dewberry.

The Canada Cafe is being re-painted and decorated these days.

Every farmer here is busy sowing wheat and many have around 200 acres seeded to date. The acreage under wheat will be from 10 to 15 per cent. less this year and that under oats a corresponding percentage greater than last year.

Everybody is glad to see Mr. H. R. Leavitt back again and improving rapidly after a serious operation in an Edmonton hospital.

The trustees of the village school have presented the girls with a fine basketball equipment and the boys with a baseball outfit.

Once a week with the utmost regularity a prospective purchaser of the Canada cafe pops up in Dewberry and speedily disappears as Jo Pong, proprietor, threatens with sword and utters the mystic words: "None, me no sellee."

Mrs Hyatt of Sandeman met with a bit of bad luck on her way home from Dewberry on Wednesday after noon when she was thrown from her horse and had her shoulder badly broken. Mrs. Hyatt, who is an expert rider and has ridden her little thoroughbred a victory in many local race meetings for the last seven years, was taken to lobby by Dr. Knapp who came to Dewberry in answer to a phone call. She is progressing favorably in hospital and is expected home in a few days.

The crop situation is being reasoned out in the Dewberry district somewhat after this manner: The land is fairly dry. Seeding is well started. The rain or snow may be slow in coming; if we wait for it seeding will be late. What we want is the rain at the stage of human activity then, played in that titanic struggle for our King and country."

Mr. Morrison also referred to the pension scheme and urged upon the Legion to use every effort to see that no suffering from what unscientifically were part our disabilities was secured a pension. It had been an unfortunate thing that there was not forget before the picture began to fade and those men had passed before the call of pension boards.

It is understood that the Legion will at once take steps to carry out the suggestions made by Mr. Morrison with regard to the matter of collecting the local records of those war days.

The girl laughed, handed him "Cabot's Diagnosis," and wiped the top of her greying old father's desk with the dust cloth, as she replied: "I was merely considering the fact that it may have caused Jim Bennett to use his one brain, instead of his two fists, on me."

The doctor pondered for a moment while Charmian watched him, and smile hovering on her lips.

"I begin to see light in the darkness," he said at last. "Your friend Bennett, I gather, possesses a forceful maternal relative who prefers, let us say, the matrimonial welfare of goods, to the honest home-made product. She must be mentally unbalanced."

Charmian's smile widened, but she flushed also, a fact that did not escape the watchful eye of her companion.

"You are too clever for an unsophisticated country girl," she said. "You mean, 'provincial,' don't you?" he retorted, grinning.

She laughed.

"I had almost forgotten that terrible appellation. Poor Grandma! How it did trouble her, but if they're all as easy good out, here, and that the ten dollars the man offered—"

"Ten dollars!" broke in the doctor. "He was a shark."

"Wasn't he!—though I had hard work persuading Grandma that I didn't want income to refuse his offer. If you'll get the brass polish in the kitchen closet, I'll allow you the pleasure of shining those andirons yourself! These windows need hang, Doctor. Doctor Says Long Eyelashes Are Sign Of Weak Vitality

Long eyelashes are considered to add to the charm of a face. But they are, according to a Japanese physician, a sign of weak vitality. This doctor says that consumptive children have lashes twice as long as those of healthy little ones. While a normal baby's eyelashes grow about an eighth of an inch during its first year, tiny sufferers from diseases have at the end of twelve months lashes twice as long. These discoveries were made at the hospital attached to one of the Imperial Universities.

WARNING TO MOTHERS

Watch the Health Of Your Little Ones At All Times

No mother can expect that her child will escape all the ills to which babyhood and childhood are heir, but she can do much to lessen the severity of these troublesome times. The mother should be constantly on her guard to prevent children's ailments, or if they come on suddenly as they usually do, to treat them promptly. Many of these Thousands of mothers have found Baby's Own Tablets the ideal remedy for little ones—those simple, but effective, little powders that relieve at once. Concerning Grandma Hiteh a mile-lived boy from the broad widow sill and held skirt, a bottle of yellow beads. "Aren't they handsome?"

Deacon Purdie hitched his chair a little nearer, and fingered one of the beads—removed his long-distance spectacles, and scrutinized the proposed purchase minutely.

"What depends on what you expect to do with 'em," replied the old lady briskly "If you were going to, donate 'em to a church fair, say, why you might hesitate; but if they're a gift to a lady friend, or some dear, loved relatives, Edgar, why that's a different matter. They're worth five dollars."

"Five dollars!" he exploded, in genuine consternation. "Did you say two dollars, Grandma Davis, or have my ears deceived me?"

"Your hearing is all right, Edgar and you can be thankful for it, too, a man of your age. Beads are stylish these days, and the price maybe a little bit inflated." ("Inflated!" murmured one of the eavesdroppers in the next room. "Good!") "And if they're handsome—"

The deacon arose daudely, reaching for his hat.

"It's too much to expect of a man Grandma," he said regretfully, "I had no idea they were so high. Maybe I could use something I could wear, or—"

"If it's for a present, Edgar," broke in Grandma soberly, "I wouldn't risk any research and search from 'round the house. Now you look here, maybe we'll come to terms.

"I'd give a dollar for 'em," admitted the deacon grudgingly, though such a waste of money seems almost sinful, and not one cent higher will I go."

Grandma reached for the beads and began arranging them carefully on their satin bed.

"Well, I'm sorry, Edgar." Her tone [illegible] "But you wouldn't want me to be money on the transaction, would you?"

"What did they cost you, Grandma?" queried the deacon warily, as sat down again. "I might oh a basis of value and a quarter," Grandma smiled.

The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians for 50 years since its invention. C.N.R. Has Heavy Programme For Year

Plans To Spend $85,000,000 On Maintenance and Construction This Year

The Canadian National Railways will spend $85,000,000 on new construction, maintenance and general betterment work in Western Canada this year, according to a statement issued today by A. E. Warren, vice-president of the Western Region of the railway. This figure is exclusive of the sums which will be spent on the Hudson Bay Railway, and it does not include the Canadian National's share of the budget for the Northern Alberta Railways.

As has already been announced, $9,000,000 will be used in the branch line building programme. This work constitutes this year's portion of the three year programme approved by the Federal Parliament in 1928, and most of the lines are located in Saskatchewan and Alberta. Two are being built in British Columbia. Altogether 13 branch lines are included in this year's western programme.

The balance of the money will be used on lines in the west now in operation, and on the two hotels which are under construction in Vancouver and Saskatoon. Relaying of steel, track maintenance and improvement, ballasting, track extensions, bridging, fencing, the erection of new buildings, water supplies and railroad facilities generally comprise the bulk of the work for which provision has been made. It is not possible at this time to particularize the various items in the budget, since each item requiring a capital outlay has to be sanctioned by parliament before work can be commenced.

It can be said, however, that among other things, the company contemplates the expenditure of $750,000 on steel and 85-pound steel with new 100-pound steel and to relay 106 miles of light track with 90 and 85-pound steel. In the programme for further strengthening track structure the installation of some 1,720,000 ties and 680,000 rail anchors is contemplated. Between 3½ and 4 million ties will be replaced, of this number 15 per cent. will be for new facilities. A considerable amount of ballasting is also proposed.

The extension of forty passing tracks on trunk lines is proposed. This increased capacity will permit a more economical use of power. Provision is made for the construction of thirty-eight new sidings, in addition to extending existing passing tracks, and by relaying the passing tracks entirely in train operation and so providing an extra line for handling up of passenger and freight trains schedules. Twelve loading track extensions are also projected; road extension, improvement and rearrangement has been provided for at a number of points, the most important of which is Saskatoon where the extensive terminal changes which were begun last year will be completed.

Together with the branch line programme already mentioned, the proposed work constitutes a heavy programme for the engineering forces. The branch line programme alone calls for the grading of 1750 miles of heavy [illegible] in 12 miles; ballasting on 217 miles; the erection of 300 miles of fencing; 240 miles of telegraph line, 20 station buildings, 30 section-men's dwellings and 10 water stations including tanks and pumphouses.

The programme on the Hudson Bay Railway, which is being supervised by the engineering department of the Canadian National Railways for the government, is also extensive. Between The Pas and Fort Nelson and a certain amount of filling of embankments has to be undertaken.

It is expected that the programme to be made during this year on the various works will be sufficient to complete and equip the Hudson Bay Railway to a point which will permit of commercial business being extended beyond Mile 328 to Churchill. This, however will depend to a considerable extent upon how early weather and soil conditions will allow work to be resumed.

The writer said that the analyses indicated a very fine quality of milk, appearing favorably with the majority of milk which is sold in the city of Edmonton in its relation to bacteria count.

EASTER LESSON

Golden Text: "He is not here: for He is risen."—Matthew 28.6.

Lesson: John 20:1-16.

Devotional Reading: Ephesians 1.15-23.

Explanations and Comments

Mary Magdalene's Discovery Of the Empty Tomb Of Christ, verses 1, 2.—A stone had been placed over the entrance of the tomb in which the body of the crucified Saviour had been laid (Mark 15:46), and the stone had been sealed in a groove at the base of the opening of the tomb. Early on Sunday morning Mary Magdalene came to the tomb with the others, as the "we" in the next verse indicates. She found the stone removed. At once she hastened to tell Peter and John (John always refers to himself in his Gospel as "the disciple whom Jesus loved"). They have taken away the Lord out of the tomb, and we know not where they have laid Him."—Her error.

John's and Peter's Discovery Of the Empty Tomb, verses 3-10.—Peter and John ran to the tomb. John reached there first, and looking in reverently and wonderingly where the Saviour's body had rested, he beheld only the linen clothes in which it had been wrapped. Then impetuous Peter rushed into the tomb and saw a wonderful thing: "Seeth the clothes which had enveloped Christ's body were rolled up and lay napkin, which had been about His head, was in another place Looking and orderly had been Christ's departure had other carried off His body the grave robbers would have been left. Then John also entered the tomb. He saw that the night suffered him: he believed that Christ was risen. "What saw he that John believed? That Jesus had risen" Surely this, but more than this He had risen, He was therefore the divine Son of God. The conviction then produced was the origin of his Gospel. It was the life of loving devotion for the apostle John."—C. H. Eerdman.

Mary Magdalene's Discovery Of the Risen Lord, verses 11-16. Mary, who had followed Peter and John back to the tomb, remained outside, weeping. Looking into the tomb she saw two angels clothed in white sitting where the body of Jesus had lain. The Greek word "angel" means "one who is sent with a message," and their message to Mary was "Woman, why weepest thou? Then was no cause for weeping, but great reason for rejoicing. The Lord had risen!

"John's insight taught him first to conclude that his Lord had risen; Mary's heart brought her Lord first to satisfy it." So she turned and beheld Jesus standing. But she did not recognize Him. The synoptists (Matthew 28.17; Mark 16.13; Luke 24. 16, 37 and John in 21.4), speak of His form as altered; Mary's eyes, "reserved were dim with tears. "Woman, why weepest thou, whom seekest thou?" Jesus questioned.

Supposing Jesus to be the gardener, or garden-keeper the only thing that would naturally be there at that hour, Mary said to Him: "Sir, if thou hast borne Him hence, tell me where thou hast laid Him, and I will take Him away." How natural it was that she did not mention Jesus name: there could be no one else thought of.

"Mary," said Jesus, and "Rabboni," Teacher, she cried. "It was only an instructor's work, but all the quick emotions of a life-time were centered. That voice! In a flash the cross was forgotten, the tomb forgotten; the mystery of how the dead could live again was unthought of. "Mary!" "Master!" Deep called to deep, and the testimony of the inner spirit defied all logic and all contradiction. "I know that my Redeemer liveth."

Manitoba May Develop Salt Water Fishing At Churchill

Manitoba, with Churchill as its seaport, has become the center of a thriving province, and development of an extensive salt water fishing industry is one of the possibilities in the near future Hon. D. A. McKenzie, Minister of Mines and Natural resources, prophesied such an industry during an address in Winnipeg. He had been informed by those qualified to speak that there was every prospect of good fishing being conducted on a large scale, with Churchill as the base for the fishing fleets.

Southern Are Anxious To Visit Canada

Opening Of Hudson's Bay Route Has Been Great Advertising

Thousands of American tourists from the southern states will visit Canada this year as a result of the advertising that the Dominion through the opening of the Hudson's Bay Railway, stated E. A. McCallum, of Regina, who returned to the city after a three months' vacation spent in Mississippi and Alabama.

"Everywhere I found the greatest interest in Canadian affairs," Mr. McCallum said. "The opening of the Hudson's Bay route has been a tremendous factor in calling attention to the development in this country. Many of these southerners had had all idea Canada was a land of snow and 80 below zero temperature. Now they want to see this great country which has an ocean outlet at its extreme north."

Why Suffer From Your Liver?

Why be handicapped with unsightly blotches on the face, eyes with yellow tinge and that tired and languid feeling? This indicates a torpid liver. Headache, Dizziness and Biliousness surely follow. Rubber Overshoes For Those Who Lose Over Wraps and Prevent Formation Of Ice

Overshoes for aeroplanes—a new method of keeping wings free of deadly ice—were announced at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.

They are a discovery in safety, but unknown as a result of "natural facts" in the mid-west.

The overshoes keep over the fabric wings of the wing. They are a thin layer of specially vulcanized rubber coating continually a colorless oil which is the secret of the success. It is announced that the ice does not stick nor the oil "scrub off."

This oil alone is insufficient and so the overshoes have a small rubber under their sliding edge. A slight pulsation of pump drives air in the hose breaks the ice as it forms on the wing edge, and so prevents air from pressing the forming ice that against the wing.

Soldiers' Sulphite Deposits

Over One Hundred Million Tons Of Natural Hydrous Soils Found in Canada

As a result of investigation made by the Canadian Government Department of Mines, it has been established that the sodium sulphate deposits in the Province of Saskatchewan contain over 100,000,000 tons of natural hydrous salt. These deposits have been looked on as of great potential value and steps to meet commercial requirements in Canada but because of the possibility of developing important export markets. One of the important uses in Canada is in the pulp and paper industry where large quantities of sodium sulphate or "salt cake" are used in the production of sulphate or kraft pulp.

Everybody Satisfied

Family Could Enjoy Reading Paper By New Method

The latest invention is a machine which read aloud from the printed page this should prove a boon to the army of men who have to hurry to work in the morning. They could get their morning paper, set the machine going while they whistle in the bathroom, take it to breakfast and let it run till they bid good-bye to their superior halves at the front door, by which time they would have heard the chief news. Then the paper could be left for the ladies of the household to read the shop advertisements, the social news, etc. The whole house would be satisfied.—Montreal Gazette.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

VANILLA DESSERT WITH CHOCOLATE SAUCE

1 package vanilla junket.
1 pint milk.

Prepare junket according to the directions on package. Let stand until firm, then chill.

Chocolate Sauce: Melt 1 square unsweetened chocolate in saucepan, placed in large saucepan of boiling water. Add 1 tablespoon melted butter, and when thoroughly blended, stir in gradually, while stirring constantly, ½ cup boiling water; then add 1 cup sugar. Bring to the boiling point and boil fourteen minutes with ½ teaspoon vanilla.

BAKING ECONOMY

Into a well-buttered pan put slices of raw peeled potatoes and a little pepper. Then a layer of uncooked, sliced ham. Add another layer of potatoes and ham and pour on this cream sauce (1 tablespoon flour, 1 tablespoon butter, to 1 cup milk.) Sprinkle bread crumbs on top and bake in a moderate oven until brown and potatoes are well done. Serve hot. Just enough ham can be used to give the desired flavor, which has the advantage of making a little ham go a long way. For picnics this can be baked at home in a heavy tin dish with a cover and reheated over hot water on a campfire.

Taxes for the relief of the poor have been levied in England since 1573.

Elevator Operators Must Accept Grain

Storage Examination Not Permitted To Operate In New Act

Elevator operators are compelled to take in grain submitted to them by farmers when they have accommodation for it under a clause in the new Grain Act, approved by the committee on agriculture and colonization. They are also not permitted to reserve storage space for customers in advance; the exact time in grain as it is offered so long as they have room.

Discussion of this provision raised speculation on the discretion of the elevator operator to refuse dusty or smutty grain. Some members of the committee thought he should not be required to accept grain unsuitable for storage, thereby tying up storage facilities and preventing the movement of good grain. This question was left to stand over until a section covering it could be prepared and submitted to the committee.

In the morning she works as scrubwoman in the office of the local Labor Party; in the evening she presides over the Edmonton Education Committee and attends the Urban District Council, of which she is a member. In addition she does all her own housework, and cares for the children. She says she needs a rest.

"Not one cent under a dollar everything—a full, rich, and then, I'm giving them away. But you needn't feel at all obliged to take them. That Darling girl will meet the city and knows a bargain when I'll see to it every day that she sees one. Maybe you'd better fix getting on. It's quite a ride to South Wickfield, and you've got to be home for dinner it is a parlor for occasion, I'll let you have 'em. But you'll have to pay me cash. Giving 'em away like that."

"Oh, I'll pay cash!" broke in the deacon eagerly. He pulled out a wallet, deposited the amount Grandma's hand and put the coveted possession into his pocket, buttoning his coat since it for extra safety. "Good-by, Grandma. Seems to me you've drove an awful hard bargain, but there's times when it pays to splurge a little. You sure these beads are stylish?" he added, pausing; and at the old lady's vigorous affirmative he closed the door.

It was as well, perhaps, that he did not "dicker" for no sooner was he safely off than Charmian and the doctor burst from their retreat in the next room.

"Your grandslaughter seems to be in a state verging on collapse," announced John Carter. "I had hard work to restrain her from spoiling that shyster's business, but you have just terminated so successfully. Believe me, Grandma Davis, you would have done as a horse trader!"

The old lady chuckled, and commented, as Charmian sank limply into the chair recently occupied by her victim.

"I dunno when I've had such a good time; I wish now that I'd asked more, and made him come up on his offer slow and painful When I remember—"

"But, Grandma," interrupted Charmian sternly, though the corners of her mouth twitched upward, "you said you'd ask a dollar, and you asked two."

"I said I'd make him pay a dollar," corrected Grandma. "Do you suppose, child, if I'd said a dollar in the first place he'd have agreed to it? You don't know Edgar Purdie like I do. That's why I asked for cash. If Leslie gets home this afternoon and we'd have had those beads back on our hands come night, or my name's not Davis. You can't tell me anything about Mr. Purdie, I want to tell you!"

"What shall you do with your ill-gotten gains?" queried the doctor, his eyes twinkling.

Grandma looked thoughtfully from the window as she replied: "I suppose I ought to put it in the foreign missions fund, but I guess it'll be full as much good helping to pay the milk man. Here, Charmian, you better take it. We'll see every day that we make a dollar and a half so easily."

"You might spend it on a wedding gift for the deacon!" suggested Charmian, as she arose and took the proffered bills from the outstretched hand.

"Indeed, we shan't!" snapped the old lady quickly. "I gave him a present when he married his first wife, Emma Dodd, as good a woman as ever drew breath o' life. It was a silver sugar spoon, and came from Portland. Emma was real pleased with it; but six months later Edgar made her chine it up and give it to his second cousin, Flita Stone, who'd been married over at Wilton. Seems to me, Lizzie Baker was at the wedding and saw it with her own eyes. So I'll not give the deacon a present I ever give to Edgar Purdie, though mebbe I'll have a chance enough to employ me. Do you want my company this morning, or will you be all right?"

"That's all right, I stopped. I need your young enthusiasm to throw light on a case that's been bothering me for a week. You come to with us, Charmian." It's a beautiful morning for a ride."

The girl looked longingly through the open doorway, but answered: "I couldn't, really, I've a thousand and one things to do this morning. What time shall you be back? If a patient appears in your absence, Doctor Carter, I'll keep him here if I have to sit on him!"

"He'll be back at noontime," chuckled the old doctor; and as they started John Carter turned to wave farewell at his girl standing in the doorway of his new office.

Charmian waited there until the chunky car vanished down the tree shaded street, then turned back to the room behind her, looking down at the dismal scene with eyes that drank thirstily of its beauty.

YOUNG WIFE STRENGTHENED
After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bancroft, Ontario.—"When I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was all run down and had been married about a year and thought was having nervous collapse. I was only 99 and it was my first child. My doctor told me I needed nothing for my nerves and a physician told me to take the Vegetable Compound I am so thankful I did because it strengthened my whole system and I am in perfect health and have a sweet little baby boy." Mrs. J. B. STARLES, Bancroft, Ontario.

"Up to a certain age, I suppose they were," he replied thoughtfully, "and yet, the possession of this rug, for instance, is not without a twinge of heartache. It means—my having it at all—that I no longer have my parents—that never again shall I see it in its accustomed place in the big living room at home. It brings up memories that hurt, you see, even though I love them."

"But it is wonderful to have those memories," she said, laying an impulsive hand on his.

He squeezed her hand, and responded cheerfully: "Of course it is! But the first glimpses of that old rug brought everything back, and gave me a silly lump in the throat for just a minute. Really, it looks corking, Judge, and I'm glad it came like this instead of the candlesticks. Done the place suit you, Mistress Charmian?"

"Yes! It is good of you to send to ask if it suits you?" laughed the girl as she wiped some dust from the old treasure.

"You know without the asking. It's perfect; and, thanks to your feminine touch, even the waiting room looks homelike."

"Those thanks are really due to Aunt Ellen, for she planned it all," she corrected. "Yes, I'm satisfied. It looks—Why, here's the doctor!" she broke off suddenly, as Dr. Dee, Jane Rowe, and pass judgment on the finished product of our labor."

The old doctor was indeed, looking almost with shrewd, appraising eyes.

"Not much like my first office," he commented. "It was a room over the old drug store, but as brains in summer, and prospered accordingly, as you see. Maybe Your's a lucky man, John Carter, with a place like this, and Charmian Davis to look after you!"

"I realize that," responded the young M.D., with a smile that made the doctor thought new color to her cheeks. "At least, I shall have a pleasant place to work in, and a profitable waiting for the trusting public to employ me. Do you want my company this morning, or will you be all right?"

"That's what I stopped. I need your young enthusiasm to throw light on a case that's been bothering me for a week. You come to with us, Charmian." It's a beautiful morning for a ride."

Canadian War Memorial Pictures In Fire Proof Home at Ottawa

When construction of a new national gallery building is undertaken, provision will be made for the proper housing and display of the Canadian war memorial pictures. This was the answer given by Hon. J. C. Elliott, K.C., Minister of Public Works, in the House of Commons to a question raised by Col. Thomas Cantley. The Canadian national war memorial pictures, except those which now adorn the walls of the Senate chamber, are now in a fire proof storage room, specially prepared under the supervision of the National Gallery officials, in the Auditorium Building in Ottawa.

The pictures, said Mr. Elliott's answer, are completely protected from any damage due to dampness or any other unfavorable atmospheric conditions. They are also under expert supervision, and every phase of Canadian war effort, undertaken by many of the most outstanding artists of the country. For the past ten years this collection has been stored from view due to lack of suitable accommodation.

KEEP THEM HAPPY BY KEEPING THEM WELL
It is natural for children to be happy, active and full of fun. When they are fretful, peevish and disinclined to play you may be sure something is wrong. Almost invariably that something lies in the digestive tract.
It is to meet the need for an absolutely safe corrective of childhood ailments that Hahr's Own Tablets have been designed. They gently regulate the stomach and bowels and thus drive out constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers and all the troubles that come of them. Mrs. W. E. Forsyth, Grenfell, Sask., writes: "I would not be without Hahr's Own. They are a friend indeed to me and to my little next room.

NEWS FROM ISLAY

The tea and apron sale held by the W. A. in the United church on Saturday was very well patronized.

There was an extremely large attendance at the Easter service Friday night in the United church. The minister, Mr. Thompson, preached an excellent sermon from the text "If a Man Die, Shall He Live Again?" Special music was rendered by the choir.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of
MARTON S. CASKEY
who was killed in the Great War,
April, 1916.

We promised when you went away,
That we would not forget,
But keep you in our mind each day
Till once again we met.
"Do home for Xmas sure" you said—
"You'll see I'm surely right."
Then you gaily, blithely, marched away
Forever from our sight.

Home for Christmas? Aye, yes, home,
Beyond all earthly strife;
On Flanders' fields, for us at home,
You gave your dear young life.
Forget you, lad? That could not be!
And as season come and go,
Our memory flies to where you lie
Out there where poppies grow.

Insurance performs a variety of specific services, many of which are so generally accepted that their presence has become less noticeable than their absence would be. For example, it devises and encourages the installation of mechanical guards upon and about dangerous machinery—it provides a remarkable simple and effective method of establishing a savings account—in the form of life insurance—and provides for abandonment; it freely advises both individuals and municipalities how to install their fire-fighting facilities to the best advantage; it tells the architect how best to achieve fire-resistive and earth quake proof construction; it establishes standards and tests to which fire are observed and maintained.

It guards things as well as makes and tests their value if destroyed, or advises and discharges liabilities that might prove ruinous to those who seek its aid.

COMMUNICATION

(This paper does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by correspondents.)

AN APPRECIATION

Dear Mr. Editor,—

Permit me a little space this week in your paper to express not merely my own grateful appreciation but that of the general body of Vermilion and District citizens, who were privileged to listen to the Sacred Cantata "The Crucifixion," by Sir John Stainer, in the United Church on the evening of Good Friday.

Everyone to whom I have spoken, and the number was not a few, heartily agrees that the rendering of each initial number on the programme was of a very high order, both instrumental and vocal, and that the Cantata itself, sung by the combined church choirs of the town, was most feelingly and reverently presented. To Mr. Ellford, who conducted so ably, and to each and all taking part, particularly of course to the soloists upon whom the heaviest responsibility naturally fell, the highest credit is due. A work of such magnitude calls for high qualities in those taking part and the atmosphere of time and preparation necessarily expended is by no means slight. Many weeks of careful practice were in this case needful to ensure success, and this expenditure of time and trouble was unquestionably given. Seemingly there is a wealth of musical talent in this district of the Province, and how better can it be collectively used than in promoting a really worth while programme, as that we heard on Good Friday? The wonderful music was stimulating and soul stirring and I'm sure all left the church with a deeper impression of the wondrous self-sacrifice of the world's Saviour.

Many of us hope that we may be given, at no distant date, another opportunity to listen to music of similar high character.

Thanking you in anticipation, Mr. Editor, I remain

Faithfully yours,
Gerald McComas.

"England is intensely interested in reciprocal trade possibilities with the Dominions. Although a satisfactory trade between England and Canada has been carried on in the past, there is a greater interest is being shown by well-established firms in Great Britain in Empire trade," said R. Catering To Tourists

Approximately twenty millions of dollars will be expended by the Government of the three Canadian prairie provinces in the construction and maintenance of gravel roads this year, not to mention several more millions of through Provincial highways and main market roads. It is a lot of money. It represents the largest single item of expenditure for any one service. It means an outlay of at least ten dollars for every man, woman and child in Western Canada.

A very considerable portion of this vast sum is being expended on the assumption that quite apart from the benefit that will directly accrue to our own people the money will be well spent if it helps to make the means of attracting an ever increasing volume of tourist traffic from other Provinces and the States to the south and that these visitors will bring much business and profit to our people. Still, the question and expenditure they will make in the country is not the primary object of a goodly portion of this expenditure. It is strategic rather than economic.

Good roads are a business necessity. If we are to develop a large tourist business. But in the other sections they are not enough. These prospective tourists can find good roads possibly better than we can offer much nearer home. If we have highways we will be expected to provide comfort and safety as all other live countries do. They will come to Western Canada to enjoy a new and a strange land. They come expecting something different. What is Western Canada going to provide?

Are we going to allow our highways to be disfigured, as they have been with the commercial signboard line by unsightly billboards and advertising devices of every kind, which defeat the very purpose they serve in many districts? Are motorists confused by drivers with the legitimate road-directions signs and an excuse to all? Governments and municipalities can to a large extent control the placing of signs on the highways right-of-way. Owners of property can control the erection of billboards and the plastering of signs on private property and buildings.

Our cities and towns can do a large deal to make their respective communities attractive to the visitor and special attention should be devoted to the approaches to the main roads leading into and out of each settlement. The main street is all important but it is not the most important by a long way. Visitors are attracted to the main street because they are obliged to. They are attracted to the by-streets by curiosity. They are interested in the by-streets for 12 days, causing 6,000 days' time lost.

ST. VITUS DANCE SUFFERER MADE WELL

Nerves Strengthened Through the Use Of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Time after time cases are brought to the notice of the public where sufferers from nervous troubles have been restored to health by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills where victims of St. Vitus Dance have found relief through the use of these pills after other treatments have failed to be of benefit. The reason for this is that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood—they make new, rich red blood that reaches every part of the body, drives from the blood straighten the nerves and make St. Vitus Dance impossible.

Mrs. P. Donnelly, Montreal, Que., is another woman who gladly testifies to aid her testimony to those who are suffering as she was. "Our little girl, aged eleven, was a great sufferer from St. Vitus Dance. Several doctors prescribed for her without any benefit. She was in this condition for two weeks still no benefit. I then saw an advertisement recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for St. Vitus Dance, so decided to try them. We got a box and they taken a couple of boxes when I noticed a change for the better. She is now entirely free from the trouble and I can enjoy herself as other children do. I cannot say too much in praise of Dr. Williams Pink Pills to anyone suffering from St. Vitus Dance, either in this form of nervous trouble, for what these Pills have done for my daughter I am sure they will do for others."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Needs Assistance Of Engineers

To Secure the Best Social and Economical Development In Canada.

"We went west and now we are going northward," said Brigadier-General Charles Hamilton Mitchell, who has been appointed by Canada to the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, at Washington. General Mitchell has charge of results of improvement in transportation, in development of hydro-electric energy, among the people of the Dominion.

The general informed the members of the society that because of the importance to Canada of the development of transportation by land, water and air of the Dominion as a result of the mechanization of the agricultural industry, of the "miracle" wheat, and the extraordinary mining development

"Looking to the future," he continued, "I expect to see a range in Canada with its huge natural resources, will still more demand the patient assistance and coordination from its engineers to secure the best economical and social development. Where that best is obtained than the best political and cultural results will be assured."

Skill Of Mail Pilots

No Wonder They Are Considered Aristocrats Of Air

The skill and hardihood of the pilots who fly the air mail are almost beyond belief, sometimes

Not long ago Pilot Robert P. Hyde flying a National Air transport plane from Chicago to Cleveland with a heavy cargo of mail, left Cleveland. The fog was so dense that he did not find the airport, and he circled helplessly for an hour and a half.

At last he made out a hole in the fog. Circling low he spied a field to park with a little open space in the centre. Down he came to make a safe landing on a patch of lawn so small that in the morning it will be necessary to take the wings of the plane off to get it out through the trees.

Still the fact that hardly needs any comment. No wonder the air mail pilots are considered the aristocrats of the air."

A Remarkable Record

To cross the Atlantic twice every year on the White Star liner Olympic since the steamer began service more than 25 years ago, is the record of Mrs. M. F. Wilcox, an American resident of Larchmont, N.Y., who has arrived at Halifax on her 50th crossing. Her first ocean trip was made on the maiden eastbound voyage of the Baltic!

The name April is derived from a Latin word meaning "to open."

A Modern Fog Alarm

Portrider Inland Signal Employs Power From Diesel Engines

The Portrider Inland lighthouse and signal station at the entrance to Portrider Inland harbor, on the northwest coast of Vancouver Island, is one of the most modern lighthouses in the world with the most future devices for the protection of ships and their passengers. In all probability it is the only lighthouse in the world which employs the electric power from a Diesel engine to operate its fog alarm. It is also the first lighthouse in Canada to employ a radio beacon, which is operated by the Diesel engine. The lighthouse is also equipped with a wireless telephone which enables the keepers to keep in touch with the mainland and receive weather reports.

The fog alarm is a Nautophone, which is a new type of siren. It is operated by compressed air, which is supplied by the Diesel engine. The fog alarm is so powerful that it can be heard for a distance of 15 miles in clear weather. The radio beacon is also operated by the Diesel engine. All Baby Chicks Can Be Raised If Properly Looked After

"There is no sense in the idea so many people have, that you have to figure on losing a big percentage of your baby chicks," says F. F. Clardy, former president of the American Baby Chick Raisers' Association, and for thirty-five years a practical poultry raiser. "Start with good vigorous chicks from healthy stock, properly hatched in modern incubators. Give them the right kind of care and feed, protect them from chilly winds and rains and from vermin and parasites, and there is no reason why you should not practically every baby chick.

"In all my years of experience, I have found that, aside from the very important factor of starting with a quality of chick in the first place, the most important of the poultry raising is to give the birds the care they are entitled to. A baby chick is a baby chick, be it will grow when it gets a good start!

"I have found that strict attention to keeping the chicks free from poultry absolutely clean is a great help. Filth spreads disease! Cleanliness opposed to disease. Disease-germs must be guarded against also.

"So long as the Chinese doctor keeps his germs well, the chicks, they say, he gets his pay regularly. Whenever they become ill, his pay stops until he cures them well again. Consider yourself your own poultry doctor. So long as your baby chicks are healthy they will pay you; consequently, it is up to your interest to keep them well all the time.

Not Properly Qualified

Toronto Professor Says Universities Not Equipped To Study International Relations

Canadian universities are not sufficiently qualified for an adequate study of international law and international relations, Prof. Norman MacKenzie, of the University of Toronto, told the House of Commons committee on industrial and international relations. He knew of no university in Canada, he said, which had a library equipped for the intensive pursuit of these studies.

The committee was considering a resolution sponsored by Miss Agnes MacPhail (Prog. South-east Grey), calling for the establishment of chairs and scholarships of international relations in Canadian universities. There was a field in Canada for improvement in this respect.

Prof. MacKenzie thought parliament might well consider aiding either by grants or other means.

If the libraries were available Professor MacKenzie thought, the studies would be developed by the universities and the students themselves.

Another suggestion he advanced was that competent professors and students in Canadian universities be given greater opportunities to observe the operations of international business.

Preserving Historic Building

Alberta May Restore Old Fur House Built In 1795

Old Fort Edmonton, built 135 years ago inside an 18-foot stockade, may see partial restoration, according to the statement of Premier Brownlee in the Alberta legislature. The last building to be pulled down was the old fur-house, which until 1915, stood on the ground below the legislature. The proposal seems at present concerned only with setting up a log structure two storeys high, identical with this fur-house, which goes back to the time when John Rowland was chief factor, between 1835 and 1854. Interest is being shown in the possible erection of a replica of the whole layout of the early fort.

New Industry For Canada

Eighteen Varieties Of Soybean Can Be Cultivated In Dominion

Canadian farmers are finding a new opportunity in the cultivation of the Soybean. During 1929 soybean oil and other products to a value of nearly $1,000,000 were imported by Canadian industries. Experimental work conducted by the Dominion Department of Agriculture shows that eighteen varieties can be successfully cultivated in Canada. It grows under conditions that meet conditions as corn, and generally speaking, can be grown anywhere corn grows, and with about the same results.

EMIGRATION TO CANADA SHOWS BIG INCREASE

London, Eng.—Emigration to Canada has increased more than 25 per cent. during the past four years, although emigration to Australia generally has shown a considerable falling off since 1928, it was disclosed in the House of Commons.

Hon. W. R. Smith, parliamentary secretary of the Board of Trade, in reply to a question, stated that emigration to Canada had increased year by year, namely from 49,632 in 1926, to 68,258 in 1929, while Board of Trade figures showed the aggregate emigration to Canada, Australia, New Zealand and Australia had decreased from about 119,000 in 1926 to about 84,000 in 1929.

The colonial office also was questioned with regard to Dominion emigration, Dr. Drummond Shiels, parliamentary under-secretary, stating he would circulate detailed figures later. He give the same figures as Mr. Smith for Dominion emigration generally, stating emigration to Canada

Voluntary Missionary and Family Stranded In Motor Boat

Miller and his family, the youngest of whom was seven months old, started out from Bocas Del Toro, Panama, Feb. 19, in a small motor boat. Six days later they ran out of fuel while only a short distance from their objective.

For days after that he watched for craft which might help him to get to Colon. Twice he attempted passing the boats with a small flag he had with him, but was unable to make himself seen. The "Patria" sighted him about three miles off Colon and brought the party of 12 to port.

The Millers are a family of "voluntary missionaries." They left Jacksonville in June, 1925, for a cruise through the West Indies, and in the course of their trip they founded the mission "Church of God" on the Isle of Pines, Cuba.

Premier Protects Auto Industry

Paris.—From ten to 60 per cent. higher tariffs on United States automobiles become effective under a bill passed by the chamber of deputies and the senate. The government considered that the new tariffs were needed to simplify the customs routine by changing from ad valorem to specific duties. Arguments to the contrary were based upon the theory that the French auto industry needs more protection.

Predicts Early Election

May Be Held This Year, Says Hon. R. B. Bennett

Calgary.—"All appearances point to the calling of a Dominion election before the end of the present year," asserted Hon. R. B. Bennett, on his return to Calgary following adjournment of the Federal House for the Easter recess.

"I notice that one of the government supporters in Edmonton has fixed the date on which an appeal will be made to the people, but I do not think the premier himself has yet determined that point.

"The budget will probably be delivered on the Tuesday after the Easter recess," Mr. Bennett continued, "and there is much conjecture as to what will be contained therein. Suggestions have been made to the agriculturists of Quebec that a tariff will be imposed on fruits and vegetables, and the iron and steel producers have been assured that their industry will receive protection under the new tariff.

"The action of Australia in imposing a quota system to practically prohibit the importation of many commodities is justified by the Australian Government, and the Canadian Government imposed a dumping duty of six cents per pound on importation of butter from Australia after a treaty had been signed between Australian and Canadian Governments agreeing to a duty of that amount on these importations. The whole problem of Australian trade is regarding the attention of the government at the present time."

Tariff Commissioner Retires

Fellow-Workers Of S. A. Russell Held Banquet In His Honor

Ottawa.—A large and representation of the faithful and efficient service which he has given to the Dominion over a period of more than half a century was voiced at a banquet given in honor of James A. Russell, retiring commissioner of tariffs for the department of finance.

The event was signalised by the attendance of friends and fellow-workers of Mr. Russell, from the department of finance, the department of national revenue, the tariff advisory board, and the department of external affairs, who gathered at the Royal Connaught Hotel to do honor to the retiring commissioner.

After serving the country for fifty-three years, during which time he has seen the Dominion with six finance ministers, Mr. Russell now retires on pension under the seventy-five year age provision.

Trouble In British Textile Mills Growing

Workers Fighting Wage Reduction Employers Down Necessary Tools

London, Eng.—Day by day the prospects of a long stoppage of work in the Lancashire textile industries seem to be growing and it is now feared unless the government steps in a country-wide lock-out is imminent with a European police service to save an industry employing over a million persons.

Already the employers' association of the Federated Textile Industries, the official body of the employers, has declared a lock-out in the cotton industry, affecting 150,000 workers, and the Amalgamated Weavers' Association has announced a strike of 100,000 workers.

Should the lock-out and strike take place, it is estimated that 1,000,000 persons will be affected.

The employers' association has declared that the lock-out will be necessary unless the workers accept a reduction in wages of 6½ per cent.

It must be remembered that the price of cotton goods has fallen to a very low level, and that the cotton industry is in a bad way. The employers have been trying to reduce their costs in order to meet the competition of other countries, and the workers have refused to accept the reduction in wages.

The employers' association has declared that the lock-out will be necessary unless the workers accept a reduction in wages of 6½ per cent.

Plans Return Next Year

Kaye Don Fared Many Difficulties In Trial For Speed Record

New York.—Kaye Don's first attempt to smash the world automobile speed mark on the sands of Daytona Beach is over but the dapper Britt Englishman with the bristly blonde mustache will be back again for another go at it next year.

It has been anything but a pleasant expedition for the debonair king of British automotive racers who set forth like a schoolboy on a holiday two months ago to crack Sir Henry Segrave's mark of 231 miles an hour in the massive Silver Bullet built especially for him by the Sunbeam Motor Car Company. Two days after Don battled a set of coughing motors and the unusually rough Daytona sands without coming closer to the record than 198 miles an hour.

Canadians Well Informed

Are Acquainted With Public Affairs Says Lord Willingdon

Vancouver.—The difficulties of a governor-general who is being constantly asked to deliver addresses and yet is surrounded by limitations in what he may say, were good-humouredly referred to by His Excellency Lord Willingdon in addressing a luncheon of service clubs here.

Speaking of the work of service clubs and of the opportunity they offered for the study of public affairs, Lord Willingdon expressed his opinion "that the citizens of Canada are perhaps better informed on public affairs than citizens of any other country. I wish that in my country we had more of these organizations so that the citizens of my country would know more of empire affairs than they do now."

Special Survey Discloses Substantial Reductions In North Dakota

Washington, D.C. — Governor George F. Schafer, of North Dakota, and John L. Coulter, chief economist of the tariff commission, told Chairman Alexander Legge that substantial reductions in both hard and durum spring wheat acreages may be expected in North Dakota and seedings some time ago by a special survey made by Coulter.

Mills eastern section of North Dakota, the planting would be expected to reduce its acreage of Durum wheat more than the 18 per cent. indicated by the Department of Agriculture. The reduction of hard spring wheat in the western section will be less, but of considerable importance.

Britain Acts On Liquor Shipments

Will Introduce Bill To Safeguard Interests Of Life

London, Eng.—The House of Commons, by a vote of 213 to 142, gave a Liberal member leave to introduce a bill to entitle the board of trade to suspend or cancel the certificate of any master, mate or engineer engaging in the illicit importation of intoxicating liquor into United States territory.

After Isaac Foot, Liberal member from Cornwall, had spoken for ten minutes introducing the measure, Frederick L. Macquitten, Conservative member from Argyll and a lawyer who for many years professionally for the liquor trade, opposed the bill in a speech filled with humorous remarks.

MANY INJURED DURING SERIOUS RIOT IN INDIA

Calcutta, India.—Nineteen persons were injured in heavy fighting between Mohammedans and police in the Bhowanipore fifth quarter of Calcutta. Tram cars were burned in both districts and Bombay armoured cars patrolled the streets of the latter city when students and carters joined in the attempt to stop retail motor traffic by obstructing motor-cars and tram-lines.

The European officers were among the injured at Calcutta. A European woman cycling in the district was forced to dismount and hurled from the machine when she was stoned by the crowd. She received many gashes.

Mr. Khaki In Parliament

There were unconfirmed reports of firing in North Calcutta. Armed police were on duty throughout the affected area and armoured cars were active.

Several British officials were injured by the time the situation was brought under control. Two members of a South African cricket team injured when a European police service to save an industry employing over a million persons.

Establishes New Speed Record

Pilot Buchanan Makes Fast Flight From Winnipeg To Regina

Regina.—A flight from Winnipeg to Regina in two hours and 45 minutes, establishing a new speed record for that leg of the Western Canada air mail service, was made by Pilot W. J. Buchanan on April 13, in a Fokker F-14 machine

He left Winnipeg at 9.05 p.m. (Winnipeg time), or 8.05 p.m. Regina time, and arrived here at 10.50 p.m. (Regina time).

There was a 25-mile an hour wind blowing from the southeast during most of the flight, but unfavorable weather made it necessary for him to "fly blind" from Brandview to Regina. The total distance is 320 miles

Surveyed Air Mail Routes

Superintendent Of Airways Returns To Ottawa From West

Ottawa.—Making a two-day stop-over flight from High River, Alberta to the cap'tal, Squadron Leader J. H. Parkes, superintendent of airways for the civil aviation branch, has returned from a survey of air mail routes in Western Canada. The return flight of approximately 2,200 miles was made in 17 hours and 5-minutes flying time. Five stops were made

Major Tudhope's survey had as its purpose an investigation of suitable routes for the final links in Western Canada of the trans-Canada Air Mail Service, to be completed in the near future.

Impressed With Bay Port

Development At Churchill Was Surprise To Premier Bracken

The Pas, Man.—Churchill will probably not be thrown open to the public this year is the opinion of Premier John Bracken, who has returned from his first visit to the northern seaport.

Mr. Bracken stated it would seem unwise to open it to the public as no provision has as yet been made for public utilities other than those for the government men who will be employed there this year

Premier Bracken stated he was impressed with the magnitude of the development at Churchill

PROPORTIONAL REPRESENTATION VOTING SYSTEM

Ottawa.—Proportional representation, which now is occupying the attention of the Alberta legislature and of the opposition members as well, is not a new subject to Ottawa. In the House of Commons, for instance, Premier Mackenzie King in 1874 asked the government to give the matter consideration and said the progress made during the session with domestic questions of such a character.

In 1921 a measure to introduce proportional representation was passed by the House of Commons, but was not presented to the senate. Again in 1924 the matter was brought up in the house of commons, but was not presented to the senate. Again in 1926 the matter was brought up in the house of commons, but was not presented to the senate.

It must be remembered that in practically every election in single member constituencies there are more than two candidates and frequently the successful candidate receives less than a majority of the votes cast. Proportional representation would enable the electors to express their second choice, and in the event of the candidate for whom they voted first not being elected, their second choice would be counted. Proportional representation would also enable minorities to be represented in the house of commons. Under the present system minorities are frequently left entirely unrepresented.

Chancellor Of Exchequer Announces Tariff Changes In British House

Ottawa.—Tariff experts of the Dominion Government are loath to admit that the tariff changes announced by Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, in the British House of Commons, are general opinion expressed is that they will not seriously affect Canadian trade, the fact that the British Empire remains on motor cars, motion picture films and musical instruments is a big factor in favor of Canada.

The removal of the McKenna duties would have wiped out the advantage which Canada has had over the United States in the British market but the preference would be allowed to remain. WORK OF NAVAL PARLEY GIVEN IN WHITE PAPER

London, Eng. Parliament has received a "white paper" which summarized the work achieved thus far by the London naval conference

Among other points Premier Mackenzie stated the tonnage reductions negotiated under the London agreement, in addition to the "white paper" also Important as are these financial savings set a more important result of this first stage of the London conference has been the elimination of competitive building in the most substantial categories between the British Commonwealth, the United States and Japan with all that this implies in mutual improvement of their political relations.

Figures on agreement between those powers have been placed at a level which will in the current type of His Majesty's government that during the next stage of the conference the agreements so reached will be the French and Italian governments at least which will permit these powers to enter the treaty being negotiated in the agreement already reached between the other powers

After signature of the treaty the conference will adjourn in order to give further time for negotiations necessary to secure the Italian government's assent with view to settlement of the difficulties which as yet prevent that government's adherence

These negotiations may be prolonged until it is necessary that decisions should be taken on matters which are not immediately connected with the remain in London while the conference is proceeding. It is for this reason that adjournment has been decided upon."

Mr. Frank Lawes is leaving today en route to England where he will reside in future. Before sailing he will spend a few days with Chas. Hedges, a farmer neighbor, at Haan Sons, Ontario. It is 36 years since Mr Lawes disposed of his business interests in the old country and with Mrs Lawes, lately deceased, came to Canada and settled in Wetaskin (but not where they spent many happy years, later moving to Vermilion. The severing of old associations is hard for Mr Lawes, but being now alone, near relatives have finally persuaded him to return to England to spend what we all trust — may be many years of happiness and good health. All wish him bon voyage and a joyful reunion with members of the family.

The Ladies' Aid of the First Presbyterian church will hold a Tea and Sale of Home Cooking and Fancy Sewing at the church hall on Saturday afternoon, May 10th from 2 to 4 o' clock. Proceeds being date open. 50-2c

Vermilion Plans Big Farm Meeting

Hundreds of New Settlers to Discuss Methods and Problems

Plans are already pretty well advanced for the holding in July next of what probably will be one of the largest gatherings of farmers ever held at Vermilion. The gathering will comprise the colonists that have settled in the district within the past two or three years under the auspices of the Nelson's Bay and Canadian Pacific railways.

The use of the exhibition grounds has been secured and arrangements will be made with the department of agriculture for an inspection of the school of agriculture, the dormitory, farm buildings and the farms generally. On the grounds addresses will be given by prominent speakers including members of the government and representatives of the colonizing organizations. The rest of the day will be given over to sports and athletic events.

The idea of bringing these settlers together is, in addition to making the occasion a get-together one, to familiarize them with farm methods used at the school farm and also hear addresses on various phases of agricultural activities.

Hundreds of the settlers have signified their intention of being present. These will come from a radius of at least fifty miles. It will be the first effort to have these new settlers meet to discuss and hear discussed what should prove of common interest to them.

Mail Plane Forced Down

Snow and Rain Disrupts Service

The large mail plane of the Western Airways was forced down here on Monday while en route to Edmonton. The plane had reached Clarenore when it ran into a snow storm also encountering rain for most of the route. The pilot returned to Vermilion and landed on the School of Agriculture property immediately behind that institution's buildings. The plane was of a large type, containing a cabin and capable of carrying six passengers. It was exceptionally well equipped. The mail was delivered by the pilot to the local post office, who also wired headquarters to have other planes use the south route. The mail plane was forced down on Friday at Lloydminster by a heavy snow storm.

Wheat Already Up In District

While some farmers have not yet got nicely started on their seeding owing to being pessimistic over moisture conditions, others have their wheat seeding completed and some of it is already up. Wheat has been above the ground for nearly a week on the farms of Geo. Dolman and W. E. McCrae and doubtless by this time many other farmers have wheat up also.

Farewell Party And Presentation To Mr. Lawes

A farewell party in the Anglican Parish Hall was tendered Mr Frank Lawes on Wednesday evening last on the eve of his departure for England, where he will in future live

From 8.30 to 10 p.m bridge and whist games were played after which the Rector spoke of the departure of Mr Lawes and expressed the feeling of regret that all present had in their minds that after such a long connection with Vermilion and the Parish of St. Saviour's, the guest of the evening was about to leave the district. As a faithful and regular attendant and communicant they would sorely miss him Mr. J. W. G. Morrison, also spoke, testifying to Mr Lawes' high character and recalling incidents that had happened during the last twenty years or so.

The Rector then presented Mr Lawes with a handsome case of ebony backed hair brushes and a silver Waterman pen given by a few older friends of Mr Lawes and adds thereto short reply was made by Mr Lawes. A very quite yet enjoyable function terminated in the refreshments partaken of

Cause For National Gratification

Profound satisfaction will be felt by the people of Western Canada in common with the rest of the world, in the successful outcome of the Five Power naval conference in London, England. That satisfaction is all the greater, and the feeling of relief more pronounced, because of the many predictions freely made during the progress of the conference that its results would be nil, and quite abortive in the realization of the hopes in which it was conceived.

Because there were many conflicting viewpoints to be reconciled, many difficulties to be overcome, and the conference ran on month after month, the pessimists told an anxiously awaiting world that nothing would be accomplished because nothing could be; that the nations were still so suspicious of each other that they were afraid to disarm in even the slightest degree, that the old game was still being played with each nation trying to get some advantage at the expense of others.

But with the signing of the agreement by the three greatest naval powers, and acceptance of a portion of the agreement by the next two navy powers, the dire prophecies of the pessimists have been proven foundationless. Instead, the splendid optimism and constructive statesmanship of Premier Ramsay MacDonald have triumphed, and a great forward step taken along the road to permanent world peace.

After a world war lasting more than four years, why should people have become discouraged and foremen failure become a period of three months required in discussion of the many knotty problems confronting the naval conference before a solution was found?

The British Commonwealth of Nations, the United States of America, and the Empire of Japan have found themselves whereby they undertake to reduce their naval armaments and expenditures and voluntarily impose restrictions on themselves. The number, size and armament of ships of war is limited. And who, a few short years ago would have imagined it possible, all five powers agree that no capital ships will be given to each by all the others "when it is building" in replacement of obsolete, abandoned and destroyed ships. This is not preparation for war, but for the maintenance of peace.

But the great achievement of the conference is not to be found so much in the actual reductions decided upon, or the limitations of actions voluntarily assumed, as it is in the spirit of mutual confidence that the parley of friendly consultation between nations has been given an impetus which will undoubtedly grow. This more than anything else must fill the world with hope for the future.

The conference has also established beyond all possibility of dispute that, no matter how far the leaders of a nation may be prepared to go in the matter of disarmament, they can only proceed as far as public opinion of their home will support them in going. The belief is general that the conference would have gone to even greater lengths in d'armament had the various representatives there felt assured of support at home, and that their very willingness to make concessions would not be used to overthrow the whole project when referred for final ratification by their national assemblies.

Has great lesson of the conference to all peace-loving people is, therefore, the vital authority of an awakened and informed public opinion in every land on the awful subject of war and preparation for war, rather than preparation for peace. Once again has it been demonstrated by this great conference that no Government can move very far in advance of public opinion, no matter how laudable may be the motives by which it is inspired or praiseworthy the object sought to be attained.

It's the rank and file, the great mass of the people who must become peace-minded. It is the masses who must be informed and taught to shed their suspicions and animosities. The most ardent advocates of peace in the peoples of all nations become, the more quickly will their recognized leaders and responsible statesmen write these wishes into solemn agreements and binding treaties.

Canadians, perhaps more than any other people in the world, have cause for thankfulness and rejoicing in the reaching of a naval understanding between the British Commonwealth of Nations, the United States and Japan. We are part and parcel of the British Commonwealth, while our nearest neighbors are the United States and Japan. With the former we have much in common, while with the latter by reason of our geographical position we must have ever increasing intercourse. Furthermore, any misunderstanding between the United States and Japan could hardly fail to react with injury to us. That all are in accord is cause for deep gratification in Canada.

Should Finish Studies In Canadian University

British Students Who Settle Here Would Find It Helpful

British students who wish to settle in Canada should complete their studies in Canadian universities. The wish to the conclusion arrived at by Dr. Cyril Norwood, headmaster of Harrow, and chief of the party of headmasters of British public schools who are now touring Canada.

Dr. Norwood has based his conclusions on a study of the Canadian universities he privately visited in Quebec and the Maritimes. He hoped the future would see more Canad an students at Oxford, Cambridge and London, but felt the most important requisite for success in Canada was training in a Canadian university. There was a movement on foot, he said, to make the University of London the research centre of the empire.

Africa Has Aerial Studio

Plane Was Especially Built For Mapping Country

Built especially for the photographing of an area of 63 000 square miles in Northern Rhodesia, an airplane is soon to be put into commission. The machine is literally an aerial photographic studio. It can be flown at a height of 20 000 feet and remain at this altitude for seven and one-half hours, while the pilot and photographer map the country below. As most of the flights will be over a wild country the plane has two engines so that if one fails the other will carry the machine to safety

Milk will shortly be on sale by the foot, following important experiments at a Danish farm.

It has been found that when the natural cream is withdrawn from cows' milk the remaining pulpy substance can be rolled into sheets similar in appearance to paper.

When required in liquid form it is simply dissolved in boiling water and its strength gauged by the amount of water added.

COWES HER HEALTH TO PINK PILLS

This Weak Anaemic Woman Now Rejoices in Health and Strength

It is a scientific fact that nearly all the ills that afflict women are due to poor, thin blood. This anaemia is the one cause of low spirits and languidness, of pale appetite, breathlessness and sick headache that make life a burden for so many women. But sufferin women could banish all these miseries by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for by this means new rich blood is given to the whole body. Mrs. Thomas Hines, Quebec, who says: "Before taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was in a badly run down condition. I suffered from all the most disorders, had frequent headaches and the least exertion would leave me breathless and worn out My brother advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and got for me six boxes. Almost from the first I noticed an improvement in my condition, and as I continued taking the pills my blood became better and I steadily grew stronger, till today I can anywhere the best of health. I am now able to do all my housework and feel that I owe my health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I unhesitatingly recommend them to any one in need of new health."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at any dealer or they will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box by writing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Canada Has Exclusive Method

Quality Of Canned Goods Must Be Marked On Label

Canada is the only country in the world so far as is known where the quality of canned goods to be clearly marked on the label so that the housewife can tell by the grade or class what she is getting what she wants. Under the provisions of the Meat and Canned Foods Act administered by the Food Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, there are four quality grades, namely: "Choice," "Standard," and "Second." "Always buy by the quality mark" is a slogan can now be applied to home buying with a real value.

Has No Known Parallel

Two British Families Have Produced Outstanding Men For Generations

The name of Arthur James Balfour recalls the fact that for centuries two British families have produced men of outstanding power generation—the Cecils and the Churchills. There is no known parallel for this in any other land or, in any other age.

The Pitts, father and son, were premiers of England, and ruled there, and of practically all other men of note in the old land the Cecils have not attained any other honor save that of carrying a big name.

If it be true that the mother transmits mentality, then the Cecil and Churchill men must have an uncanny claim to selecting unusual wives.

Boosting For Canada

Many Cities In Britain Have Held "Canada Week"

There has not been much said in Canada recently about the city of Bristol's "Canada Week," and the event should have been taken more notice of than it has.

Bristol is a city of 400,000 people. It has just had a "Canada Week," which consisted of a campaign for the buying of goods made in Canada. Pages of newspaper advertising Canadian products, window displays of Canadian merchandise, and other forms of publicity were given to one week's effort, and the cumulative results must have meant the selling of many thousands of dollars worth of goods. London has had a similar drive. Sales of Canadian goods to Bristol purchasers for the first four days of the campaign totalled £20,000, which, with a population of over a million, and several other big cities, have held "Canada Weeks," and Cardiff to come, is a large amount of permanent benefit from them.

Such gestures of good-will deserve the practical approval of Canadians. There is a great deal more boosting which is considered

There will be a meeting in Smith's hall on May 16th at 8.30 p.m. We see several notices up around such as these:

There will be a meeting of our debaters

On May the 10th and not a day later

The meeting will start along about 8, So bring all your family

But don't you be late.

We're having a debate that ble in the city

Is better than country; I know it's a pity

So come and hear Dahl, he's got something to say

How we can improve our own U.F.A.

We've also Tom Hudson with his few of good speech,

And when he gets started we know how he can preach:

We've also a lecture coming from Doc, He wouldn't say a thing your modesty to shock.

And just to finish up, if there's time for a story,

You'll hear all about it from our chairman, Bill Davey

So come one and all, this may be your last chance;

Turn out on that night as if you were going to a dance

Say, did you ever hear about Semple's black cow?

(No, I don't know as I did)

Well, he hasn't got her now.

But somebody says she's coming to our debate—Whoopee!

She's a live 'un!

BROWNIE NOTES

Owing to the holidays, and many being away, only eleven Brownies came to the meeting on Friday and several mothers. We are very pleased to see the mothers any time they like to come. Four Brownies were initiated and received their pins. We played games, sang songs, and marched. Brownies, please remember it is musical afternoon next Friday, and bring bells.

NEWS FROM DEWBERRY

People who still adhere to the old belief that the moon has almost absolute control of the weather have their faith in the ability of the queen of night to regulate terrestrial atmospheric conditions badly shaken during those last few months. All the noticeable changes in the weather records have occurred at periods not coincident with lunar changes. Astronomers and meteorologists agree that the moon, sundogs, sarners borealis and other well known natural phenomena have nothing to do with the weather.

The snow storm of Friday last and which came about midway between two phases of the moon, was very welcome, irrespective of its origin, and will be of inestimable value to the farmer.

Miss Vera Kenst, teacher of Rye school, has been operated on for appendicitis at Elk Point hospital, and is reported to be coming on finely.

Mrs. McGillivray of the Clandonald district has had a similar operation at the Vermilion hospital and will soon be home again.

Miss Alice Smith, nurse in an Edmonton hospital and her sister Rhena, teacher at Wainwright, spent the Easter holidays with the former of their parents. Mr. and Mrs. James Smith, and left Dewberry for their respective stations on Saturday.

A large truck load of furniture arrived here a few days ago for the new office about to be opened by Dr. Knapp of Islay. The attendance of a doctor here at regular intervals will be a great boon to the community.

It is rumored that an ice cream parlor and confectionery will be installed in another Main St. building, new rumor.

The vast majority of the ratepayers of the newly-formed village school district favor the building of a two-room school as soon as possible so as to have it ready for opening in September.

BEAUTIFYING THE FARM HOME

(Experimental Farms Note)

Every unimproved or unplanted home in Canada can be made more attractive and valuable by the planting of trees, shrubs, vines and flowers, and a well kept lawn. The cost of the nursery stock required is one of the most profitable investments a farmer can possibly make, because such improvements will actually increase the money value of the place by many times the amount spent in a simple plan of home planting. It will make it more valuable as a home and it will certainly command a better price if put up for sale. It is surprising how a few improvements will turn a mere house into a real home in addition to its increased monetary value the attractive farm home goes a long way in holding the family together; in keeping the young people on the farm. They will love their home and be proud to bring in their friends.

Some may say that it costs too much or that it takes too much time to care for flowers and shrubs. It is, however, more a matter of disposition than cost or time or money. The farmer who is disposed to have flowers and attractive home surroundings will have them, no matter how busy he may be. Canadian farms should be more than just farms, they should be homes in the country.

SECRETARY CANADIAN BIBLE SOCIETY SPEAKS HERE FRIDAY

A public meeting will be held in the Presbyterian church (former Baptist church) on Friday this week, May 2nd, at 8 p.m., when the Rev. J. R. Armour, M.A., of Toronto, general secretary of Canada for the Canadian Bible Society, will give an address.

There will also be several musical numbers contributed by local talent. Come and have an enjoyable evening.

A MENACE TO HEALTH

Our old enemy the House Fly will soon be with us again. He never fails to come around when the warm weather arrives. To many people and to cause trouble seems to be his special aim in life. From the baby's face to father's bald head, to the milk pitcher and to the food are some of his journeys well known to all of us. Yet in spite of this, and possibly because he is seen too often, it is doubtful if many of us ever fully realize the danger and filthy habits of this common pest.

The house fly lays her eggs (120 at one time) in fresh horse manure. She prefers it, but she will use any heap of garbage or filth. With a very short incubation (3 weeks) period it can be seen how rapidly flies will multiply if they are not controlled. Naturally the best way to control the fly is to destroy the eggs or maggots before they ever wings are developed and they can move about rapidly.

Why is it necessary to destroy flies and keep them from hatching? Flies can carry disease germs; they are all dirty in the extreme. The legs of flies are provided with a large many (100) hairs or bristles and, as the fly walks over filth containing disease germs, some of these are collected and (held by the hairs. When the fly goes again to take a drink from the milk or touches some of the food germs will be left behind in the milk or on the food. When these are swallowed later with the food by the baby or anyone else, they may cause such diseases as typhoid, diarrhoea, dysentery, or other illness.

Experiments with the house fly prove that it can be best controlled by sprinkling the infested parts of the manure with a 5 p.c. solution of Lyman's Disinfectant. One gallon of disinfectant makes 225 gallons of the solution and costs about 50c per year per horse. The solution should be applied about every second day or sufficient often to ensure that all maggots are destroyed.

For the few that will escape this treatment, a cone trap should be employed. Placed in a sunny place, with tasty bait such as molasses and water the flies will enter and out of those left. Write to the Red Cross Society for free literature, 407 Civic Block, Edmonton.

At the Monday meeting the leaders felt like the old woman who lived in the shoe, there were so many Guides everywhere. Even at that we missed the crowing of some of the little Bantams. THE GIANT AND THE DWARF

Overshadowed by the tons of steel snaking up the mountain that has succeeded it, "Curly," as the engine is still affectionately known among veteran railwaymen, stands alongside a modern Canadian Pacific locomotive and measures only as long as the latter's cab and tender. Nevertheless, "Curly", the lofty-funnelled wood-burner of pioneer days, can claim a record seldom approached anywhere in the world for long life, sturdiness and endurance.

"Curly" was brought to British Columbia in 1871 and W. H. (Bill) Evans (inset), engineer of the first Canadian Pacific passenger train to reach Port Moody in 1885, says it was built in a San Francisco machine shop and later aided Count de Lesseps in the Panama Canal region, not to mention construction work in Peru. Sixty years of arduous work left their mark on "Curly", but now the engine after a thorough refitting at the Canadian Pacific Vancouver shops, is to be exhibited at the Vancouver Exhibition in August, as a museum piece of the early days.

Bill Evans was called out of retirement for purposes of this picture and gladly donned the old overalls again to show himself once more to become alongside "Curly".

School re-opened on Monday and things are in full swing again.

We had our party on the Wednesday before school closed and it was a very good one. All enjoyed it.

Doris Irvin has entered school for the last term.

Holidays worked vengeance on several pupils; Roberta Wilson is still ill but George Schurman is better after his operation. We notice George seated to think the hospital and the attendants there very attractive. His eyes turn lovingly westward.

The long delayed trip to Mansville to play ball is still in the future. We will get there some day.

We heard a funny remark passed in school several times school opened. It was "The holidays weren't half long enough!"

CLEAN UP DAY ON MONDAY, MAY 5TH

Everyone Expected to Clean Up Their Own Property

Although no big drive will be organized this year on "old man dirt" throughout the town, everyone is asked to clean up their own property on Monday and as much adjacent land as possible, and to pile the rubbish in the lanes where it will be picked up and carried away by mass meetings. Mayor Fellow is making provision to have a supply of the latter on hand Arbor Day, Monday. All leaders of the different names in the clean up drive last year have again been asked to officiate in that capacity by Chairman Harper of the Chamber of Commerce and they will interview all property holders in their district regarding the clean up.

Clean up on Arbor Day, May 5th and keep it up throughout the rest of the year.

It is suggested that beer parlors may have to close between six and seven-thirty each evening. Is rather hard on thirsty workmen who have been late for dinner too often.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

The Troop had a very enjoyable hike last Sunday afternoon, but there was an absence of skills in our cup of tea.

Many of the Scouts have passed their Second Class, Signalling, Fire Lighting and Cooking tests during the past week. Patrol Leader Brown and Second Brincombe made a very good showing in their First Class Cooking test. Scouts Tatham and J. Brincombe have passed their second cooking tests.

On Tuesday evening there were 39 boys on parade when points were awarded for knowledge of the Scout Laws, Kim's Game, Relays, etc.

We expect a church parade in the near future and ask the boys to get their uniforms in shape. Points will be awarded for church attendance and also for attendance at hikes.

The funniest thing seen in the Troop this week was a prominent member of the Coyote Patrol (very) admitting that he was last to fall in.

CONQUERED BY A SONG

Lands have been secured by fire and sword, but the west coast of Vancouver Island has the unique distinction of being won by a song. The Spanish explorer who led an expedition against it in 1790, so charmed the heart of the warlike Maquinna, Lord of the Nootkas, with a theme song which he composed for the occasion, that the Indian made him welcome and gave him jurisdiction over the Sound and the Islands. Since that date the coast of Vancouver Island has become the rendezvous of ships from all over the world. Within easy reach of Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle, it yet offers the attraction of territory up to now given over to primitive conditions and a paradise of deep sea fishing, sport and tourist spots. As it was when the Spaniards first sighted it, so it virtually is today. Canadian Pacific steamships of the British Columbia Coast service travel up and down this coast, and make it easily and comfortably accessible to visitors. Large ships of the Canadian Pacific coastal vessel "Princess Norah" sailing among the islands off the Vancouver Island coast; lower left, Indian parade in village and totem pole with Lord and Lady Willingdon and Captain Jack, Indian Chief.

PRIZE WINNERS IN ESSAY COMPETITION

A few months ago the local branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union undertook a prize-essay contest in the different Sunday schools in town covering a series of lessons on temperance and sponsored by a well-known Montreal weekly paper. The lessons covered a period of ten weeks. A large number of pupils wrote on the examinations, the questions for which were set by the paper. The local examiners were Mrs. J. W. G. Morrison, Mrs. B. M. Hill and Mrs. W. A. Pallow, and the results have just been announced. The first prize in the Junior grade is awarded to Kenneth Hunt of the United Sunday School; the first in the intermediate grade goes to Miss Jean Bell of the Presbyterian School and the first in the senior grade to Matt Brincombe of the United. The presentation of the prizes takes place this week. The essays submitted in the different grades were of high order and the winners have been graciously complimented by the members of the Union.

News For Horse Lovers

Statistics Show They Are Hard To Displace

That farmers all over the world realize the advantages of horses for agricultural work, is shown by the following figures just published by the National Horse Association:

In 1783 the only horses in America were one stallion, three mares and a colt. In 1800 they had increased to 230; in 1850 to 1,050,851, and now there are 2,250,561.

In Great Britain there are 1,304,-188 horses engaged in agriculture.

Despite the enormous depletion of horses in France during the war, there are now 2,000,000 in that country.

Although millions of pounds have been spent in the United States trying to displace them, there are 20,-000,000 horses and mules in the country.

Germany has 3,800,000 horses, excluding those attached to the Army.

Irrigation Project a Success

Value Of Production In Lethbridge Area Greatly Increased

Farmers in the Lethbridge Northern Irrigation Project were very successful in 1929, according to the annual report tabled in the Alberta Legislature by Hon. W. V. The occupied part of the Project is growing each year and now represents about half of the whole.

YOUTHFUL CHARM

All Tingey models are created and sketched in Paris and the patterns are made in New York.

Here's a darling frock for college girls and debutantes. It has a moulded bodice and softly flared skirt . . a style adorable for slim young bodies. The collar and cuffs are charming too, easy to make and yet so fascinating when finished.

Flat silk crepe and wool crepe are lovely for this model, but another suitable and charming medium is marocain.

Imagine, for instance, soft green or scarlet marocain, with organdie ruffled with cream tinted valenciennes to match!

Another extremely pretty way of treating the collar and cuffs is to use organdie with ruffles of narrow matching ribbon. Sometimes this can be purchased with a tiny metal edge which makes a most attractive finish.

Of course a bought collar and cuff set can be worn with this model.

This pattern may be obtained in sizes 14 to 20 and 34 to 38. It is ready for immediate delivery. It is hand cut.

GIVING UP ALL FOR THE KINGDOM

Golden Text: "Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven." — Matthew 6:20.

Lesson: Matthew 19-1-30.

Devotional Reading: Proverbs 4, 1-13.

Explanations and Comments

In Regard To Giving Up All For the Kingdom, verses 16-22.—And behold one, a certain man, came to him. Luke tells us (18:18), came to Jesus with the question, "Teacher, what good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life?" His question was a natural one, for the religious leaders, the rabbis, differed greatly among themselves in their teaching and their practice. "His coming must have been as welcome to Jesus as the visit of the mothers with their children; a man not belonging to the class of self-satisfied religionists of whom he had had ample experience; with moral ingenuousness an open mind, and a good, honest heart; a catechumen probably with the teachings and practice of the rabbis and scribes, coming to the anti-rabbinical Teacher in hope of hearing from Him convictions more satisfying.—A. B. Bruce.

"Why asketh thou Me concerning that which is good? One there is who is good," and to obey His will is to find your right course of action, was Jesus' answer. "But if thou wouldst enter into life, keep the commandments." Jesus further explained (verses 18-19) very naturally quoted the young man, for besides the ten commandments there are many other laws given by Moses and a multitude from the scribes. In answer, Jesus cited the sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth and fifth commandments of the Decalogue, all of them being negative in character, and others, and then added from Lev-iticus 19:18, "and, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." All these things have I observed: what lack I yet?" the young man replied in surprise. Dean Farrar voices the young man's thoughts: "Surely the Great Teacher to whom I have come seeking for some great thing to do, or secret thing to know, cannot possibly give His answer to all! I am to keep these old, simple, elementary Ten Commandments, which I have known ever since I lisped them at my mother's knee! He must mean something far beyond that." Dean Farrar comments: "It was exactly like the child in the Queen who, having been taught to continually about the glory and majesty of the sea, and being led to the seaside said, 'Is that the mighty ocean? Is that all?'"

"If thou wouldst be perfect, go, sell all that thou hast, and give to the poor," answered Jesus. This was the one thing necessary for this man to do, for between him and the love of God, as well as between him and the love of his neighbor, stood the love of possessions, "For he was rich."

Establishing Training Centres For Criminals

English Prison Commissioner Plans To Train Men In Suitable Work

As part of the scheme to reclaim young criminals, the English prison commission will establish a series of training centres, the first of which will be at Nottingham, where men of a special class between the ages of 21 and 28 will be sent. The aim will be to train each man in the work for which he is best suited. The men will work eight hours a day.

Speaking of the scheme, an official of the prison commission said in an interview: "Probably we shall attach some of the men to the building parties and engineers. There will be physical training, and in the evenings educational pursuits."

Further the official said: "Criminals will not be sent to the training centre direct by order of the courts, but will graduate from the prison to the training centre."

Sowing Sweet Clover

"I wonder who wore you," she mused dreamily.

"You must have seemed almost a part of him as the weeks passed and he saw your loneliness unfold. Did he dread the finishing of his task, I wonder, knowing that at its end he must give you up forever? And did he know that when he was only a memory he would live, cherished by some one thousands of miles from its own birthplace?"

She stooped, to brush a hand over the silky surface.

"I think you were woven on an old, old loom," she murmured. "You were, perhaps, the only beautiful thing in some humble room. I think that little children watched you grow, and touched you with small, reverent fingers. I think . . . ."

Charmian stiffened, suddenly conscious that a shadow was lying across the rich wine color of the old rug; and the blood flew to her cheeks as she saw Jim Bennett in the doorway. Then she sprang up, laughing, in real confusion.

"How long have you been there, listening to me go on like that?" she asked.

Jim grinned.

"Not long enough to be called an intentional eavesdropper; but long enough to wonder—"

"Wonder what?" urged Charmian as he paused.

"If you'd gone dotty—making such passionate love to an inanimate object. Is it something new?"

"New!" echoed Charmian in amazement. "Can't you see with a single glance that it's ages old? Oh, Jim! wouldn't it be wonderful to furnish a home with beautiful things like this? Why, just to walk on it seems a—a profanation."

"In that case," commented Jim, seating himself on a corner of the dining table, "you'd better have a 'Stone, Sweet Home' would be a real comfortable retreat. If a faller got hoitered at every time he happened to step on a rug that was in the, way—well you're right, Charmian, the air would be liable to become charged with something related to profanation!"

Charmian laughed. Then her eyes grew troubled, and she questioned: "But you like it, don't you, Jim? You see its beauty?"

The young man, sensing that this question was a serious matter to the girl, looked down at the rug thoughtfully, then up at the window hangings—at the candlesticks upon the mantel, and at last came back to the anxious eyes of his old playmate.

"Yes, I like it, Charmian; but I was wondering if what pleased me wasn't, maybe, just the whole thing. It looks like you, somehow — this room, I mean. That's why I like it, I suppose," he added honestly, "if you were to hang tan-cent muslin at the windows, and put an American rug with a blue dog in the middle of it, Uncle Baker's, on the floor, I'd think it was all right because you said so. In some ways, Charmian, you're a dandy fool."

The girl laughed, though she was secretly touched; and asked: "What do you call the best of the morning?"

A trip over beyond South Wickfield, to see about a mortgage for the bank. Thought you might go with me. It's a lovely day."

"It is," she replied regretfully with a second longing glance toward the open door, "but I've just refused doctor can set it himself; and you mustn't keep Jim waiting. There's such an extra lot of duties."

"Let 'em wait a day longer. If I could call some of those old Arthurs I see a ray of light in the surrounding gloom."

"Better take your mother," suggested Charmian, making an unsuccessful effort to suppress a smile.

"She won't go. I—"

"So I'm second fiddle? I wonder. Jim, will any girl ever be anything else to you."

Instantly, Charmian would have given worlds to recall those words. A look sprang into Jim Bennett's face that brought back an almost forgotten memory—the same look that had swept over his countenance when as a small boy he had been reproved by the teacher because .

In a flash the whole scene came back to her—the old schoolroom with its familiar odor born of chalk and much-thumbed books. Jim, back at the front desk for the first time since his father's funeral—the class standing to read. "O Captain, my Captain,' and a cruel fate bringing to the boy's mind the words:

"My Captain does not answer, his lips are pale and still.
My father does not feel my arm
h- has no pulse or will . . ."

And Jim, white-faced, thin-lipped had refused to read! He had been sent home in disgra... carrying a sharp reprimand from a teacher who saw in his defiant spirit only an unruly little boy. It was Charmian Davis who opened her eyes to the true state of things, when, as the doors closed behind the white-faced culprit, she had burst into a passion of sympathetic tears.

"Don't you see," she sobbed, "he—he couldn't read it without crying? He own father . . . . only the other day . . . . And he couldn't cry right before the whole school, could he? So — so . . . ."

Be it said for the teacher that she erred herself, when brought face to face with her own thoughtlessness. Later she told Grandma Davis that she had received a lesson she never could forget. And now, years afterward, the green room held for Charmian with fresh poignancy, and she knew that somehow, she had hurt the grown-up Jim in the same way he had been hurt on that long-gone day when the teacher misunderstood. Was it possible that she, too, misunderstood him?

Jim, who had thrown his hat on the doctor's desk, reached for it, and, ignoring her careless words, started toward the door. But Charmian, always quick to acknowledge a mistake, barred the way, and the surprised young man felt her hand slip into his.

"Jimmy, I hurt you, didn't I? I don't know what made me such a beast. Just for that I'm going to drop everything and go to ride with you; John Carter can eat cold beans this noon, for all I care! Just wait till I tell Grandma, and—"

Jim laughed, a queer, choky little laugh that she knew came hard.

"Don't be an idiot!" he said. "You haven't hurt me, Charmian; and I won't have you going just for that reason. Honestly, I don't want you to go now. I've got things to mull over in my mind, and you're a disturbing influence. Run along and get your work done. I'm all right."

"But I'm not," smiled the girl, she was gaily propelling him out of the doctor's office and toward the house. "I feel the need of air and sunshine, and it's your duty to see that I get both. You talk with Grandma while I set the dinner table, so I won't feel so hurried to get back."

She was away, leaving him standing at the door of the old parlor where Grandma Davis was keeping her accustomed vigil.

"Hello, sonny," she greeted him. "What you doing away from the bank this time o' day?"

"Running down some interest money," explained Jim. "I've persuaded Charmian that it's too good a day to waste indoors."

"So 'tis," agreed the old lady, "and a ride'll do her a lot of good. I'm hoping maybe she'll get out more often when Doctor Carter sets the car he's ordered. It'll be real natural for him to take her when he rides off in the country, won't it?"

"Too darn natural," replied Jim; then, to change the subject: "What's been happening on Broadway this morning, Grandma?"

"You mean Main Street? Well, I'll admit I've been busy this morning, what with one thing and another; and you must've seen Jim waiting. There's such a mixup in some ways. Charmian, right on the doorstep, and had to step out of it and scurry home. It was worth considerable to see that."

"Gosh! I'll say it was!"

Jim laughed so heartily that Charmian, setting the table in the room beyond, breathed a sigh of relief, and called: "What's happened? Is it so funny?"

"It wasn't funny for Lizzie Baker," replied Grandma. "You leave that table, dearie. If you're late back the doctor can set it himself; and you mustn't keep

RAIN AND SNOW BRIGHTENS CROP OUTLOOK GENERALLY

Also Washes Away Pessimism

The pessimism regarding the crop outlook for 1930 got a severe douche during the past week owing to considerable moisture in the form of both rain and snow falling. Friday last a general lull of exceedingly wet snow swept over the country. This was followed by two days of cloudy weather with temperatures in the minimum and the soil benefitted to the greatest degree. Monday a light rain fell continuously all day and it was not until Tuesday that signs of clearing up were noted.

Liberals To Select Candidate Friday

C. W. Robinson, Vermilion, May Oppose Provincial Treasurer

The first gun in the provincial campaign in the Vermilion constituency will be fired at Mansville on Friday afternoon when the Liberals of the riding will gather in convention for the purpose of selecting a candidate to oppose the Hon. R. G. Reid, minister of municipal affairs and provincial treasurer, and who has represented the district since the advent of the farmer party in politics in this province.

It is understood that the names of R. B. Hall of Innisfree and C. W. Robinson of Vermilion will be submitted to the delegates but the strong probability is that Mr. Robinson will get the convention by a unanimous ...

As far as known the government supporters have not made a move yet towards selecting a candidate, although Mr. Reid will undoubtedly get the nomination when a convention is called. It is also announced that the Conservatives will hold a convention at Mansville on May 17th.

Good Local Showers Fell Here Tuesday

Heavy local showers during the course of Tuesday afternoon benefitted the immediate vicinity of the town greatly and at times promised to develop into a continuous rainfall. The area covered east and west was limited, however, starting a few miles west of Claymore while no rain is reported from Islay or the Union district to the east. The rain clouds worked north, and in the Campbell Lake district the fall was reported as being fairly heavy.

Breaks Bone in Foot in Fall from Plant Roof

Tom Shields, engineer at the Vermilion electric light plant, fell from the roof of that building while engaged in fixing the whistle and suffered a broken bone in his foot. Shields had gone to the roof to look at the whistle which was not functioning properly and while up there had slipped and slid down the oval roof; he managed to catch the eavestrough but that gave way with him and he fell to the ground, sustaining the broken bone and necessitating his immediate removal to the hospital

Beloved Town Of Hardships

Austrian Soldier Returns Home, But Is Now Italian Citizen

From the little village of Campi, near Trento, Italy, August Leonel, 35, departed, 15 years ago as an Austrian soldier to fight the Russians. He has just now returned after years of hardships to find himself an Italian citizen, because his village, by the fortunes of war, became Italian. Leonel was captured by the Russians in 1914. He was sent to Siberia, to Tomsk, Samarra, Tumboy and Gorod. He was made to cut down trees until the work broke his health.

Then he farmed out to a miller, with whom he was working at the time of the revolution in 1917. The Bolsheviks sacked the town and burned the U. Leonel fled at night. He passed several years of intense misery until in 1921 he became a farm hand. It was not until the following year he was able to send a letter to his relatives in Campi. He did not then know that the war was over.

The next year, despairing of ever being able to leave Russia, he married the daughter of a farmer. In 1926 the authorities at Campi, through the Italian consulate at Moscow, began to exert influence to allow him to return. But the Soviet government, because he had married a Russian, withheld his passport for four years. At last they let him go with only eight dollars and a few articles of clothing

Canadian Pacific Hits Attractive Rate Tours

Is your vacation anytime between May 19th and September 30th? If so, why not take one of the very latest setting tours—at reduced rates — offered by the Canadian Pacific Canadian first the Eastern Shore and what it has to offer. It will enable the tourist to visit Ontario — with it's famous lake region, Old Province Canada—with it's picturesque "habitants," and the Maritime Provinces with their interesting Acadia, and their equally-interesting craft. The tourist may travel to these places exclusively by rail, or may some of the way over the cool waters of the Great Lakes on a great white Canadian Pacific Lake Steamship.

Various Ontario resorts at the lakeside, providing rest and bathing and, in fact, all summer sports. Niagara Falls, the beauty of which attracts so many people from all parts of the world, is only one of the many other salient features of this province that will delight the sightseer also, visit Old French Canada. There the traveller will see the many picturesque Catholic shrines that are scattered along the old highways, and visit the "habitants" rolling past on their quaint wagons, drawn by the little Canadian horse. The visitor will be awed by contrasts. In the city of Quebec, the Rock, is the latest ocean liner—a product of the new world, and, because it has had very shadow is the Rennescure Manor, the old world. Here visitors may sell their farm-produce just as do their relatives in the old land. Then again the cavalcade may resolve to pass on as far as Cape Tormentine, as did Mr. Andrews where golfers and artists meet. In proportion to its size, there are more thousand homes and more prominent visitors in Canada than in any other town in Canada.

Here is Digby, Nova Scotia—the fishing centre. Parrsboro the Poet-land, Wolfville, Grand Pre, Yarmouth and Weymouth two more shipping centres and Old Orchard, Old Mother — a famous bathing resort.

PACIFIC COAST

Another luxurious excursion is that to the Pacific Coast. This allows of opportunities for the motorist to enjoy a round of golf over the famous courses at Banff and Jasper, or stay a week or so the the Emerald Lake Chalets, nestling at the foot of mountain air and the scenery that is offered. One of the chief features of this tour in the nature of a side-trip, is a twenty-four hour motor-boat trip which takes the visitor by way of the famous Shuswap Lake Indian regatta through the Kicking Horse Pass to the Yoho Valley, perhaps the most glorious and beautiful mountain gorge that has ever been offered on this continent. Then on to Victoria, Canada's turesque British Columbia with its multitudinous industries to Vancouver. After Vancouver, Victoria, the capital of the province, reserved for its scenic resemblance to the Old Country — and this city the famous Oshawa Golf Course, the Dominion Astronomical Observatory with its 72 inch second largest telescope in the world, and Butchart's sunken gardens, are the chief attractions. At Victoria, two famous excursions are offered—a ten day cruise to Alaska and a seven day cruise of the West Coast of Vancouver Island. In these whose attention period is short, the famous Canadian Pacific "Trans-Canada Limited" will prove valuable for speedy travel. It is equipped with de luxe all-steel sleeping cars, silver-lounge, women's lounge and buffet, men's bath smoking room, buffet with soda fountain, observation lounge and a valet service. It is finer and faster than ever, and the equipment of each train costs in excess of over a million dollars.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

MAY 11

JESUS ACCLAIMED AS KING

Golden Text: "Hosanna to the Son of David: blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord: Hosanna in the highest."—Matthew 21:9.

Lesson Matthew 20:29 to 21:46.

Devotional Reading: Hebrews 1:8-12.

Explanations and Comments

Preparations For the Triumphal Entry, 21:1-6.—When Jesus and the men with Him approached Bethphage, on the Mount of Olives, not far from Jerusalem, he sent two disciples on ahead to make preparations for entering the city, bidding them find in the village an ass tied, and a colt with her, which they were to loose and bring to Him. If the owner objected they were merely to say "The Lord hath need of them," and he would send them. The horse was the symbol of war; the ass the riding symbol of the Prince of Peace.

The Triumphal Entry, 21:7-11.—The disciples followed instructions and brought the ass. They put their loose cloaks upon it for Jesus to sit upon, and the multitude with them spread their garments in the way or cut branches from the trees and spread them down for Jesus to travel upon. Some have referred the idea of spreading branches on the road as a symbol of incredible excitement and dangers; and yet the orthodox custom in Russia, in a funeral procession, is to spread the route with branches of fir."—W. A. Croft.

Cause of John 12.13. It has been generally supposed that the branches were palm branches, although John only mentions the fact that the people came out from Jerusalem to meet Jesus bearing branches of palm. We know from Revelation 7:9 that palms were carried as symbols of victory and rejoicing.

Joseph Hall us that many people, excited by the news of the raising of Lazarus (which he records), hurried from Jerusalem to meet and do honor to Jesus, while following with Him was the other multitude of Galileans on their way to Jerusalem to keep the Passover. Both crowds united in crying, "Hosanna to the Son of David."

Efforts Of Our Writers Should Receive Loyal Support

Either they are very hypocrites, or their taste is pitiably deformed. The very real efforts of our writers in other countries deserve with a rich literature, solid and diverse in character, deserve better treatment than this."

Early English Legal Documents Dealt Back 700 Years

A collection of more than 600 Early English legal documents, some of them dating back 700 years, has been presented to New York University by Judge Moses H. Grossman in the name of Frederick Brown, real estate operator and philanthropist.

Among the collection is a 12-foot parchment "pipe-roll," made of a series of skins sewed together and originally 30 feet long. The roll records that a sheriff, Richard Pyle of Southampton, County, collected Crown revenues in 1236 "from the Jews for protection from being defrauded from the knights," and "from the knights for licenses to defraud the Jews."

Imperial Letters Now In Dominion Archives

Canada Has Most Of Letters Signed By Sir John A. Macdonald

The first public document signed by Sir John A. MacDonald has been added to the collection of documents of his papers gathered together by Dr. A. G. Doughty, curator of the Dominion archives. It is an affidavit signed by Sir John on October 6, 1884, upon his appointment as a poll-clerk in the Upper Canada election in Prince Edward county. He was 19 years old at the time.

With the receipt of this letter, the Dominion archives now houses most of the important letters written by the first premier of Canada. Among the papers is the first draft of the British North America Act, in Sir John's handwriting.

So pleased was Rungar with the chute that he said he would jump from 20,000 feet with one. It was invented by John Ruby

Judge Nation By Child Death Rate

Defended Monthly As Index Of Any Civilization

(Submitted By The Social Hygiene Council)

One of the best criteria of the civilization of a nation is the care which it expends on its infants. The only standard of estimating this is by averaging the infant mortality rate. This is usually computed on the number of infants out of every 1,000 born, who do not live until the end of the first year.

It is a common superstition among the rearing of children is instinctive with the human race. Nothing could be further from the truth. The mother must be taught how to care for her child if the child is to have any part of a chance of surviving the dangers and yet the orthodox custom in Russia, in a funeral procession, is to spread the route with branches of fir."—W. Canada's Elk Preserve

Building Colony For Harvest

Game Specialists Hope Herd Will Look After Its Spring

To further a maximum crop of honey the colony must be somewhat strongly strong in bees at the same time as the major honey plants commence to secrete nectar. Further, more, the majority of these bees must be of the right age to become good field bees. Young bees are best and to be of the right age, they must be produced during the eight weeks just prior to the honey harvest, which means during the spring and early summer. The spring is the most critical period of the year for the beekeeper because it is during this period that his colonies are usually at their weakest in bees, the bees lowest in vitality, short of stores, and at the same time are required to produce the largest amount of brood, says C. B. Goodchan, Dominion apiarist. Young bees cannot be produced in large numbers without: (1), a good pollin queen to produce the eggs; (2) a plentiful supply of food to feed the oncoming generation; (3) sufficient room for the queen to reach her maximum egg production; (4) adequate protection, especially from cold winds, and (5) a force of bees strong enough to care for all the brood the queen can produce. It is up to the beekeeper then to see that these essentials are supplied. As soon as possible in the spring look over the colonies and replace all old and useless queens, supplying each colony with enough food either in the form of honey or sugar syrup and see that there is sufficient room for the normal expansion of the brood nest. Bees wintered outside will have protection enough, but those wintered in cellars should have at least protection from the wind when they are moved to their summer stands All colonies that are weak in bees should be united or have a frame of brood exchanged with them. Remember that every check in the spring brood rearing will mean a loss in the honey harvest.

PRINCESS ELIZABETH

Marcus Adams, the great English photographer of children, sent this lovely study of Princess Elizabeth to Mr. Chester Ashley, president of the Ontario Photographers' Association, in response to a trans-Atlantic telephone conversation in which Mr. Ashley asked for the loan of some portraits of royal children to arouse interest in the contests being run by the Photographers' Association of America to discover the most attractive child in America and in Ontario, respectively. The little princess recently discovered, in Buckingham Palace yard, that every time she passed the guardsman on sentry-go, he presented arms to her. And before the mournful discovered the situation, had run the poor fellow nearly ragged. Photograph by Marcus Adams, London, England.

Is It Good Business?

Getting Unnecessary Things For Which One Cannot Pay

Horace Greeley said: "Hunger, cold, rags, hard work, contempt, suspicion, unjust reproach are disagreeable; but debt is infinitely worse than them all—If you have but fifty cents and can get no more for a week, buy a peck of corn, parch it and live on it, rather than owe any man a dollar." It would be interesting to know what proportion of the people today who believe in, and are carrying out Greeley's philosophy. If one may judge from casual observations, the percentage would be small. How many are there who subject themselves to such leashing as this? The question which naturally arises is, is Greeley wrong or is the modern way of doing business wrong? It seems to be the prevalent idea to get a thing if you want it and pay after. A colored man was observed to eat his pie or cake first, then his meat, and after that his parsnips. When asked why he reversed the usual order he replied, "I might die before I get to the parsnips." So some people say "We will get what we want, enjoy it, and pay for it later." What is the more enjoyment, the person who adopts this plan or the one who does without until he can make it his own? Should we make use of that which is not our own, or mortgage our future prosperity in order to have we may possess? The question we want to ask ourselves is, is it good business

Although we are a comparatively new country, and therefore have not been able to build up much in the financial reserve, would we not have been able to stand the stress and strain of the present better than we are we not mortgaged our future earning power quite so much? Is there not a lot of wisdom in the Scotch motto so strongly emphasized by Greeley, of keeping within your income? The great mass of the so-called middle class are in that class due to such over-expenditure, and is it not from this class that the financial leaders spring? They are the people who lend stability to the state, in every sense of the word, and unless present conditions ride a people over a crisis. It might be a good idea if we who adopted the Honest Grey's way idea on finance. Moose Jaw Times.

Degrees Of Courtesy

New Formulae For Conventional Signatures Would Be Helpful

Observer in the Observer (London, England): The "instinctivity" of our conventional signatures will not, I fear, be cured by the new discussion of the subject It may be difficult to discriminate between the degrees of courtesy of "Yours truly," "Yours faithfully," and "Yours sincerely," but not so difficult as to evolve a new and perfectly truthful mode of greeting for every correspondent. Some people have tried it. Thomas Howell, for example, who at different times declared himself in these forms

Your entire friend,
Yours really,
Yours verily and invariably,
Yours in no vulgar way of friendship,
Your humble and hearty servitor
Yours in the perfect'st degree of friendship
Your whole
At your disposing,
Yours yours yours:

But English is not really rich enough in adverbs and adjectives.

Then, to be quite honest there ought to be a set of "no" for people you dislike, or do not care two-pence about Must we, in the interest of truth, sign ourselves "Yours indifferently" "Yours more or less, or "Not yours in any real sense of the word ?"

Even the Eskimos In Far North Are Found Owners Of Sets

During the seven months ended February 28, 405,117 radio receiving licenses were issued in Canada, an increase of over 108,000 from 1928-29. By March 31 the figure will be around 430,000, and since it is estimated by the department that for every seven or eight sets licensed, one escapes the fee, the Dominion now boasts approximately half a million machines.

In these figures free licenses for the Indian reserves and for the first eleven months, compared with 472 in the whole of last year, are not included. Complete statistics are not to hand among the provinces. Five out of every ten radios in Canada are in Ontario, while in the Yukon and North West Territories have 134 licensed sets to date this year, compared with 111 for last year. The radio license inspector in that area is commonly the "Mountie" Many of the sets are owned by Eskimos.

You Know What You Get

Only Two Grades Is Branded Beef, "Choice" and "Good"

When you buy branded beef bearing the seal or blue brand of government inspection you know what you get. Much effective work has been done by the Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture in respect to popularizing branded beef; but the serious fact is that there is an acute shortage of beef animals which will measure up to the first standards of the highest grades. Most of the large retail stores, however, now stock one or more grades of the meat, and these grades in branded beef; "Choice" and "Good." The "choice" beef is in all cases designated by a red brand. This grade is necessarily limited in volume and represents the product of particularly high class well finished cattle. The "good" beet is identified by a blue brand and is the grade in greatest demand. The quantity of beef which can safely be recommended as of good eating quality. Six months in advance of the word, and since the present conditions ride a people over a crisis. It might be a good idea if we who adopted the Honest Grey's way idea on finance. Moose Jaw Times.

Canada Thickly Populated

Thousands Of Dutch Families Live and Die On Boats

The inland canals of Holland are almost as thickly populated as the waterways of China. Thousands of Dutch families live and die upon canal boats. Babies are born upon them, and many people never have any other home. On a typical canal boat the freight cargo is carried in front, and the owner and his family live in the stern in winter the boats are frozen tightly in the canals, but in summer they constantly move about from place to place

Father sat so mad at an editorial that he tore up the paper and upset his coffee, which so upset mother that she bawled him out, whereupon he gave her a piece of his mind in terms that soured sister into a screaming fit provoking brother into idiotic snickers, which so enraged father that he clapped both children, bished the cat, rushed off without an overcoat or a good-bye kiss to mother, and abused the first man he met on the street as the "God Bless Our Home." In his blind eagerness to catch his train he upset the parson's wife, which so humiliated him that he got into the hands of the city cops, which delayed him to the office thirty-five minutes late, which so infuriated the boss that he was promptly fired, which so incensed him up that he decided to get drunk and take a fresh start: but before he got started afresh he died of pneumonia.

MOTHER'S WEEK

(From "The Radio")

Notice was sent out recently to the students who were in attendance at the V.S.A. last winter with regard to a "Mother's Week," which is proposed for some time next summer.

Nothing definite has been arranged about this as yet, but we would like to let the Hon. George Hoadley know how many of the mothers of students and ex-students would be favorable to such a course. It was not intended as a work week for the mothers, but rather intended to be a helpful, restful and pleasant week. It certainly will be interesting for them to be in the same rooms, classrooms, halls and dining room that you enjoyed while here.

Some of the things thought of are: Kitchen and Cooking Demonstration, Sewing, Planning and Cutting out Garments, adapting Commercial Patterns, New Kinds of Desserts, Salads, Control of Infectious Diseases, Infectious Wounds, Entertaining Addresses by prominent speakers, and, if the weather is fine, probably a picnic to the Buffalo Park, Wainwright.

We shall be pleased to hear from all students and others who would like it to have their mothers attend such a week. It is not by any means confined to mothers of our students, but is for all mothers. We are simply advancing our students as a convenient way of getting in touch with the mothers.

The car is such a handy mode of travel that it would be a simple matter for you students or ex-students to make up a load, with your mother and the neighboring mothers, and drive to the V. S. A.

Please let us know, if possible, how many mothers are coming, so that we may let the authorities at Edmonton know what you think of this plan.

We would expect at least $0 mothers for this course, and when the Provincial Sanity approves of the plan particulars as to time and dates will be sent out. We are expecting that the V.S.A. students will put this idea over in a splendid manner. Let your mother be one of the first special class ever put on in the Province for mothers.

W. J. ELLIOTT, Principal.

A TRIBUTE TO MOTHER

Responding to that deep sense of reverence of Motherhood, which finds common expression each second Sunday in May throughout the Dominion of Canada under the hallowed name of "Mothers' Day," we unite in the promotion of this endearing day, and, because remembrance, benevolence protection and inspiration, the highest attributes of motherhood, should find such a cherished place in the code and life of everyone, let us stay the flight of time and indulge remembrance with thoughts of Mother. Let us go, for a little while back through those golden gates which memory has left ajar. Let us express anew our reverence and our love; and renew our loyalty and devotion for the years to come. You have heard mother referred to as the one who went down into the Valley of the Great Shadows that we might have our being. How many shadows has this faithful guardian passed through that you might live and be equipped with the forces of life? Where is there another who will make such sacrifices, suffer the pain and continue to face the storms of life that the child might be protected?

Who can measure the value of that priceless jewel, a Mother's Love? If our Creator ever designed for a treasure house in which to store the jewels of love, kindness, self-sacrifice, heroism, pure patience and penitence, His all-seeing eye must have rested on a mother's heart. From the cradle to the grave this treasure house has poured out its contents to guide, to heal, to cherish and to teach all mankind. And for what reward or recompense? For the hope of getting waiting at the bedside of sickness, for the pain and disappointment when we fail to fulfill a mother's ambition---for nothing. Is it for the few short letters we write this silver-haired martyr? Too often do we neglect the small tribute of devotion. You men and women who wear the carnation in honor of the mother who still lives, you know her sacrifices. You know the love and devotion that fills that good old heart, the heart that would give its life's blood for you. You men and women who wear the white flower in honor of the mother who has passed her tired hands, laid down her work on this earth, and who rests in the shadow of eternal sleep, you have but the memory of that sweet face to cheer you on in life's battle.

Men and women, let us bleed the white with the red and link them both with the golden chain of respect and devotion to the sweetest word in the English tongue, that is "good friend we shall ever own, to our Mother.

Youth fades; love droops; the leaves of friendship fall,
But a mother's hope for us outlives them one and all.

SECRETARY CANADIAN BIBLE SOCIETY ADDRESSES GATHERING

Rev. J. B. M. Armour of Toronto, general secretary of the Canadian Bible Society, addressed a large gathering in the First Presbyterian church on Friday evening of last week. This was the first occasion on which a general secretary of the Society visited Vermilion, this point being one of the few in the West at which Mr. Armour will address meetings. Accompanying Mr. Armour were Rev. J. K. Smith, secretary of the Alberta branch of the Society at Edmonton, Rev. W. E. Gosts, pastor of the McDougall church and Rev. Mr. Pike, also of Edmonton. Mr. George Law presided and introduced the speaker, presenting a chart which showed the splendid work done by the Vermilion branch of the Society. Mr. Armour gave a very interesting review of the work of the Society in all quarters of the globe, all radiating from the Bible Society building in London. The Bible has been translated into every known language at little or no cost to those peoples. He told of wonderful results following the introduction of the bible into local communities and that the society was one of the most powerful agencies the church had for the extension of the kingdom of Christ into the lives of men and women. A short address from the Rev. Mr. Smith followed in which he congratulated the Vermilion branch upon its work. The evening's program included an organ solo by W. B. Elford and a duet by Mrs. H. M. Stephens and Mrs. S. C. Heethert.

1932 World's Grain Show Notes

It may be opportune to point out that all exhibits for the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference to be held at Regina from July 25 to August 6, 1930, must be on the grounds in Regina on or before March 1, 1932. There are no exceptions. This applies to all classes in the prize list. The seasons of 1930 and 1931 only remain in which to grow the samples.

The British Columbia provincial committee has instituted a very practical and effective campaign looking towards a worthy representation of that province at the 1932 World's Grain Show. The government of the province has made provision for the necessary expenses of a small working committee under the chairmanship of J. B. Munroe, Deputy Minister of Agriculture. A list of prospective exhibitors is being compiled and these will be communicated with. A list of the varieties and kind of seed adaptable to the various districts is being prepared for the guidance of exhibitors. Plans are in preparation also for the publication of articles, advertisements, radio talks and public meetings so that all matters pertaining to this coming event will be well known to the people of all parts of the province. “Hints for Exhibitors” will keep growers informed upon seed, crops, threshing, cleaning, etc. British Columbia is much interested in varietal tests and will make an effort to be well represented in this

Something More than Appearance

Something more than appearance will be the criteria by which the first prize at the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference to be held at Regina, July 25 to August 6, 1932. All entries getting into the prize money at this Exhibition will it is expected, be in demand for seed. It is because of the importance of the effect of the distribution of this prize seed in farmers in Canada and throughout the world that the Awards Committee has decided that the seed judging standards will be supplemented by a growing test, which in reality is the test experience.

Practice Of Inoculating Seed Of Various Legumes Has Been Found To Be Beneficial

During the past few years practically all Ontario farmers have become acquainted with the value of inoculating the seed of the various legumes when they are being grown on land which has not previously been sown to these crops or on land where their cultivation has lapsed for a period of years. This practice has proven a good one and is now used in every progressive agricultural country of the world, but the discovery of a proper method of getting the inoculation or culture in to the farmer was not done in a day and the history is rather interesting.

The first efforts in this direction were made in Germany where samples of the soil which had been found free from the legumes was transported to the virgin soil and there spread around to insure the presence of the bacteria. The disadvantages of this method were obvious and a commercial company sold a large number of prepared cultures which were found to be valueless. Agricultural colleges and experiment stations in the various countries worked on the problem for a number of years, at one time the Department of Agriculture at Washington believed they had a successful method of growing and sending out the bacterial cultures, but it proved a failure

It remained for the Department of Bacteriology at the O.A.C. to devise the proper method and the culture advised was soon adopted as the one best suited for the soil. The familiar bottle, half filled with a white substance is the outgrowth of this discovery and the bacteria on this culture will live almost indefinitely. Each legume has its own particular culture and the one which is supplied for alfalfa is of no value for inoculating red clover and vice versa. Since the discovery, the Department of Bacteriology has supplied something over 100,000 cultures to farmers requesting them at a nominal charge of fifty cents.

A question frequently asked is, when is inoculation required and for what crops? The common crops requiring inoculation are alfalfa, red clover, sweet clover, peas, field beans and soy beans. Inoculation should be practiced where the crop is to be grown on any land that never has produced that particular crop and is ignorant if it has not produced a good yield of the said crop within the past four or five years.

The Department have not claimed unfailing increases after the use of the inoculant, it has been generally assumed that in about seventy cases out of every hundred there will be a substantial increase and reports have shown that in the case of the other thirty per cent. the bacteria were probably already in the soil and the inoculation then rendered unnecessary.

It is interesting to note that rich soils which are very high in nitrogen will often produce good crops of legumes for the first time without inoculation. The reason for this is that the bacteria used in inoculating have as their function the conversion of the nitrogen of the air in such form which the plants can use and in nitrogen rich soils the soil nitrogen is used when the bacteria are present, thus seriously depleting the soil but not giving any noticeable effect on the plant.

New Grain Act

New Act is a Consolidation and Revision Of the Old Measure

Canada's new grain act was up for consideration by the committee of the House of Commons on agriculture and colonization. The new act is a consolidation and revision of the old measure but involves no change in the operation of the legislation except on minor points.

Col. C. McGregor, K.C., who drafted the new act explained the chief difficulty with the old act was that the sections were badly arranged and occasionally inconsistent. With regard to some provisions there was doubt as to their constitutional validity, he said.

In drafting the new act, Col. McGregor stated, it was necessary to find new constitutional bases for some sections in order to ensure their validity. The sections are arranged differently and simplified, he declared.

Clover a Honey Maker

Figures Show It Leads As Source Of Income

Clover and honey have always been intimately associated with good reason Figures supplied by the Lennoxville Experimental Stations of the Dominion Department of Agriculture show that clover leads as a source of nectar supplying the honey bee during the year for 60 days: fruit blooms supply nectar 26 days of the year, the dandelion for 23 days, the raspberry and goldenrod each for 20 days, with pussy willow starting the season with a 13 day supply.

Modern Poultry Research

International Show-Exhibition Of Poultry Industry At London Congress

The poultry industry, perhaps more than any other, is becoming standardized in a universal sense through instrumentality of the World's Poultry Science Association. This organization will this year bring together at the World's Poultry Congress, seriously minded men and women from many countries who are concerned with the development of the poultry industry and incidentally with the promoting of international friendship.

The fourth congress which takes place at the Crystal Palace, in Old London, England, in July this year promises to exceed any of the previous ones. At that meeting there will be pooled the best and most recent knowledge concerning the various aspects of the poultry industry in all parts of the world. Modern poultry research, education and economics will be revealed through papers and demonstrations and scientific exhibits from half a hundred countries.

Displays, on an international basis, of purebred poultry will bring out the best that has been achieved in poultry improvement. Commercial exhibits at that great show will reveal what the trade has accomplished in providing the requirements of the poultry industry, and of carrying it on in a profitable way.

Peasants Exempted From Farm Taxation

Soviets Wish To Encourage Them In Every Way On Land

A number of important exemptions for peasants on collective farms have been decided upon by the Communist party. The object is to encourage peasants to stay on such farms and also to promote the growth of these institutions. The exceptions include the following:

Household taxation for two years on all cattle and horses. An extension of a credit of 250,000,000 to promote collective farm organizations.

Postponement of all outstanding debts of collective farmers until the end of the harvest season.

Cancellation of all fines imposed upon such farmers for failure to carry out terms of the government grain collecting campaign.

Reduction of the total agricultural tax for the fiscal year 1930-31.

Farms Flourish Exhibit

A photograph taken at the Hebuan Observatory confirmed, it was stated, existence of the Trans-Neptune planet recently discovered by the Lowell Observatory at Flagstaff, Arizona. Photographs of the planet were taken March 19 and 27, the body appearing on the sensitive plates after an hour's exposure in each case.

Science Problem For Cattle Committee

Gentlemen Hold To Be Resorting To Knife and Needle For Show Ring Fame

The Farmers' Advocate says: Cattle committees who outline the policy and lay down the rules which govern exhibitions in Canada are giving earnest thought and consideration to the serious problem of detecting and barring "doctored" cattle. The large exhibitions, both Blast and West, realize that something must be done to prevent the public being hoaxed by super-expert herdsmen who are able to use knife and needle in beautifying their cattle. It is a practice that should be neither condoned nor permitted and the boys bowed are waiting wisely in their attempt to ben the doctored animal and the exhibitor who offers such animals for competition.

One suggestion is that all cattle be inspected by a veterinarian before entering the ring. This entails much unnecessary work, and any animal found tampered with would simply be led back into the stable to be presented at future shows or exhibitions held elsewhere. It becomes necessary to inspect only a few cattle, the champions and reserve champions, and the best of exposure after winning [illegible] would deter any exhibitor from going to undue lengths in "treating" or preparing his animals for the show-ring. It is not the cattle that win third, fourth or fifth place in a class, or are outside the prize money altogether, about which a fair board needs to worry. Not one in a hundred of these receive more than ordinary fitting It is the cattle that are winning high honors in the show-rings of Canada and the United States that need watching. Neither do we wish to imply that all cattle that win championships are dishonestly fitted or treated. Many breeders and exhibitors would consider such practices rank, but it is known that herdsmen are resorting to the knife and the needle, and fair boards cannot overlook the fact.

Would Curtail Production

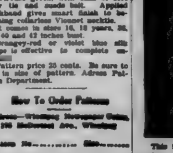
Effort Made To Restore Spring Wheat Planting in Colfax

Two United States government members of the gospel of curtailed production as the only real salvation of wheat farmers made ready in Chicago to spread the doctrine of spring wheat area of the northwest in a last-minute effort to forestall the planting of wheat on at least 2,000,000 acres.

The two men were Dr. John L. Coulter, chief economist of the farm commission, and James Howard, federal farm board representative and former president of the National Farm Bureau Federation.

Their final plans for the intensive campaign by which they hope to reduce spring wheat acreage by 10 per cent., were made in conference recently with Alexander Legge, president of the Farm Board.

THE TAKU GLACIER



This ice field, one of the largest in the world, is one of the many wonders which are to be seen on the route of the Canadian National Steamships between Vancouver and Skagway, Alaska. All of the three boats in this service, the "Prince George," "Prince Rupert," and the new "Prince Henry," pass within a stone's throw of this glacier, the height of which can be judged by the fishing smack in the foreground. The glacier is 90 miles long and only about one-quarter of its width is shown in the photograph.

State Of Canadian Business Is Fair In Comparison With Conditions In Other Countries

Delegation To Investigate Moves From Maritimes

Men From British Visiting Canada and United States

Commissioned by the British Government to spend some weeks in both United States and Canada to investigate modern farm machinery and labor-saving devices on the farm, J. R. Newman, of the institute of agricultural engineering, Oxford University, Thomas Baxter, ex-president of the National Farmers' Union of England, and G. Clarke, representing labor organizations, were in Montreal, recently, on their way to Ottawa. The delegation was met by F. W. Waldo, superintendent of agriculture of the Canadian National Railways, who extended to them the facilities of the department for assisting them in their investigations.

The members of the delegation stated they expected to spend the greater part of their time in the United States. Investigations into the various branches of the federal department of agriculture. A similar mission toured Canada in 1927 and 1928, and secured much valuable information.
